Russia Asked To Join Arms Embargo

Times News Services

The United States has proposed to Russia that the two countries negotiate a joint embargo on arms shipments to the Middle East, but there are no immediate indications when, or if, the Russians will respond to the U.S. proposal.

The embargo appeal was made by State Secretary William Rogers during a one-hour meeting at the state department Wednesday with Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin, U.S. officials said.

The new move by Washington followed closely President Nixon's decision to refuse for the time being Israel's request to buy about 125 more warplanes from the United States.

CROSS CANAL

On the war front today, Israeli jets attacked Egyptian artillery positions, anti-aircraft batteries and other military targets in the Suez canal and Gulf of Suez area for more than four hours, a military spokesman announced.

In Cairo, the Egyptian military command said Egyptian troops crossed the canal today and destroyed three Israeli armored cars, killing about 15 Israelis.

Meanwhile in Lebanon, Arab guerillas and Falangists, a Lebanese right-wing political group, fought a battle with rockets and machine-guns in Beirut today, third day of the internal crisis.

The latest clash was one of a series in the last two days which have left 17 dead and more than 30 wounded.

WANTS REVENGE

Heavy machine-gune fire and explosions were heard from the maze of twisting, narrow alleys leading from the camp to the party office. An uneasy ceasefire followed.

Earlier today, thousands of Palestine mourners marched through Beirut screaming to avenge 10 Arab guerrillas slain in a gun fight with Lebanese villagers.

The men were killed in gun battles Wednesday at the mountain village of Kahhala, about 10 miles east of Beirut, where armed right-wing groups twice ambushed a commando funeral cortege.

After the ambush, the commando organizations issued a joint statement saying the seven dead were victims of "treachery and treason."

LAS VEGAS TREMBLES

H-Bomb Test Jolts Nevada

Times News Services

PAHUTE MESA, Nev. — A hydrogen bomb jolted the western United States with the force of a million tons of TNT today as scientists successfully triggered one of the largest underground tests in history.

The thermonuclear device was believed to be a warhead for a semiorbital antimissile missile system. Its exact nature was classified.

The earth bulged skyward 15 feet and a dust cloud rose into the clear desert sky at ground zero. The explosion unleashed more than 50 times the force of the atomic bombs dropped on Japan during the Second World War.

Some 4,000 feet below the top of this remote mesa on the Nevada test site the hydrogen blast vaporized tons of volcanic rock. A 700-foot diameter cavern, large enough to hold Hoover Dam, was carved beneath the 7,000-foot elevation plateau within a split second.

In the Skyroom Lounge on the 24th floor of the downtown Las Vegas Mint Hotel, Ann Valder reported:

BUILDINGS SHAKE

"There it goes. Chandeliers are rattling . . . clincking. The entire building is shaking more and more. It seems to be coming in definite waves. The second one was tremendous. This is like being aboard ship in a storm."

Unfavorable winds blowing from the test site towards Las Vegas, earlier in the morning, put the test on a temporary hold. Scientists had started the countdown but then cautiously shuttled 2,500 workers from the site when winds shifted.

TAKE NO CHANCES

Although no radiation was expected to leak from the shaft, constructed at a cost of $5 million, the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission was taking no chances that residents in the gambling centre would be endangered.

The test was originally scheduled for Wednesday but was delayed because of the high winds.

Residents in Las Vegas, 120 miles from the test site, were warned that earth tremors would be felt. Workers were ordered off high scaffolds and all high-rise buildings were tested for sway allowance.

PROROGATION AFTER EASTER

The legislature is expected to break the Easter barrier for the first time in the 18-year history of the Social Credit government.

Under an agreement believed to have been reached Wednesday night among party leaders, the assembly will adjourn at 6 p.m. today and reconvene at 2 p.m. next Wednesday to clean up two or three days' worth of business before prorogation.

It would be the first time since 1951 that the legislature has sat after Easter, which comes earlier than usual this year.

Today's sitting was the 69th so far this session, suggesting the MLAs will equal or pass the 74 sittings held last year when the legislature prorogued on the Wednesday before Easter.

41 Patients Face Eviction

Forty-one patients in a Saanich private hospital have 35 days to find somewhere else to live.

This was disclosed today with an announcement that Oak Lodge Private Hospital, 4036 Quadra, is closing down at the end of April for financial reasons.

"I don't know where they are going to go," said administrator Mrs. Margaret Reynolds. "I am worried sick."

She said letters have been sent to Health Minister Ralph Loffmark and other officials.

"There are just no places available," she said.

Mrs. Reynolds is also administrator of Sandringham Private Hospital, 1650 Fort, but said this one is not closing.

She said Oak Lodge doesn't have enough money coming in to keep going.

Twenty of the 41 patients are on welfare, but Saanich welfare administrator Mrs. Bunte Marshall said her department has no direct responsibility.

It acted as a clearing house for people with financial problems. Asked who is responsible, she said the relatives. Asked what happens, she said "We don't know. There are people waiting for private beds."

A spokesman for the Vancouver company which manages Oak Lodge, National Hospital Management, said

Dominican Detainees Freed

Times News Services

SANTO DOMINGO — The Dominican government handed over 20 detainees to the Mexican embassy in return for the liberty of kidnapped United States air attache Donald J. Crowley.

Crowley was not immediately freed but the handover of the political prisoners was the first stage in a complicated exchange agreement.

Earlier the chancellor of the University of Santo Domingo said Crowley would be released at 3 p.m.

Dr. Rafael Kasse Acta told reporters the political prisoners would leave for Mexico aboard an unspecified airline plane at the same time.

In Buenos Aires an Argentinian judge said today that one of two terrorists demanded as ransom for kidnapped Paraguayan consul Joaquin Waldemar Sanchez does not want to be released.

A statement by federal Judge Jorge Luque quoted Carlos Dellanave, 20, who is being tried for possession of explosives, unlawful association and conspiracy for rebellion, as saying he wants to stand trial here.

The statement came hours after the deadline set by the self-styled Argentine Liberation Front for authorities to release Dellanave and fly him to Mexico.

The Front, which claimed responsibility for the seizure of the consul in downtown Buenos Aires Tuesday, has also set a deadline tonight for the release of Alejandro Baldu, claiming both he and Dellanave were submitted to the "most barbarous torture" by police.

FEDERAL STUDY WARNS

Heat's On for Great Lakes

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP) — Heat pollution of the Great Lakes will soar in the next 30 years, sharply spurred by new nuclear and other electric generating plants, says a study made public today by the federal government.

The study estimates that man-made heat discharge will be 11 times greater than at present.

Besides electric generating stations, mainly nuclear powered, the study identifies other major sources as iron and steel plants and municipal sewage discharge systems.

It notes that if current trends continue to the year 2000, electric energy will account for between 36 and 48 per cent of total energy consumed in the lakes region. It now is between 15 and 20 per cent.

The report by special consultants has prompted the federal government to commission special studies of the environmental implications of the heat pollution rise.

FACED WITH CHALLENGE

Energy Minister J. J. Greene simultaneously released a statement saying the findings challenge Canada to develop techniques for using waste heat from power and industrial plants and municipal waste treatment facilities.

The study was done for the government by H. G. Acres Ltd., a Canadian consulting group commissioned to assess the magnitude of projected heat pollution and determine whether further research is needed into its possible effects.

The study says there are potential problems that require research to ensure that serious temperature and ecological effects are avoided.

The temperature rise for all of Lake Ontario might be no more than one degree fahrenheit if completly diffused.

But localized temperature increases in surface layers would result in a rise of several degrees.

The study says more research is needed to forecast and control significant local temperature increases.

It says the man-made heat added per unit of lake surface will be greater for Lake Ontario than for the other lakes.

By 2000, hourly discharge of waste heat may reach 1.26 British Thermal Units per square foot of Ontario's water surface.

Hourly heat pollution per square foot of the other lakes is 1.2 BTU for Lake Erie, 0.52 Lake Michigan, 0.29 Lake Huron and 0.022 Lake Superior.

British Thermal Unit is the standard measurement of heat and represents the quantity of heat needed to raise the temperature of one pound of water though one degree fahrenheit.

MORE BANKS CUT RATES

Times News Services

The roster of American banks joining the prime rate cut parade increased today. Several major banks which had held out against a widespread move to lower rates announced they are going along with the reduction to 8 per cent.

American stock markets, which reacted wildly Wednesday, resulting in major gains, today settled back to a moderate level of trading. The Dow Jones' average of 30 industrials closed with a slim rise of 0.92 after having been up more than four points in the first half-hour.

The Toronto stock market was slightly higher.

Snowstorms, Job Boycott Help Disrupt Air Service

Times News Services

VANCOUVER — Canadian Pacific Airlines today announced that it expects no trouble for people planning flights to the United States for the Easter holiday despite an absence of air controllers at many U.S. airports.

An earlier report out of Toronto said Canadians planning to fly to the U.S. for the holiday may have to change their plans. Absenteeism by the controllers combined with snowstorms caused a number of flight cancellations there today.

Six early flights to and from Toronto International Airport were cancelled and several flights scheduled later were doubtful because of the storm.

Toronto airport, deluged with calls, could not say which holiday flights would take place as scheduled.

WEATHER HURT

American, Eastern and United airlinees said their early flights to the U.S. went on schedule today, except American's flight to Chicago which was cancelled because of weather conditions.

Despite a court order forbidding any strike, about one-fifth of all United States air traffic controllers stayed off the job today. The result was delays and cancellations of flights just as the Easter weekend crunch was beginning.

A foot of snow on the airports accomplished what the strike that started Wednesday couldn't—it halted all flights at Chicago, the world's busiest air centre. That in turn affected traffic elsewhere along the airways.

The Federal Aviation Agency said 79 per cent of the normal 1,577 day-shift controllers went to work in the centres that regulate movement of aircraft once they are out of airport reach.

The FAA and industry spokesmen said delays were not as severe as Wednesday when some flights were up to seven hours late. Most points reported delays of less than one hour.

Police Guard Montreal Post Office

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal's main post office was under heavy police guard late Wednesday and early today as a 200-truck blockade was removed from around the huge downtown building.

Meanwhile, the federal cabinet was expected today to study a report by Montreal lawyer H. Carl Goldenberg into the postal dispute that has been marked by vandalism and work stoppages since Feb. 3.

Mr. Goldenberg handed in his report just hours after police and firemen were called in. Postal-truck drivers had ringed the downtown building with their trucks, blocking exits and disrupting traffic.

Tires on about 50 of the trucks had been slashed and firemen were summoned to hose down streets in the area after gas tanks of some trucks were punctured.

The blockade was removed overnight and alternate trucks managed to deliver mail to all but 11 of the city's 33 postal substations.

Diplomatic Hold Seen in Cambodia

PHNOM PENH (CP) — North Vietnam and the Viet Cong will pull their diplomatic missions out of Cambodia Friday, informed sources said today. The informants said Hanoi and the Viet Cong are not breaking relations with Cambodia, just suspending them.

'Red Tape' Dangles Near Loffmark's Head

Red streamers symbolizing red tape hindering abortions dangled near the head of Health Minister Ralph Loffmark Wednesday afternoon in a demonstration that briefly interrupted proceedings in the legislature.

About 10 young women, members of the Vancouver Women's Caucus, dumped the streamers and some waste paper from the public galleries above the legislators while silently displaying large banners.

"Stranger in the House," cried Loffmark in traditional parliamentary form as the streamers suddenly floated down around his head at 3:15 p.m. during debate on municipal affairs department estimates.

But the demonstrators weren't quite strangers to the minister who had completed a 1½-hour meeting with them on the subject of abortion about half an hour earlier. (See story Page 23.)

The demonstrators remained silent as they moved from the gallery — some firmly assisted by attendants — and Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell resumed

HUDKINS . . . He is for real

HANG UP MANPOWER'S PHON E.

Women's Liberation Front, Centre!

WASHINGTON (AP) — A U.S. government analyst is compiling an unofficial report concluding what many men already believe—whatever ails them can be blamed on women.

"I have tracked down reports, for instance, that schizophrenia, paranoia, suicide, alcoholism, cancer, arthritis, sterility all result from female dominance of the family," says Dr. Phon E. Hudkins, a labor department lawyer and economist in the manpower administration.

The name is real.

"It can't be," said a labor department official, also unofficially.

Hudkins, whose report is compiled mainly of writings by well-known psychiatrists, lawyers, anthropologists, sociologists and other experts, is serious about his conclusions.

But the labor department isn't about to touch the report with a 10-foot pole.

"He ought to be fired," shuddered another official—also unofficially—anticipating a flood of protests from feminists.

"That's one war you can't win," he said.

You can blame mental depression, dwarfism, crime, delinquency, homosexuality, diabetes, colds, headaches and cancer on too much female dominance, says Hudkins, 36 and a bachelor.

"It doesn't mean that I don't like women," Hudkins said.

He added:

"What disturbs me most is that some of the things we think of normally as diseases result from female dominance."

It goes all the way back to the Bible, he said, citing God's advice to women about their husbands in Genesis: "And he shall be your master."

"What it's proving is that the Bible is true; these are biological laws," Hudkins said.

What to do about it? Put women in their place, of course.

"I'm definitely in favor of repealing the sex provision of the Civil Rights Act," which aims at equal job opportunities and pay for women, he said. "We find that manpower policies are causing these physical and mental illnesses in the long run," Hudkins said. "Many men are trapped in low-income jobs. If we are going to make males the head of the family, they have to have jobs.

"When it's all brought out we'll find the same things that are causing rising crime rates and riots are also causing diabetes and cancer, he added.

Split Services For Hospitals

Royal Jubilee and St. Joseph's Hospitals will continue to provide matching services in the major areas of medicine but some special services will be divided between them to avoid duplication.

The region's hospital board Wednesday approved recommendations of a committee of doctors who studied complementary roles for the two hospitals.

Plans call for both hospitals to ultimately be about 600 beds with extended care beds located nearby.

". . . we recommend that each hospital continue as a general hospital, each providing the community with complete coverage in all major disciplines of medicine, surgery, obstetrics and gynecology, pediatrics, anesthsia, radiology and pathology," said the committee headed by Dr. R. M. Lane.

- The cancer clinic at Royal Jubilee Hospital, which provides radio therapy for the entire community;
- The Eric Martin Institute of Psychiatry, which has been designed to handle the great majority of psychiatric cases for both major hospitals;
- The chronic renal dialysis unit at Royal Jubilee, unless an increased patient load or future technical advanced produce a need;
- The special burns unit, to be built at St. Jospeh's;
- Elective cardiac catherization at Royal Jubilee, while recognizing occasional emergency catherization may be needed at St. Joseph's.

There is no current need for open-heart surgery facilities in Victoria, but the need should be reviewed periodically, the report says.

The concept of one, separate adult isolation unit for the region is not workable.

The committee said it believes a periodic review of the hospitals' roles by a similar committee should be made.

Ratepayer Resorts To Bill of Rights

An irate ratepayer is making a study of the Canadian Bill of Rights to see if he can stop B.C. Hydro from running an overhead transmission line through the properties of five homeowners on Munn Road in Saanich.

P. A. Codyre, 1890 Munn Road, told a Highland District Ratepayers Association meeting Wednesday that he and a lawyer are making a study of the bill.

"I believe the bill protects people from being moved off their land unnecessarily," he said.

B.C. Hydro plans to run the line, starting from Jordan River, through the five homes, to a proposed substation near Pike Lake. This means residents will have to sell out or have their homes expropriated by the Crown corporation.

The residents don't want to move.

Codyre said B.C. Hydro's proposed plan is contrary to the Bill of Rights because there is no need to move the people.

He said the corporation had three other alternatives. These were:

- Expropriate 67 acres of unused land at the rear of the five homes. The property belonged to a large real estate company;
- Run the line through a small portion of the 165-acre Francis Nature Park;
- Lay the line underground.

About 40 people attended the meeting chaired by R. G. McMinn.

McMinn asked members to write individual letters to B.C. Hydro requesting that it reconsider the proposed route for transmission line.

Auction Hammer Shatters Store

A Victoria landmark was knocked down Wednesday—with an auction hammer.

Except for a few items, all the fixtures and hardware of Canada Safeway's store No. 34 at 707 Fort, was sold by Maynard's auction house, ending more than 40 years of grocery business at that address.

The store closed its doors for the last time Saturday, the last major grocery-produce-meat market in downtown Victoria, reducing Safeway operations in the capital region to nine, including Sidney.

The store had been a Piggly Wiggly market before Safeway took over that chain about 1930. It is making way, along with the adjoining Campbell building, for a new Royal Bank of Canada building at Douglas and Fort.

As usual, storekeepers and other buyers got some marvelous bargains in the public sale of fixtures. A nearly-new, 10-foot, woodgrain pastry display case went for $56; 40 feet of adjustable display gondola for $65, and a 20-foot frozen food bin for $205, about one-fifth of its original value.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Most sections of B.C. were sunny today under the influence of an intensive ridge of high pressure over the south coast and the central interior. However, rain preceding a weakening Pacific disturbance will reach the north coast before noon today. A similar system will cross the Charlottes early Friday morning. These systems will produce cloudiness in the interior and along the south coast on Good Friday. The extended forecast calls for near normal rainfall and above normal temperatures Saturday through Monday with a chance of showers on Saturday and again on Monday. Sunday should be mainly sunny.

The Weather and You

By CARL RIBLET JR.

When we think of thirst we are inclined to think of hot weather and deserts where the heat is so dry that a man struggling to survive there may become dehydrated.

It isn't only in the hot deserts where man can get awfully thirsty. He thirsts for a drink of water in the polar regions, too. An explorer in the Antarctic wastes loses body water through perspiration when he is working hard and he loses weight in the course of the day because of dehydration.

"In way-below-zero weather?" you ask.

Whether the weather is hot or freezing, you need water when you sweat in order to forestall dehydration. If a polar explorer had no water to drink he would face two hardships at the same time: severe cold and thirst. One Arctic explorer wrote that drinking water is just as precious as heat in the Arctic.

PROMOTED to the rank of major this week is Warren B. Lange, son of Mrs. Hedwig Lange, 841 Sevenoaks. A lecturer in the electrical engineering department of the Royal Military Colege, at Kingston, Maj. Lange graduated from Mount View Senior Secondary School, the University of British Columbia and the University of Colorado.

Hospital Tendering Month Away

That will be the realization in about one year at Gorge Road Hospital.

Architectural drawings for expansion are very close to completion, Mrs. Irene Warren, president of Gorge Road Hospital Society, told the annual meeting Wednesday night.

"We hope to be ready to go to tender for this building program in approximately one month's time," she said.

"Once construction does start, it is estimated that the building would take some 10 or more months to complete which could mean that in roughly a year from now we could be treating 150 extended-care patients."

Hospital administrator W. E. Morrison read a letter from Health Minister Ralph Loffmark giving the green light for working drawings.

Mrs. Warren also said the board must direct itself to providing for future rehabilitation needs. Gorge now has 99 beds for rehabilitation.

It was the board's intention to have a submission prepared for the next hospitals referendum to cover future rehabilitation needs. She said it is felt the referendum will probably be held this fall.

Mrs. Warren was re-elected president for 1970.

BLOOD DRIVE MISSES CAMPUS GOAL

The three-day Red Cross blood donor clinic held Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday at the University of Victoria fell short of its 900-unit goal, but officials were not altogether displeased with the results.

Charles MacNeal, of Red Cross House, called the turnout of 580 donors "a little disappointing," but added, "their contribution will go a long way and is a pretty big help."

The next Red Cross clinic will be held April 20 and 21 at Red Cross House on Fort Street.

Hospital Region Wants PR Advice

The capital region's hospital board decided Wednesday to get professional help in selling its work and progress to the public.

The board will look for a public relations man or woman to work part-time.

Directors showed a continued sensitivity to suggestions they have been lagging in their hospital building program when Saanich Alderman Edith Gunning opposed any sort of motion that the board press ahead with its plans for extended-care beds.

That is what the directors have been doing and re-stating it suggests they haven't, she argued.

PUBLIC UNCONCERNED

"The public is not half so concerned as the directors around this table," said Leslie Passmore, another Saanich council representative.

Red tape surrounding frequent government approvals required in developing hospital building plans was mentioned as a major source of delays.

The board went on record as not abandoning plans for an extended care wing there but directed staff to concentrate on the rest of the building program during the current stalemate.

Metchosin representative Kenneth Rainey voiced a crucial question on the St. Joseph's problem when he wondered aloud why the board was pressing so hard for the expanded hospital on the same site.

There was no debate and the question remained unanswered.

the decision was made by the owner.

But the spokesman declined to identify the owner and said the management company is "not at liberty" to make statements on why Oak Lodge is closing and what happens to the 41 patients when it does.

Mrs. Reynolds said she is "really upset" at the closure and feels "dreadfully sorry" about it. "It should not be closing with the general bed shortage," she said.

Easter Egg Hunt Sunday

Last Saturday the Times reported the bar, grand prize in this year's Jaycee Easter Egg Hunt, to be a 10-pounder. We were wrong. The bar weighs 16 pounds and will be won Sunday by some lucky youngster at Beaver Lake Park.

Over 5,000 eggs have been hidden throughout the park, to be searched for by children 12 and under, starting at 1 p.m.

Two sections will be roped off; one for children from 6 to 8 years old and one for those aged 9 to 12. A special grassed area will be set up for toddlers, complete with live Easter bunnies.

Last year more than 5,000 people turned out for the hunt and officials are hoping for even better attendance this year.

New Building Bylaw In Offing

A new building bylaw for unorganized areas within the regional district received three readings at a board meeting Wednesday and will go to Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell for his approval prior to final adoption.

It was explained that the bylaw replaces existing regulations with the addition of an appendix on building permit fees.

The fees have been increased to correspond with those generally charged by municipalities. At present they are $2 per $1,000 of construction in unorganized areas.

The new schedule, for a $30,000 building for example, would mean a permit fee of $96 compared with the present $60.

In other business, board directors:

- Approved a $10,000 study on solid waste disposal in the region and an interim report recommending immediate steps to alieviate problems in unorganized areas;
- Agreed to hold a second vote in Metchosin on the ex-Colwood race track purchase April 18. The first vote failed by a handful of votes;
- Adopted a budget for 1970 including $114,950 for administration, $777,927 for regional parks acquisition, $39,900 for engineering, $48,937 for feasibility reserve studies, $81,180 for Colwood Centennial swimming pool, $36,800 for building inspection services, $32,000 for the Family and Children's Court building, $121,500 for regional planning and $20,400 for the ex-Colwood racetrack.

Boost Grants To Cities Says Socred

A Social Credit backbencher suggested Wednesday that the provincial government increase its grants paid to cities in lieu of taxes to bring them more into line with federal grants.

Evan Wolfe (SC — Vancouver Centre) said the provincial grants to Vancouver in 1969 for provincial property which is non-taxable totalled $104,000. That's less than 25 per cent of the amount—$426,000—that would be paid by the federal government in lieu of taxes if it owned the same property, he said.

He hoped Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell will look at the matter "because large centres such as Vancouver and Victoria have many provincial government buildings and are in considerable need of increased tax revenue."

Wolfe said the federal government calculates its payments on the same basis as those for ordinary taxpayers while the provincial government uses a basis of 15 mills on assessed values under the Assessment Equalization Act.

speaking, noting there had been a "rude interruption."

"Not only a rude interruption, it was a ridiculous interruption," said chairman Herb Bruch (SC — Esquimalt) who seconds earlier had called for the demonstrators to be cleared from the galleries.

STERN LECTURE

"They have no understanding of the democratic process. They ought to be ashamed of themselves," Bruch shouted.

One young woman was taken into custody by officials of the sergeant-at-arms' office and led to the office of Speaker William Murray, who have her a stern lecture on the seriousness of offending the legislature by demonstrations in the galleries.

She was detained several minutes longer in the sergeant-at-arms office.

The woman, who was tall, with long, brown hair, said she gave her name and address to the officials but refused to give them the names of any other demonstrators. She declined to give her name to reporters.

TUG-OF-WAR

A smaller girl who returned to the area of the public gallery following the demonstration to pick up a camera she had left behind soon found herself in a lengthy tug-of-war for the camera with an official of the sergeant-at-arms office.

She lost the pulling match and suffered scraped fingers in the struggle. Her camera was returned later after she provided identification to the officials.

Some of the demonstrators said they had been "yanked" out of the galleries by attendants.

They said they wouldn't have gone ahead with the demonstration if they had been satisfied with their meeting with Loffmark.

The banners unfurled in the galleries read "Abortion Is Our Right" and "Illegal Abortions Kill Women."

They said the thin red streamers were meant to symbolize the red tape that makes it difficult for women to get abortions, red tape that Loffmark hadn't indicated much opposition to, they added.

Bill Hartley (NDP—Yale Lillooet) spoke to the woman who was detained and advised her it was unlikely there would be any action by the legislature as a result of the case.

During the 1968 session there was a shouting and placard-waving demonstration in support of then Minister Without Portfolio Phil Gaglardi who had resigned his highways portfolio under opposition criticism.

No action resulted from that disturbance. The legislature, which is presided over by the speaker, has wide powers in dealing with actions that it rules are in contempt of the House.

Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids... and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most important—this improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. All this was accomplished with a healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a stated cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Striking Contrasts in Laos Princes

SOUPHANOUVONG

By STANLEY KARNOW

HONG KONG (WP) — The Laos tangle has produced vast amounts of rhetoric in Washington, Moscow, Peking, Hanoi and Vientiane itself, most of it serving to cloud rather than clarify the crisis in that pristine little kingdom.

Perhaps more significant, therefore, are the two men who symbolize the current conflict in Laos — Prince Souvanna Phouma, the premier, and his half-brother, the Communist leader Prince Souphanouvong.

It was in March, 1962, exactly eight years ago, that I lunched with them both in a ramshackle former French Foreign Legion barracks at Khang Khay, a village on the Plain of Jars, north of Vientiane, where most of the recent fighting has occurred.

Though different in detail, the situation in Laos then was as complicated as it is now. The two princes were allied at the time against a third prince, Boun Oum, who refused despite American pressure to join the coalition government that would finally be formed in June. So they were waiting, talking, fidgeting, and occasionally receiving correspondents like myself.

I had flown to the plateau with a Corsican pilot presumably planning to return with a cargo of opium, and hitched a ride from the dirt airstrip in a Soviet jeep. The sight of Souvanna Phouma and Souphanouvong as I arrived proclailmed the vivid contrast between them immediately.

A pipe between his teeth, Souvanna Phouma was attired in a double-breasted pinstirpe suit and Homburg hat, and should have been wearing spats. He looked, against the background of the crumbling barracks, like Adolphe Menjou on the set of "Tobacco Road."

Souphanouvong, on the other hand, had clearly drawn his sartorial inspiration from the early Bolsheviks. A burly man with a large head, he was outfitted in dirty corduroy and peasant boots and, if membory serves, a proletarian cap that might have belong to Stakhanov.

Lunch, such as it was, consisted of Russian canned food supplied by the nearby Soviet aid mission, and a fierce white alcohol spiced by ginseng, a gift from North Korea. In short, a thoroughly Marxist meal.

"Deplorable, deplorable," Soumanna Phouma muttered, apologizing for the fare. He glanced at the cracked ceiling and peeling walls, his expression saying: "How did I get into this godforsaken hole?"

Souphanouvong did not seem to mind the surroundings or the cuisine. He ate heartily and talked cheerfully, recounting his youth in France, where he studied engineering and was stirred by Leon Blum's popular front, and once, for motives that were not quite clear, joined a stevedores' strike in Le Havre.

He also confirmed a story I had heard from a comrade of his—how, in 1950, they had trekked up to a Vietminh camp in northern Vietnam to meet Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap, who gave them an elementary lesson in guerrilla warfare.

"Concentrate on the villages, not the towns," Giap had told them. "People in towns have chairs, tables, shoes, beds, things you can't eat. Peasants have rice, eggs, chickens, pigs. Remember, rule the countryside and you rule the country."

But as he pursued this kind of line, I somehow sensed that there was a certain lack of conviction in Souphanouvong, that his rough garb and insurgent idiom was a pose.

To be sure, he was quick, intelligent, articulate, and he knew the jargon. Yet he was a Loatian prince, the product of a virtually medieval society. How much had he really changed?

As Souphanouvong chatted, I also felt that Souvanna Phouma regarded him with a measure of benign brotherly disapproval. And when he spoke, Souvanna Phouma made it plain that he had no business being in this appalling predicament.

American policy in Laos was to blame, Souvanna Phouma insisted. When he had visited Peking as premier in 1956, he recalled, Chinese Premier Chou En-lai had warned him: "We don't care how much U.S. aid you take, but we cannot tolerate American military bases so close to our borders."

Nevertheless, he went on, Washington was determined to make Laos an anti-Communist "bastion."

American officials thwarted his attempts to create a coalition with Souphanovong's Pathet Lao. He singled out one U.S. ambassador he especially disliked. "He was so cold, so Anglo-Saxon," Souvanna Phouma said.

"Well, we are ready to try again," he went on. "Maybe we will have peace after all some day."

ONE PARTY FOR UGANDA

NAIROBI, Kenya (WP) — Uganda's government served notice Wednesday that it is going to outlaw opposition political parties.

The announcement, made in the capital city, Kampala, came as the government asserted for the first time that the opposition party was linked to the attempted assassination of President Milton Obote in December.

Obote, who was almost completely recovered from the bullet that struck him in the jaw and narrowly missed killing him, was in Nairobi for a meeting with the presidents of Keyna and Tanzania, Jomo Kenyatta and Julius Nyerere.

The Kampala announcement said that the government would introduce a motion establishing Uganda as a one-party state when parliament meets April 20.

Frobisher Bay Key To Arctic Development

By ROBERT H. EASTBROOK

FROBISHER BAY — An eight-storey apartment building, replete with elevators, overlooks the frozen inlet. Adjoining it, a 49-room hotel also is nearing completion.

What makes these symbols of civilization unusual is that they are located on Baffin Island in Canada's Northwest Territories, once thought to be among the most forbidding regions on earth for human habitation.

Now some 2,100 persons—1,300 Eskimos and about 800 outsiders, live at least temporarily in Frobisher Bay. A complex of offices, housing, school, churches, stores, radio station and movie theatres has grown up around them.

Although sea transport is possible from early July until late October, harbor facilities are not particularly good. There is a 34-foot tide, and except for oil which is piped ashore directly, all cargoes including heavy equipment must be landed with barges.

But the airport makes possible a constant succession of flights serving the new oil and mineral developments in the Arctic.

Frobisher Bay, 1,250 miles northeast of Montreal, is an important stop en route to more remote points such as Resolute Bay, in addition to serving as the administrative centre for the eastern Arctic.

Now, while ice hummocks rim the snow-covered Koojesse Inlet on which the harbor is situated, as many as 20 jet freight flights a week fly in everything from food to furniture.

Still, prices are high, and there are charges of profiteering. Gàsoline is only 49 cents a gallon; but fresh milk is 85 cents a quart and bread 85 cents a loaf. Steak is $2.69 a pound.

At such rates, only employees eating in the government cafeteria enjoy fresh or frozen meat—although the Eskimos occasionally take off to hunt seal or caribou.

Families live for the most part on canned goods purchased through the Hudson's Bay Company store.

For purposes of administration, Frobisher Bay looks to the Northwest Territories government in Yellowknife, 1,500 miles west, rather than to the department of Indian affairs and northern development in Ottawa.

It sends an Eskimo elected member to the legislative council in Yellowknife.

For local purposed the town has an elected council and a town manager. He is William Grant, a one-time Scot who lives with his wife and two children in the house left by the American SAC commander.

One novel building development is the utilador, a conduit placed in the permafrost and well insulated, carrying hot and cold water pipes as well as the sewer line. Electricity and telephone connections are made separately.

Cooling water from the electrical plant furnished the hot water for this system and incidentally keeps the cold water and sewer pipes from freezing. It has several other advantages.

Alec Munanych, the project manager for Frobisher developers, has a plan to plant spruce and poplar trees in front of the apartment buildings, using the utilador to warm the earth enough to permit growth in an otherwise treeless land of rocks, snow and mud.

Bill Grant, the town manager, is planning a centennial swim in a nearby lake where he hopes the discharge of the cooling water will heat the temperature to 70 degrees by May 1.

"Partly cloudy with some light snow," said the radio announcer reading the weather forecast on my first morning at Frobisher.

"High today 10 above; low tonight 10 below. Present temperature 6 below zero. Quite a pleasant day, really."

It's just that awareness of the climate, like the permafrost, is never very far away. A foot below the surface, the ground remains permanently frozen.

Automobile engines are left running on errands, partly to keep heaters warm but partly to avoid troubles in starting. Most are kept in heated garages.

The exception is the ubiquitous snowmobile which, with its air-cooled engine and light oil, seems to crank up in any weather. There are more than 400 in Frobisher.

You can scarcely find an igloo anymore. Since the government decided every Eskimo should have permanent housing, the Eskimos have given up their traditional snow huts except for ceremonies and remote hunting expeditions.

Neat Eskimo prefabs here and at the nearby settlement of Apex Hill have most of the trappings of city civilization except television aerials (though there are communal washrooms and toilets at Apex Hill).

Bicycles and tricycles are left outside in the snow along with the occasional Husky and Eskimo sled, or kumatik, while on the roof may be part of a frozen caribou.

Why do people come north?

For a bearded young Canadian teacher and his pretty wife, off to teach at Pond Inlet on the northern tip of Baffin Island; it undoubtedly is idealism. Like the peace corps, a northern assignment offers a challenge.

For others, it undoubtedly is the fascination of the frontier. Some persons volunteer for repeated tours, after intervals "outside." Some administrators make a career of the north.

FINANCE MINISTER BENSON no doubt had in mind when he gave his controversial taxation theories to the public in the form of a white paper that he would be in for a stirring national debate. That was what he wished to stimulate. Certainly he gave months of warning that the white paper was to be issued, and months of discussion time have followed its publication. But, after a very slow and cautious start, the public debate on the white paper has in some cases reached a pitch which threatens to devalue the benefits of public argument — and this may have been unforeseen by Mr. Benson.

Too many opinions have hardened into the extremes of "all the white paper" and "none of the white paper," when obviously the rewarding course is to review the various features on their individual merits and give the finance minister a reasoned national consensus on what is acceptable to the people and what is not.

As a practical tree growing from the philosophical stump of the Carter Report, Mr. Benson's white paper carries heavy social implications along with its money-raising provisions. The broadened base for taxation, the shifting of incidence from the lowest income categories; the trends in property ownership, small business versus large, equalization of shares in the national wealth—these and other concepts have much greater implications than the mere raising of revenue.

To the extent that this applies, the controversy is all the more heated in support and in opposition. The whole procedure has been an experiment in participatory democracy—an attempt to present certain proposals and see how the people as a whole accept them. It will be a shame if too many intemperate and exaggerated postures indicate that the public is not ready for the reason and understanding that are necessary for this type of governance. Certainly, blanket denunciations of all the white paper proposals contribute little to the process.

Mr. Benson, in acknowledging some shortcomings in his proposals, invites alternative suggestions. These have been coming from many sections of the country, and it is gratifying that on average they show a spirit of fairness and reasonableness that speaks well for the Canadian temperament.

Capital gains taxation, new to most Canadians, has been widely accepted in principle, but an onerous application in a country still intent on encouraging domestic investment and Canadian ownership of resources and plants should be avoided. In particular, Mr. Benson has recognized that his plan for a five-year revaluation of capital gains contains serious problems and he now seeks a workable alternative. Certainly any system that forced owners to sell part of their share holdings to pay a tax every five years, particularly if this invited new foreign control, would not be acceptable. Likewise, the imposition of a capital gains tax on personal property such as homes and farms presents difficulties in operation and objections in principle.

The case of the small businessman, threatened with a sharply increased tax on the first $35,000 of annual profits, also calls for serious study. If Mr. Benson stays with this propoal, then some other way, as he suggests, should be found to permit small business operations to retain adequate operating capital.

These are among the controversial aspects of the white paper. Mr. Benson cannot, at any rate, claim that he has not been fully informed on the country-wide reception of his plans. Having given the public a good opportunity to express its opinions—and no doubt there will be more to come—he should be concerned to give them consideration in formulating the final taxation bill. He has asked what the people think, and he should be guided by their reasonable suggestions.

Paying for the Addict's Drugs

JUDGE SAMUEL J. TEDESCO, of Superior Court, Bridgeport, Conn., has produced an interesting economic breakdown on crime arising from drug use. The figures, covering a period in 1968, are of American origin, but indicate the disproportionate value of goods or money stolen in relation to the amount of narcotics purchased from the proceeds by the addict. Judge Tedesco said that about 75 per cent of the 20,000 serious crimes in one county in Connecticut were connected with narcotics.

"It is estimated," he said, "that for an addict to satisfy his daily needs he must steal approximately $400 to $500 per day, with a return on stolen goods of approximately $75 to $100 per day, since they can usually sell stolen goods for about 20 per cent of their actual value."

That, of course, is only a fraction of the story. Since the supplies are bought on the black market, the price charged for the narcotic is multiplied by many times its actual value.

The issue is not one solely of concern to the pusher, the addict or the person from whom goods are stolen. It is everyone's business insofar as thefts are committed from establishments selling to the public. Their losses, notably to shoplifters, become part of the expenses of operating a business and are conventionally offset by increasing the price to the paying customer. It has been estimated that shoplifters cause an annual loss of $2 billions in the United States, resulting in a 15 per cent addition to prices.

The price of the drug traffic in terms of human misery and degredation may never be fully assessed. In straight hard cash to the law-abiding citizen, it is high even before taxes are added to provide police, court and treatment centres for those who are arrested.

Back on the Sealing Grounds

IF ONE ACTIVITY IN RECENT years has brought Canada ill repute, it has been the widely publicized operations of seal hunters in the Gulf of St. Lawrence. Some have been accused of brutality that offended the sensitivities not only of foreigners, but of Canadians, whose protests led to federal regulations to curtail cruelty.

Early this month, Mr. John Lundrigan, Progressive Conservative member for Gander-Twillingate—a Newfoundland riding particularly concerned with the sealing industry—asked in the Commons that action be taken by the Secretary of State for External Affairs to clarify Canada's position, in an effort to correct the "irrational and uninformed elements of animal societies" picketing Canadian embassies in protest against alleged brutality.

But public concern for that side of the question may reasonably be jolted by the recent Reuters dispatch from Geneva reporting the account given to a Swiss action committee for the protection of seals by its observer. The observer said that during the hunt from last Friday to last Sunday, 25,000 pups had died and that they were clubbed to death in an operation as bloody and cruel as in the past. The observer implied that new regulations to eliminate apparent brutality "are not being observed on the spot."

This leaves the Canadian authorities with two obligations: first, to check the veracity of the report and take appropriate action if it is false; second, to proceed immediately against any sealers who may have disregarded the regulations established to keep wanton cruelty on the sealing grounds to a minimum.

ETHICAL TEACHINGS ON POLLUTION BY CAMPBELL

QUEBEC'S CREDITISTES

By RICHARD PURSER

Unpredictables Led by an Unknown

CAMILLE Samson is the new name to watch in Quebec's frenetic politics. A 35-year-old car dealer from the mining city of Rouyn in a largely wilderness area of northwestern Quebec, he was elected on Sunday as head of the newly-formed provincial branch of the Ralliement des Creditistes. He could well become a force of sorts here, beyond what can be anticipated on the basis of available evidence. He could even hold the balance of power after the April 29 provincial election.

Purser

Mr. Samson's name is little known even inside Quebec and his party is little known outside Quebec—except that it is significantly represented by 14 members of the federal parliament in Ottawa, led by the magnetic Real Caouette — who is also a car dealer from Rouyn.

In mid-March, when Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand called the election, the sole Creditiste member of the National Assembly, Dr. Gaston Tremblay, predicted with assurance that the party would choose as its provincial leader a man "prestigious in politics." This can hardly be said of Mr. Samson, whose name had scarcely ever graced the pages of Quebec newspapers until recently.

The only prestigious figure the Creditistes have is Mr. Caouette himself, who was unwilling to give up his secure position at Ottawa to risk appearing on the provincial political scene as a newcomer. If he had so condescended, the importance of the Creditiste role in the election would be assured. Now, it is only an unpredictable possibility — but still very much a possibility.

Mr. Caouette did not help anything by his own ludicrous political manoeuvring at the Sunday leadership convention. He put in his appearance in a way that inadvertently led his wildly happy supporters into believing he was submitting himself to a draft. But he had never intended to allow himself to be drafted except after his party had already won a majority in the Assembly. He turned out to be present only to promote his own choice for the provincial leadership, one Yvon Dupuis, a singularly unwanted man, mention of whose name almost demoralized the convention on the spot.

Mr. Dupuis, once a federal Liberal cabinet minister and now moderator of a Montreal "hot line" radio program, never even got on the ballot. The candidates finally defeated by Mr. Samson, who won 815 out of 1,035 votes, were Bernard Dumont, a federal MP, and Rene Lindsay, totally unknown.

Rural Appeal

It was not a very inspiring show, but Mr. Samson, who is not without respect in party circles, has going for him a solid party organization and a great deal of discontent among Quebec voters. Creditiste militants are highly dedicated and will do campaign work without pay. The party is almost worshipped in the 14 ridings which it represents federally, and these areas alone are equal to at least 30 seats in the provincial Assembly.

The lure of the Creditistes in Quebec is difficult to describe. Its spokesmen spout assorted varieties of Social Credit monetary theory, but its appeal is mainly as a rural little man's party. It is more federalist than any other provincial party, even the Liberal, because its economically insecure supporters are fearful of any boat-rocking. It is religiously oriented. Dr. Tremblay is the Assembly's most consistent spokesman for Roman Catholic interests, and both the January convention that decided on entry into provincial politics and Sunday's leadership convention were held in a parish recreation hall.

Solid Organization

The party appeals to a brand of rural Quebec conservatism. The ruling National Union represents the other, nationalistic, brand. It is too far removed from the Liberal party or the separatist Parti Quebecois to lure many votes from either. But it could well lure votes from the National Union, which Mr. Caouette holds in contempt for its incompetence. "The provincial government was going to have to raise taxes in next week's budget," Mr. Caouette said when the election was called, "and it didn't want to do that. The way out was calling for a snap election. The government itself is broke. It can't pay its debts and the banks are refusing to extend any more credit."

The Creditiste line could prove quite telling in at least some parts of the province, although the belief in National Union financial incompetence will benefit the Liberals in the under-represented urban areas.

Given the little time available for candidate selection and campaign organization, there is scarcely any chance of Mr. Samson becoming the next premier of Quebec. But there is at least a chance of his being able to say who does.

Disintegration of the State Department

By FRANK MANKIEWICZ and TOM BRADEN from Washington

THE fault is not with Henry Kissinger, a man driven by no ambition other than the admirable desire to be correct — but it is nevertheless true that Richard Nixon's White House has taken over the foreign policy function of the United States to such a degree that the State Department can hardly be said these days to do anything more than preserve an ancient routine.

The new situation is pointed up by the labors of Clark Mollenhoff, the president's staff investigator who is trying to discover why the State Department gave the White House bad advice on Biafra. It is a good subject for investigation because in this instance the Kissinger staff which normally rides herd on the department permitted the department to take over. It may be the last time. Predictably, Mollenhoff will discover why.

He will discover first that there is no culprit. The State Department has evolved over the years into a vast and anonymous collective. After a man's memorandum has been "co-ordinated" by almost countless numbers of associates, subordinates and counterparts in other branches of the department it has lost whatever individuality might have earned it praise, blame or even the attribute of clear sense.

Moral Terms Overlooked

Second, Mollenhoff will discover that the department's advice on Biafra was not necessarily bad. Wrong it certainly was because it is wrong to let people starve. But the great collective does not think in moral terms. It thinks in terms of "the long-range interest of the United States," and so it took into consideration the attitude of Nigeria toward aid shipments to the foe, the oils of Nigeria and the possibility that the attitude of Nigeria toward aid shipments to the foe might cause oil to flow more freely East than West.

"Factoring in," as the phrase goes, the known desire of the president to do something for the starving Biafrans, the "Fudge Factory," as former Undersecretary Nicholas Katzenbach used to refer to his place of employment, came up eventually with the suggestion that plane loads of supplies stand by but not take off until Nigeria approved. A lot of people starved in the meantime.

In the end, Mollenhoff will learn what other graduates of the bureaucracy have learned — that it is a short step from considering that if it is dangerous to "long-range interests" to send supplies to Biafra, then the Biafrans don't really need the supplies. This is an argument for which the department's observers in Nigeria could and did supply evidence.

The evidence from Biafra itself was to the contrary — but it came from "outside channels." It came from reporters and network broadcasters — men not trained in the duties of observing events from diplomats' posts, and certainly men — in the department's austere view — who were not in touch with the Nigerian "realities."

Thus, Mr. Nixon, who had ordered planes of food for Biafran relief, was made to look powerless and Undersecretary of State Elliot Richardson went on television to tell people that the situation in Biafra was not as bad as they thought — an observation he must now regret.

There comes a time in the history of any institution when it falls of its own weight. The State Department — now 25,000 strong — cannot give clear advice any more because it has too many people and too much paper and too much institutional history and pride.

The fall of state began with Secretary Edward Stettinius under Franklin Roosevelt. There was a brief revival while Dean Acheson organized the top layers solidly. But it has disintegrated since, and William Rogers, the affable and intelligent man who now heads it, does not really seem to care.

That is why Henry Kissinger with his staff of 40 men in the White House has the power, and why the Biafran incident will only serve to enhance it.

Looking Back

From the Times of March 26, 1910:

There is nothing more directly indicative of growth of a healthy robust national spirit than the enthusiasm with which the young men of this country are hastening to enroll themselves in the militia. There may have been a time when the above comment was perhaps not so truly applicable to the defence forces organized in British Columbia.

LETTER

Local Industry

Recently we read, from the pen of Jack Scott, such headlines as "Abandoned Yard: Tombstones of an Industrial Future" and how the industrial future of this area has declined or the future of Victoria rests only with tourism, Government payrolls and service industries. He then went on to include a statement that the Victoria Labor Council must come to the aid of the people employed in these remaining sources of income.

I hope most readers know that most of these remarks were far from correct.

Unfortunately, "Industry" is not a popular word in Victoria, bringing with it visions of dirt, smoke, pollution and something completely out of place in our beautiful surroundings. This need not be the case. Surely many have driven from the Toronto Airport into Toronto and marvelled at the hundreds of small secondary manufacturing concerns and noted with pleasure how neat they were — good architecture, landscaped gardens and tastefully designed signs.

Where do our young people go? As many of us know only too well most have to leave Victoria to find employment. Industry provides a very large portion of the jobs and with it the challenge that goes along with productivity and creativeness and the appeal for our young. We could have this industry, but let us come back to this later. First, take a look at the Service and Tourist industries.

Service Industry: Probably no other community in North America is so oversupplied with retail stores and other types of service industry as Greater Victoria. Most of the giants that you find in Canada's largest cities, as well as from the U.S.A., are crowded in here.

Tourist Industry: Let's not lose our head over this one. Its nice cream for the pie during the vacation months and probably some further conventions may be attracted here in the off-season with some better convention facilities, but remember this is an on-and-off business subject to the quirks of stock markets, the U.S. economy and to some degree "White Papers." The potential for steady employment is poor.

Secondary industry holds greatest potential: A friend of mine who was active in industrial development work here for many years has a convincing story. Victoria should count its industrial blessings, he says. Unlike industrial Eastern Canada, we have good ports that are open the year around, which eliminates stockpiling and facilitates shipping.

We are surrounded with raw products and abundantly supplied by our primary industries. Adequate electric power, easily heated plants and cheaper plant construction costs due to material supply and milder climate. Adequate good water supply, on the great Pacific trading rim, nice living, working and recreational conditions.

Why then has secondary industry failed so far? Here is the shocker! Says my friend, it's labor and labor leadership. Whether Victoria's working non-professionals are more gullible or just bad at hindsight, it appears that they have been led to their doom by asking for too much and ending up with nothing.

Here are some of his examples:

V.M.D. was a low-overhead plant, but closed when the wages paid became the highest in the world and the men and their leaders were asking for more. This plant could be operating today if the men had been sensible and worked for the competitive wages that many were happy to get when they left Victoria.

I am told the same thing happened to a Victoria furniture factory with a staff of 80, a biscuit factory, a shingle plant, a boat works, some fabricating operations, an upholstering plant, a sheet metal works and several others.

Kiss of death: Another friend that was at one time prepared to risk his capital in secondary industry said, "Unless it is a highly sophisticated industry that needs little or no staff you are licked. Just as soon as you show some slight signs of success in moves a union leader and that is the beginning of the end. You may as well stop right there. You can manufacture here if your wages are competitive with other Canadian wages and not equal to or more than the U.S.A., but you cannot support any more." My friend went on to point out that most finished products represented 60 per cent for labor so it was fundamental that the price for labor had to be competitive.

A thriving secondary industry: I am convinced that we could have had a thriving secondary industry on Southern Vancouver Island with our young people happily working and earning competitive wages here. Labor Council may have temporarily priced our secondary industry out of existence, but surely a little hindsight and a goodly proportion of foresight can bring back secondary industry and jobs at sensible competitive wages—certainly let's not give the people in the service job area the same poor guidance and treatment.

Black Days: Personally I couldn't care less if "there are black days ahead for the organizer in Victoria" as Scott's article stated. What I am concerned about is good sensible challenging employment for the working force. If we get back to paying more for advancement and not just more for the same job, then we might get somewhere and avoid inflation as well. — "Mr. Concerned."

Inside, the Schoolboy Taunts of 'Savage' Hurt

By RUDY PLATIEL

HOBBEMA, Alta.—"I hate going there," she said and the word hate seemed strange and out of place coming from her.

Shirley Wolfe is a tall, willowy, shy 16-year-old whose long ebony hair hung like an oval frame around her face as she sat in her father's black leather easy chair, looking at the floor.

She is an Indian—one of about 220 Indian children who go from the Hobbema Reserve, 50 miles south of Edmonton, to integrated white schools in neighboring towns, Edmonton or other centres.

About 900 Indian children go to a school on the reserve but each year about 50 leave it for integrated white schools, to take their education beyond Grade 9.

Two-thirds of them become dropouts.

"I hate going there—I just don't like it," Miss Wolfe said as she talked about the integrated school she attends in nearby Ponoka. It wasn't the teachers, she added, but the students.

"As soon as you're done with classes, they don't bother with you any more," she said.

But it is more than that. Sometimes it's the little things. Like the white boy who made a practice of taunting her almost to tears by calling her a savage.

And when she and her sister Jeannette, 18, walked past an elementary school in the town, some of the white children would stop playing and call them squaws . . . . among other names.

They pretended to ignore it—pretended it didn't matter. But inside, it hurt.

'I Believe in Education'

Mrs. Wolfe, a mother of 10, walked into the room where her two daughters were talking to the white reporter.

"That one," she said, indicating Shirley, "wanted to change schools and go to Edmonton but we didn't want her to have to leave home. We figure she is getting a good education in Ponoka. I believe in education."

Chief Maurice Wolfe, the girls' father, a youthful looking 40-year-old who regularly takes four of his sons to Ponoka for judo lessons, says he doesn't run into very much discrimination.

"I run into it once in a while but I don't let it get to me. It doesn't do any good. It's like it never happened. This is what I try to tell the kids," he said.

Statistics compiled by the Indian Association of Alberta show that 97 per cent of the Indian children in Canada who enter Grade 1 do not reach Grade 12. Among the non-Indian population of Canada, only 12 per cent fail to go that far.

Why?

"One of the very serious deterrents to Indian children getting a complete education in this modern world is the fact that the Indian pupils too frequently face various kinds of discrimination during their educational careers," Harold Cardinal, president of the association, told the Alberta Legislature's standing committee on public affairs, agriculture and education.

Strapped for Mistakes

He suggested that school boards and their teaching staff be liable to prosecution where they discriminate against Indian students.

In Lac La Biche, 140 miles north of Edmonton, some Metis parents sit around a table talking about school and their children.

They complain that children are strapped for being wrong in their work. One mother said her son was strapped for being slow.

"He's smart enough but he's slow even at home. That's the way he is," she said.

One teacher, a mother said, looked into a girl's lunchpail at some sandwiches containing meat paste and asked the child: "What are you bringing to school—dog food?"

The mothers complained that the Metis children are often called welfare babies—but even an attempt to dress up a child can backfire.

They told of one girl whose mother went all out to provide her with new clothes. She was asked by the teacher, in front of other children; "Where did you get clothes like that? Isn't your father on welfare?"

"There are a lot of middle-class snobs whose approach is middle-class and who look upon poverty as sin," said Jack Shields, executive director of Alberta New Start Inc. and a former teacher and principal who has been involved with native students.

There are two types of prejudice, he said.

More Dangerous in Class

"The first is where someone says 'No, I won't hire you because you're Indian'. Well, at least the Indian can react to that and tell him where to stick his job.

"But the second that you sometimes find in the classroom is more dangerous," he said. It occurs when a teacher looks at a child and thinks "You're not capable—I can't expect you to be in the top 20—there's not much use trying. So as long as you come regularly and sit in your seat . . . ."

Too many well-meaning people take the attitude that because a person is a Metis or Indian he can't be expected to be a regular worker, be reliable or produce like his white co-worker, Mr. Shields said. They start off expecting to make allowances for this behavior.

"If you expect certain behavior from a person, you're likely to get it," he said. One of the most successful classes in New Start, a retraining program, was a welding class taught by two men from private industry. Mr. Shields said they expected everyone to produce and made exceptions for no one.

Mr. Cardinal, citing cases of discrimination to the standing committee of the Legislature, told of a Grade 9 Indian student who was given badly worn textbooks while other students received better-quality books.

The principal explained that the old books were issued because he expected the Indian student to drop out anyway, Mr. Cardinal said.

How much are Indian children influenced by the expectations of others?

Many Indian leaders believe that one reason for the high dropout rate and the failure of education to produce drastic change is the lack of direct control or involvement of Indians in the education of their children.

Mr. Cardinal said that the Alberta association has come to the conclusion that even one Indian trustee on a large school board is useless in bringing significant change for Indians.

He said the association wants time to study how the education boundaries of a system can be devised to give Indian people more meaningful control over the education of their children. Until then, he said the association would prefer no change. At present, integration for Indian children means going off the reserve to a school in a white community.

But at the Ermineskin School at Hobbema, this is being reversed—although the school staff say it is still too soon to evaluate the results.

Seeking Relationship

Rev. Joseph Regnier, an Oblate missionary who is principal of the school, said the school was approached by a committee from a district separate school board to explore the possibility of some of their students attending the school.

Father Regnier said Ermineskin has excellent facilities, which in some ways are superior to those available in district schools—but he felt the white parents' motive was to try to establish a meaningful relationship between the races.

The approach came after an Edmonton television station broacast an interview with several Indian students from Hobbema who complained of discrimination and said they no longer wanted to be called Indians because of the image white society has of them.

"I would go into town afterward and people would say to me 'Is that what you really think? Is that how you feel'?" Mrs. Teresa Wildcat, a member of the Ermineskin School advisory committee, said.

Since last September, Ermineskin's kindergarten has been integrated with white pupils from nearby Wetaskiwin. White students are also coming for Grade 7 shop classes but because of the lateness of the decision, it was not possible to devise a schedule to have them join Indian students. Officials hope to work out a new schedule to mix them with Indian students.

'Little Chance to Mix'

"The white pupils feel short-changed because they don't have a chance to mix enough," Father Regnier said.

The kindergarten integration is beginning to smooth out despite a wary start and a little tension.

Edgar Wolf, the white vice-principal, said the first reaction was for Indian pupils to avoid the white children who were more open, more exuberant and outgoing.

"They do have some prejudices—on both sides," he said.

He said one approach was to get the children involved in school sports.

"Unless they'll play together, they bloody well won't work together," Mr. Wolf said.

"I think the more they get involved, the better they will react. I think at the kindergarten level this (discrimination) will break down but you can't break it down unless the parents support that.

"I feel that the (white) parents here are willing to have this tendency broken down but I think there might be still a barrier in their minds. They may be able to accept the parents of an Indian at school but they haven't yet accepted the drunken Indian."

Mr. Wolf said the children of white teachers at the school seemed to mix better and more easily than white children from Wetaskiwin.

"There are lots of good Indians on the reserve and we see and talk about them. The kids here become aware that there are good Indians and bad Indians.

"They also come to realize that there are white drunks and Indian drunks whereas I'm not sure that the Wetaskiwin kids make that distinction."

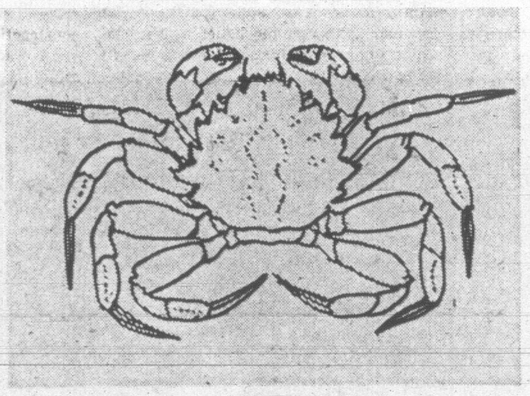
Spider Crabs a Sluggish Lot

By DR. CLIFFORD CARL



Horse Crab. Shell to 3½ inches.

While most crabs have a somewhat spidery look, thanks to their general shape and numerous legs, some convey this impression more than others and these sometimes go under the descriptive name of spider crabs. They tend to have relatively small bodies, greatly elongated legs and a rather sluggish disposition.

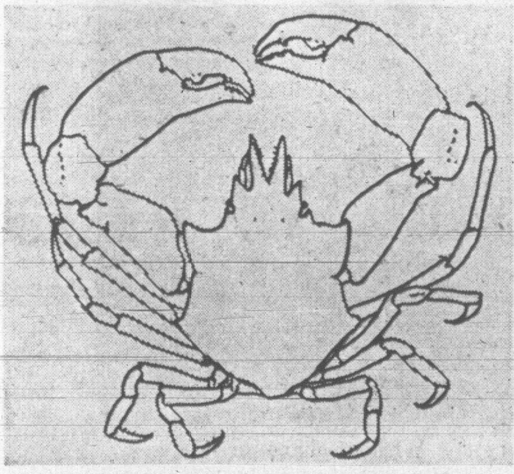
Several members of this group are also commonly called kelp crabs because they are regularly found in eel grass beds and among other types of sea weeds. Basically they are vegetarians browsing on the dense growth of weeds in which they hide but they will also eat any animal material that happens to come their way.

Our most common species is the Graceful Kelp Crab (Pugettia gracilis) which has a somewhat spiny, shield-shaped shell and the typically long walking legs. The whole animal is kelp-colored or red, with a translucency suggesive of some types of plastic. It clings tenaciously to whatever support it happens to be feeding on, using the combined effect of the four pairs of walking legs each of which ends in a sharp recurving claw.



Graceful Kelp Crab. Shell to 1½ inches.

A similar species often found in the same habitat is Pugettia productus, most easily distinguished by its general brown color decorated with bright reds and yellows on the undersurface.

Another unusual feature of these crabs is that mature males sport enormously enlarged pincers like gigantic boxing gloves which gives them a peculiar pugilistic look. Ordinarily, appendages in crustacea are designed to permit easy shedding of the skin which means that legs, pincers and other extensions seldom end in swollen parts that would prevent easy withdrawal during the moulting process.

In the kelp crabs the pincers are not unduly large in females and immature males so no problem seems to exist with these individuals, but the old males with the greatly expanded "hands" would seem to present a high hazard risk.

In fact it seems mechanically impossible for such a creature to remove the massive bulk of its hands through the narrow constriction of the "wrist" in the normal way. The answer to this intriguing problem seems to be that these individuals avoid the problem simply by not moulting. In other words when they reach this stage of development no further skin changes occur and therefore no further growth takes place.

One concludes that if an old male kelp crab loses a limb it will not be replaced during the remainder of its life. Old males also often are covered with large barnacles and other encrusting forms.

Also frequenting the same general weedy areas but representing a different group of crabs is the so-called horse crab (Telmessus), a bright yellow fellow decorated with many short, bristly hairs over the surface of the body and limbs. The horse crab is an unusually active creature most commonly seen scuttling over the bottom just below the low tide level. More often however, the presence of this crab in an area is indicated by piles of dismembered cast yellow shells on the shore at the tide line.

About Vietnam, I don't see anything so desperately wrong with the war itself. It's dirty, to be sure, but so are all wars. It's an imperialist war, but we'll always have those so long as we have empires — British, American, Russian, whatever. What's wrong about this war is that young Americans are being compelled, through the draft, to fight in it even though they don't believe in it. It seems to me that the American Empire should fight its colonial wars as the British Empire used to fight them — that is, with volunteers. If the war was unpopular (as the one in Vietnam appears to be) there wouldn't be enough volunteers to fight it, and so the Americans would have to pull out.

Lincoln Steffens liked to tell a story about going for a walk with Satan. The Evil One kept leaving the path to stamp out a piece of truth growing here, a piece growing there. When Satan went right past one piece of truth, Steffens asked him, "Why didn't you stamp that one out?" Satan replied, "I don't need to; people are forming an organization around it."

Volunteer Hours Given Pearkes Clinic

"We just couldn't get along without them," administrator Margaret McClung told the 17th annual meeting of the Cerebral Palsy Association of Lower Vancouver Island Thursday night. The association operates the clinic, in new quarters off Arbutus Road.

The case load climbed from 103 to 162 over last year, the meeting of about 100 was told. The new facilities provide education and therapy for handicapped children and also treat a smaller group of retarded children.

President Fred Tanner said the new building had measured up in every way and a growing community image has produced a steadily growing number of bequests and donations.

"We have had some very trying meetings with school board officials and elected representatives," he said, "who do not find the funds readily available to contribute what we feel is a fair proportion of the cost of the educational aspect of our program.

"There is a definite lack of recognition . . . of the need to educate as well as treat the children in our care."

The association honored Mrs. W. A. C. Bennett and Maj.-Gen. George Pearkes, former lietuenant-governor, for long service by naming them honorary members. Both were at the meeting.

Toronto Girl On Schedule

DETROIT (CP) — Violetta Nesukaitis has winning the United States national women's table tennis championship down to a system. She does it every other year.

Recently, the 18-year-old Toronto high school whiz won the women's title for the third time, this time beating U.S. star Irene Ogus 21-10, 21-11 and 21-18 in the final.

Violetta started her assault on national championships by winning the Canadian women's crown in 1966 when she was 14 and capping that with a U.S. women's championship the day before she turned 15. Two years later, at 16, she won the U.S. crown again and continued the cycle by trampling all competition Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Cold hard facts about soft clean heat

Electric Heat gives you all that. Constant, even heat throughout the entire house. Plus individual temperature control. Each room is as warm or as cool as you like it to be.

Then add the advantages of totally clean, completely silent heat. Add the space you gain because no furnace is required, no cumbersome tank. Add the time you save cleaning grimy walls, consider never having to order heating fuel again.

Beginning to make sense? Find out about Electric Heat. Call your B.C. Hydro office.

Without charge or obligation you can have a recommendation of the type and size of electric heating best suited to your home and an honest estimate of what it would cost.

SHIP HIJACKERS EXPLAIN PLOT

'We Were Helping Nixon De-Escalate War'

LONDON (AP) — The two Americans who hijacked a U.S. munitions ship to Cambodia told British correspondents they did it to stop 10,000 tons of napalm being dropped on Vietnam.

"President Nixon tells the world he wants to de-escalate the war, so we thought we'd help him a bit," said 25-year-old Clyde McKay.

McKay and fellow-Californian Alvin Glatkowski, 20, were interviewed by Ian Brodie, Far East correspondent of The Daily Express, and Fred Emery, special correspondent of The Times.

"From talking to the hijackers it was obvious that McKay worked out the plot and convinced Glatkowski to go along with it," Brodie wrote.

McKay said it was on Friday, March 13, that he and Glatkowski ordered Capt. Donald Swann of the Columbia Eagle at gunpoint to head for Cambodia.

The captain was ordered to tell the mate there was a bomb aboard—and 25 crew members were told to abandon ship. Thirteen crew remained aboard.

TOOK PEP PILLS

The two stayed awake during the 700-mile journey by taking amphetamine and diet pills which they got from the ship's stores. They said they resented suggestions made by the crew members that they were "pill-popping, marijuana-smoking hippies."

"We couldn't become intoxicated in any way because there were only two of us with a pistol each," McKay said.

The pair laughed at suggestions that the hijacking was a plot by the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency to supply arms to the new right-wing Cambodian government.

"More like an SDS plot," said Glatkowski. SDS is the Students for a Democratic Society—a militant organization whose aims they said they support.

McKay said the ship was carrying the napalm for U.S. planes based in Thailand.

"If I had continued to work in the ship, I would have played a part in murder by delivering napalm bombs which would be dropped on people," he said.

Asked what they intend to do now, McKay said, if he left Cambodia, it probably would be for Cuba. Glatkowski said he intends "to carry on my actions against the American government."

FORUM PLAYS McPHERSON

Levity Mixed With Gravity Lends Sanity to Legality

Divorce of Future Just Like Marriage Ceremony Only Spell Name Backwards and Say 'I Don't!'

"If I was driving home from a party and thought my driving wasn't up to standards and had half a mickey of liquor on the front seat and saw a police car coming up behind me, if I pulled over to the curb, jumped out and finished off the rest of the bottle, would I only be charged with drinking in a public place."

That was one question that didn't get serious consideration from the five-lawyer legal forum panel Wednesday, but it brought the house down.

Five hundred people showed up at McPherson Playhouse for the fifth annual forum sponsored by the Times and CJVI.

Panelists including city solicitor T. P. O'Grady, Ted Pollard, Donald Farquhar and Allan Patterson. Lloyd McKenzie, QC, was moderator.

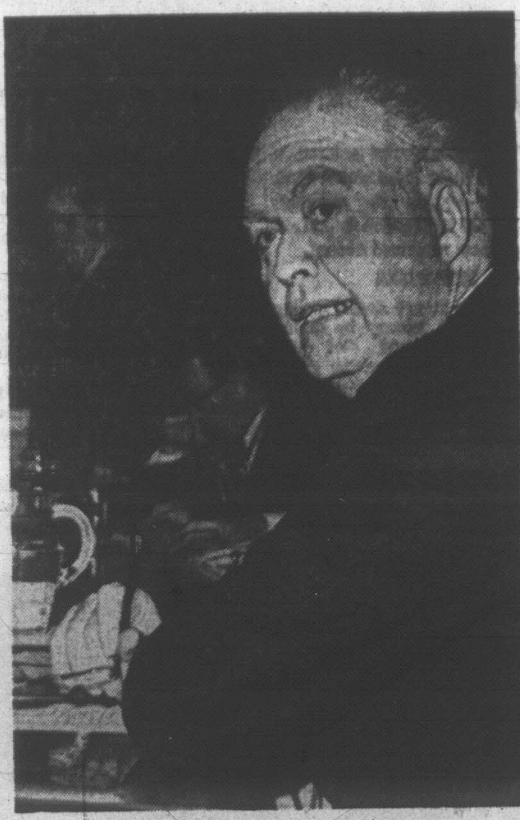
Of several dozen questions asked, a considerable number related to marriage and divorce.

Farquhar commended women, who, because they can't afford lawyer's fees, get a divorce without legal aid.

He pointed out, however, those kinds of divorces are limited to cases of desertion for at least five years or separation for at least three.

"I think society would be mistaken if it thought they could get a divorce by filling out a form."

He said lawyers would have to be hired in cases where, for example, adultery or custody of children was involved.



MACKENZIE . . . moderator

O'GRADY . . . city solicitor

FARQUHAR . . . Pearlman and Lindholm

Pricing Selves Out of Market

Pollard suggested since new legislation has made it easier to obtain a divorce, lawyers have been "pricing themselves out of the divorce field."

O'Grady said people shouldn't get the idea they can handle other kinds of court matters on their own:

"The only occasion where it would profit a man to take the case himself is where it is certain there is no hope of recovering out-of-pocket expenses from the other side."

McKenzie speculated on divorces of the future:

"In this permissive age there's a tendency to take divorce more lightly than in the past.

"The divorce of the future could become like marriage.

"It may just be a question of spelling your name backwards and saying 'I renounce this marriage'."

On the question of lawyer's fees panelists agreed 25 per cent of a claim would be very high for this province, but Patterson pointed out in the United States lawyers usually set a minimum of 33 and one-third per cent of any claim sought in traffic accidents.

One questioner wanted to know if a person must accompany a police officer if the officer asks him to go to the police station for questioning, and whether he must answer questions.

Pollard said police must have some obvious reason for asking a person to make the trip to headquarters.

If the person feels there is no obvious reason it's up to the officer to arrest him and state the offence with which he is charged.

PATTERSON . . . Clay and Co.

POLLARD . . . Cox, Taylor, Pollard and Co.

Best Advice: Keep Mum . . .

O'Grady said suspects are not required to answer police questions, but it is often the wisest thing to do, especially if the person is innocent.

McKenzie added:

"The best advice a lawyer can give a client is not to answer any questions, esepcially if you're guilty.

"Many convictions flow from the mouth of the suspect—he just can't resist answering questions."

O'Grady added under legislation currently before the legislature to amend the Summary Convictions Act a suspect held in police custody will be guaranteed one phone call during the first 12 hours of his arrest.

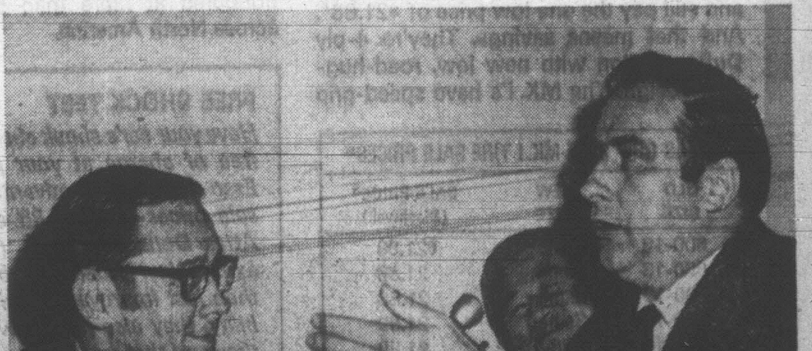
He termed the amount of time "not unreasonable" because if a suspect was allowed to phone too soon he might use the call as a means of tipping off a partner that "the heat was on," before police could catch him.

Another questioner asked whether lawyers or courts can put a monetary value on pain suffeered by a claimant for purposes of collecting from an insurance company.

McKenzie replied the value of pain is "purely arbitrary."

"All that a lawyer can do is guess what a judge will think it is worth."

JAMMING McPHERSON PLAYHOUSE, this crowd isn't out to view the latest repertory offering. It's out to participate in some legal theatrics with a panel of lawyers who answered questions from the public relating to law and legal procedure. The annual legal forum, co-sponsored by the Times and CJVI, drew 500 Wednesday night.



AIDING AND ABETTING questioner Doug Morgan of Saanich, who wants to know some of the sticky legal wickets of mortgaging, CJVI's Fraser McAlpine provides amplification. Radio-men assisted in forum operation by supplying electronic gear.

Big Four Conference Opens

BERLIN (Reuters)—Ambassadors of the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain and France opened today the first Big Four conference on Berlin for 11 years and then adjourned after a three-hour session.

A brief official statement said the next meeting would be April 28 and the ambassadors had agreed the sessions, seeking to reduce tension in the Berlin area, would be confidential and their progress would be given minimum publicity.

The major Western aim at the talks is to improve movement of people and goods between Berlin and the West and freedom for West Berliners to cross the Berlin Wall to visit relatives in the eastern half of the city.

The Western ambassadors in Bonn, Kenneth Rush of the United States, Sir Roger Jackling of Britain and Francois Seydoux de Clausonne of France, are conferring with Pyotr Abrassimov of the Soviet Union, Moscow's envoy in East Berlin.

Before driving over to West Berlin for the conference Abrassimov called on Foreign Minister Otto Winzer of East Germany.

The East German news agency ADN said the discussions between the two men were in an atmosphere of complete agreement.

The ambassadors and their aides faced each other across a square table in a lofty marble pillared chamber of the long-disused Allied Control Council building.

ROOM HISTORIC

It was in this room, which has a fresco depicting triumphant angels blowing trumpets in a billowy heaven, that the foreign ministers of the big powers held an abortive conference on ending the division of Germany in 1954.

The four ambassadors are the successors of the former Allied high commissioners who ran occupied Germany after the Second World War.

The Allied Control Council ceased to function when Soviet Marshal Vladimir Sokolovski walked out on March 20, 1948, to protest Western plans to introduce currency and economic reforms in their occupation zones.

The Soviet Union imposed the Berlin blockade the same year and soon afterward Germany was divided into two states.

The opening session was expected to be followed by a long, drawn out series of negotiating sessions two or three times a month and some tough bargaining between the West and the Russians.

EXPECTS BENEFITS

West Berlin's mayor, Klaus Schuetz, said in an interview that his short-term expectations are the elimination of possibilities for restrictions and harassment on the access routes to Berlin as well as freedom of West Berliners to cross the Berlin Wall to visit friends and relatives in the East.

The long-term goal would be acceptance of West Berlin's status, as it has developed during the last 25 years, including the special responsibilities of the Western protector powers and the city's links with West Germany.

Western diplomats believe the Russians are genuinely interested in contributing to stabilizing the situation in and around Berlin and that there are grounds to hope for a useful outcome.

Abortion Reform

A woman member of Parliament and crusader for abortion legislation reform will speak in Victoria Thursday, April 2.

The meeting is open to the public.

Honest Too Late

BEAVER FALLS, Pa. (AP) — Sixteen years ago, a thief stole Helen Fogel's purse containing $142. This week her wallet and the money turned up in the mail at the local police station. Police turned the package over to a daughter of Mrs. Fogel, who died three years ago.

SOLDIERS RELIEVED OF MAIL OPERATION

WASHINGTON (AP) —The Pentagon reported today that 15,000 of the 25,000 national guardsmen and reservists called out for the New York postal strike are being relieved from active duty.

"About 10,000 military personnel will be retained on active duty for the present to be available to the post office department if required," the Pentagon said.

Smallest Province Avoids Tax Boost

By HOWIE COLLINS

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — The Liberal government of Prince Edward Island forecast a small surplus and no tax increases for 1970-71 Wednesday when it brought down its budget —likely the last before an election.

Provincial Treasurer T. Earle Hickey told the house that the province would have an over-all surplus of $184,472 with total revenue of $81,252,458 and total expenditure of $81,067,986. It is the first budgeted surplus in 10 years.

On current account the surplus was estimated at $2,952,444 with spending of $71,261,357 and revenue of $74,213,801. Mr. Hickey said ordinary expenditures were estimated to be up $12,000,000 or 20.2 per cent over last year, while revenue would increase $14,770,830 or 24.9 per cent.

Premier Alex Campbell, who said in January this would be an election year, had been expected by some to call an election after the budget speech rather than face defeat on the floor of the house. But he moved an adjournment to 2:30 p.m. today.

With the speaker able to vote only to break a tie, the government could be defeated if all 15 Progressive Conservative members and the one independent Liberal vote against the 16 Liberals in the 32-seat house.

SAYS MEANS NOTHING

Alban Farmer (PC—Queens 6th), opposition financial critic, said the estimated surplus is meaningless since the government cannot keep within budget estimates. He said that in the last year the government had to obtain $5,143,181 through cabinet orders-in-council because some departments were overspending.

Mr. Hickey told the house the largest source of revenue—$48,331,448, or 65 per cent of the total—will come from the federal government through equalization payments and tax agreements. Of this just over $23,000,000 would come under the contentious development plan.

The largest single expenditure would be $19,720,766 for education, an increase from $14,972,375 last year.

The provincial treasurer said the medical-care insurance program, which comes into effect Dec. 1, will cost about $1,240,000 in its first four months. Federal government contributions under the shared-cost program will be $786,600.

Mr. Mickey forecast revenue of $68,825,182 for the current fiscal year ending next Tuesday, up from last year's estimate of $68,402,667. Total expenditure is forecast at $69,194,238, down from the estimated $69,678,632.

Fishermen Hard Hit By Mercury Pollution

TILBURY, Ont. (CP) — Bewildered, and uncertain how they're going to earn a living, about 30 commercial fishermen meeting in this community near Windsor barraged a federal fisheries department official Wednesday with questions that for the most part went unanswered.

How long will it take to clear Lake St. Clair of the mercury pollution that has contaminated the pickerel, they asked. "Two months, two years?"

And why doesn't the government close down Dow Chemical in Sarnia, identified as a heavy polluter?

"They're putting us out of business entirely," said D. F. Jubenville, 56, who's been fishing the lake since he was 13 and estimates he now has $250,000 tied up in equipment.

HOLD FISH FOR STUDY

Fishing has not been banned but all catches are being seized by the fisheries department and held, at the department's expense, on the chance the fish will later be found safe. Most of the fishermen feel it's not worth the chance.

The seizure comes as a rough blow to the local lake fishermen because they depend on the last two months of the season, April and May, for the bulk of their catch.

Many people in the area are skeptical of the department's estimate that two meals of St. Clair pickerel, found to contain seven parts per million of mercury, would be the maximum safe level for a human in a year.

"Heck, we've been eating these all winter and nothing's happened," said Mr. Jubenville.

Support came Wednesday from a Detroit newspaper which said "foreign" studies showed a lethal dose is three grams and a person would have to eat 600 of the Lake St. Clair pickerel to reach that level.

Federal sources said the recent deaths of 43 Japanese attributed to mercury poisoning occurred after the victims had eaten contaminated fish every day for a week.

A Michicagn department of natural resources official said Wednesday samples of all game fish in area waterways, including pickerel, rock bass, crappie, perch, pike, muskie and channel catfish, are being taken for analysis by the U.S. federal food and drug administration.

He added that the U.S. federal water pollution control administration was to begin taking samples of St. Clair Lake and river-bottom sediment today.

Wyandotte Chemical Corp., located on the U.S. side downstream from Detroit, away from Lake St. Clair, has admitted losing mercury residue in a chemical process similar to Dow's and waters around it are also to be sampled.

About 10,000 pounds of fish, valued at $8,000 have so far been seized in Canada.

Postmen Freed

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) —A federal grand jury refused Wednesday to indict 13 postmen accused of throwing away, instead of delivering, about 5,000 pieces of third-class "junk mail." Twelve of the 13 have resigned since their arrest last Feb. 4.

MARKET SUMMARIES

N.Y. Rally Loses Steam

Rally which sparked Wall Street's biggest gain in two years Wednesday after leading U.S. banks cut the prime interest rate to 8 per cent from 8½ lost steam in moderately active trading today.

Analysts said profit-taking was in evidence.

The Toronto market advanced fractionally in moderate trading following its best daily gain of the year Wednesday. The market opened with a small gain today, then rose sharply in the first two hours, before falling back in later trading.

Prices were up in moderate trading during the morning at Vancouver.

Canadian and U.S. markets will be closed Friday for the holiday.

AT TORONTO, in industrials, Bow Valley was up 2 to 22½, Seagrams 1½ to 54¼, Seaway 1¼ to 14, Imperial 1 to 22 and Hudson's Bay Oil 1 to 45½.

Southam lost 1 to 58, Falconbridge ½ to 175½, Inco ¼ to 49. Royal Bank ¼ to 22 and CPR ¼ to 65¾.

Patino was up 1½ to 48½ and Denison 1 to 39½. Dome Mines lost ¾ to 58.

Numac gained 70 cents to $8.95, Banff 65 cents to $10.50 and Siebens 50 cents to $9.50.

AT NEW YORK, Ford Motor, which announced it would close emporarily four assembly plants beginning next week, declined ⅞ to 46¼.

Many of the glamor issues suffered declines.

AT MONTREAL, banks dipped sharply while all other sectors of the stock market advanced in heavy trading today.

Toronto Dominion Bank was off ¾ to 20⅞, Royal ¼ to 22 and Bank of Nova Scotia ⅛ to 20⅛.

Among advancing industrial issues, Great West Life gained 2½ to 112½ on a 300-share trade, Simpsons-Sears ⅞ to 18⅞, Algoma Steel ⅞ to 14¼ and Alcan ⅜ to 29.

Levy Industries dipped 1½ to 18½. The Levy family of Toronto said it has acquired a controlling interest in Seaway Multi Corp. which advanced ⅝ to 13 on the Canadian Stock Ex

In senior mines and oils, Shell Canada advanced 1 to 29, Imperial Oil ¾ to 21¾ and Central Del Rio ¾ to 12½.

AT LONDON government bonds moved ahead strongly, following the prime rate cuts by some major U.S. banks.

Equities also advanced strongly, following Wall Street. Hudson's Bay was an isolated dull spot, 2s 6d, off at 43s 9d.

Dome led Canadians higher, with a 5-point rise to 195. Canadian Pacific, Inco, Pacific Pet, Hiram Walker, Noranda, and West Coast Transmission were other gainers. Banks were mixed.

AT VANCOUVER, prices were up in moderate trading today on the stock exchange. Estimated volume to 11:30 was 1,355,401 shares.

Leading industrial was Driver Development, up .05 at .90, on a turnover of 5,700 shares. Ironarc Smelters slipped .05 to $3.10, while Integrated Wood Products rose .20 to $4.

United Bata Resources, up .20 to $3, led the oils on a trade of 14,600 shares. Silver Crystal was up .04 at .65 and Plains Petroleum was off .01 at .41.

Leading mine on a trade of 90,500 shares was Alice Lake, up .13 at .96. Casino Silver climbed .25 to $3.45 and Kopan Development rose .02 to .23.

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP) — Trade was extremely light in all commodities at the close of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today.

Little interest was shown in oats and barley and offers were thin in both oilseeds.

Confirmation was received overnight of the sale of 45,000 bushels of rapeseed to Japan and 60,000 to an undisclosed European port.

Total futures trading volume Wednesday involved 480,000 bushels of flax, 573,000 of rapeseed and 78,000 of rye

Lakehead prices for Class Two and IGA wheat were unchanged.

CHICAGO (AP) — Soybean futures advanced 1 on the Board of Trade today and grain futures prices were generally higher, all on buying influenced by the mostly localized, but heavy snowfall in the U.S. midwest.

Soybean oil and soybean meal, which exhibited some early strength, weakened under profit taking.

Hedge selling in corn was light and easily absorbed by a preponderance of buyers. Most buyers reasoned that the heavy snow and the possibility of more to come might prevent movement of corn from farms. Oats buying was influenced by this strength in corn.

Inflation Will Reduce Sales in U.S. Says BCFP

Continuing pressure of inflation will trim B.C. Forest Products Ltd. sales into the U.S.—its strongest market—during the current year, the company said Wednesday.

"Economic forecasts for almost every country indicate that the continuing pressure of mounting inflation will deter real growth. Of particular significance is the forecast for the United States, by far our largest market, which indicates a real growth rate in 1970 of only some 55 per cent of 1969 and 30 per cent of 1968," said president Ian A. Barclay.

Canada faces a challenge of controlling its own inflation in the context of world markets without endangering its growth, he said.

"Failure will result in loss of world markets and a deterioration in the balance of payments bringing about more unemployment," Barclay said.

Governments, management, labor and each citizen must take responsibility for correcting the inflationary spiral, Barclay added.

The president also took issue with the proposals for tax reform in Canada, saying: "There are strong indications that on balance the proposals will be detrimental to Canada.

"Your company is concerned," he told shareholders, "that some of the proposals are inflationary; will interfere with the supply of capital required for the country's growth; and will add to the taxation of skilled hourly and supervisory employees."

PROPER BRIEF

Besides taking a part in other submissions by the industry, BCFP is compiling its own white paper brief, he said.

Canadian business is suffering because of uncertainties in the tax structure to be adopted, Barclay said.

For 1970, Barclay forecast pulp and paper will remain strong but no improvement in lumber and plywood demand, both down, is expected until late in the year.

In addition, he said, the company faces the "uncertainty" of contract negotiations.

BCFP's earnings before taxes rose to $19 million in 1969 from $16.6 million in 1968. Retained earnings at Jan. 1 rose to $55 million from $50 million.

Consolidated net earnings in 1969 were $9.36 million or $2.34 a share, compared with $8.3 million or $2.05 a share, in 1968.

The figures were based on a new calculation method which added six cents a share to 1969 earnings and eight to the 1968 figure. All comparative figures in the annual report were restated on this basis.

The company said the main reasons or the increase were higher production of pulp and newsprint and higher prices for these commodities and plywood. Net sales rose to $129.2 million from $118.68 million.

BCFP said "adverse factors" included fluctuating lumber prices, reduced lumber production, and rising costs. A rough winter in 1969 sharply affected log and lumber production.

Jamaica

SYSTEMS MANAGER

This position, with Alcan Jamaica Limited at Mandeville, presents a unique opportunity to participate in the continuing development of one of Jamaica's largest industries.

The incumbent will manage Alcan Jamaica's Systems function, administer and train the existing computer department of 22 persons and ensure optimum use of the Company's IBM 360/25 computer. While most applications are now of a commercial nature, he will be actively responsible for the development of an integrated management information system covering commercial and scientific areas and for developing a liaison with other Alcan companies in order to build integrated standards of performance and operations.

Growth of the Systems/Computer function in all of Alcan's international operations provides good opportunity for eventual career development after this assignment.

The candidate selected will have a history of successful technical experience in this field, demonstrated managerial skills, and the motivation to build an effective, self-perpetuating team in a pioneering computer environment.

BUSINESS and FINANCE

Buttle-Arrow

A large deposit of carbon with characteristics of activated carbon used in pollution control equipment has been acquired by Silver Arrow Explorations Ltd. and Buttle Lake Mining Co. Ltd. The companies do not say where in B.C. the deposit is situated.

Rights to processes for treating water also are held by the companies and tests are being done by Kates, Peat, Marwick and Co. If these are favorable, it is intended to form a new company in which the two each will hold 32½ per cent interest.

Great Lakes

A 63 per cent increase in net earnings for 1969 is reported by Great Lakes Paper Co. Ltd. and a further improvement is forecast in the current year.

The company reports earnings of $5 million ($1.40 a share) against $3 million or 86 cents a share in 1968.

Sales were up 13 per cent to $75.2 million, highest on record, based on 350,709 tons of newsprint. For 1970 sales are expected to reach 444,541 tons by operating seven days a week.

Canadian Industrial

Canadian Industrial Gas and Oil Ltd. had net earnings of $8,238,000 or 41 cents a share in 1969 compared with $8,196,000 or 41 cents a share in 1968.

Revenue was $33,828,000 compared with $29,616,000 in 1968.

Crude oil and gas liquids production averaged 8,200 barrels a day, down 98 barrels due primarily to the natural decline in crude oil production from the Calgary-based company's Saskatchewan properties and a reduced allowable in the Joarcam field of Alberta.

Natural gas production increased eight per cent to an average of 88,300,000,000 cubic feet a day, while sulphur production from gas processing plants increased to 10,810 from 10,390 long tons.

Thomson

The Thomson Organization Ltd. reports its net profit for 1969 increased slightly to $8.6 million from $8.5 million in 1968.

For the year 1969, the Thomson family company is waiving entitlement to $3.2 million in dividends, representing 75 per cent of what it should have received. This brings to $11 million the amount waived since 1966.

Bell Plans New Request For Increase

MONTREAL (CP) — Marcel Vincent, chairman of the board of Bell Canada, said Wednesday the telephone company will have to renew its request for an increase in local exchange rates if it is to provide good service to customers and reasonable returns to investors in the near future.

Vincent told Bell Canada's annual meeting the decision by the Canadian transport commission last September to allow the company to increase only some of its rates was inadequate.

He said the decision provided only about a third of the revenue increase requested and denied any increase in monthly rates for local services where the company faces most of its increased costs.

EARNINGS DOWN

Both Vincent and Bell Canada's president, Robert C. Scrivener, blamed the decrease in earnings to $3.20 a share in 1969 from $3.27 in 1968 on inflation and the company's inability to absorb higher costs by increasing its rates.

Vincent said Bell Canada will renew its request to gain an increase in local exchange rates while keeping in mind "the need for restraint in anything that may tend to increase the cost of living at this time."

As reported previously, Bell's net income declined to $113,696,000 or $3.20 a share in 1969 from $114,329,000 or $3.27 the previous year, although operating revenues increased to $842,090,000 from $758,478,000.

THE ACCOUNTANT'S ADVICE

Sundry Items Often Overlooked

(This is a service of the Times and of the Institute of Chartered Accountants of British Columbia).

By EDGAR A. DOWNEY, CA

There are many sundry items of income and deductions which taxpayers often overlook in preparing their income tax returns.

Tips and gratuities are income if they are related to the taxpayer's type of employment or business, such as a waiter or cab-driver. Because such income is normally received in cash and there is no record does not mean that the tax assessor is unaware that it exists, some tax assessors even pay out tips themselves. The assessors know what is a reasonable figure for most such job types in most areas and if a tip-earning taxpayer fails to report the reasonable minimum he is likely to be asked to explain how it is that he receives so much less than other people in the same job.

Interest of last year's tax refund must always be included as income, the amount already shows in the taxpayer's file so it will certainly cause enquiry if it is not reported. All other interest, even interest earned on private and personal loans is income regardless of whether or not the borrower has any right to claim it as expense against his own income.

NOT ALLOWABLE

On the other hand interest paid on late payment of tax is not an allowable expense because it was not incurred for the purpose of producing income.

If a hobby is practised to such an extent that it is a profitable operation it is then a business and the business profit after deducting all related expenses is subject to tax. However, the occasional proceeds from the sale of some hobby-craft product is not income. There is no clear demarcation line between a business and a hobby except that if the overall result is a loss then the tax assessor will be most reluctant to acknowledge that the operation is a business unless the taxpayer can show that he intended to make a profit and had some reasonable expectation of success.

Generally, if an expense is incurred for the purpose of producing taxable income it is allowable as a deduction even though no income has, in fact, been realized.

Gifts and bequests are not income to the recipient and are not subject to income tax but a gift in excess of $3,000 might incur gift tax payable by the donor and a bequest under a will might incur succession duty which would normally be deducted before the bequest is tranferred.

Income from property received by gift is income; but if the gift is by a man to his wife (or vice versa) or to a child under 19 years of age then the income is taxed in the hands of the donor and not in the hands of the person who actually received the income.

FEES DEDUCTABLE

Tuition fees are deductible from the income of the student provided that they are paid to a Canadian educational insitutiton, including private schools, and amount to more than $25 each. The means any educational course, even night school courses, as long as the fee is at least $25. It is important to recognize that the deduction is allowed to the student. Where a parent pays schools fees for his children the amount may not be deducted from the parent's income but may be deducted by the student and, thereby, reduce his income to less $950 so that he can qualify as a dependent of the parent.

The value of free trips or other prizes provided by an employer, such as in sales contests, is normally income to the employee. But a contest prize not connected with employment is not income.

Alimony paid periodically in accordance with a written separation agreement is an allowable deduction from income for the payor and is taxable as income for the recipient. But a lump sum settlement in lieu of periodic payments of alimony is not deductible, nor is it income. If a Canadian taxpayer pays alimony to a non-resident he is required to withhold 15% of each payment as non-resident tax and to remit the 15% to the Receiver General in the same way as tax deductions from salaries and wages are remitted by employers.

Gov't Knuckles Under Before Mother Power

DUNCAN — Mother power was demonstrated on Wednesday when six mothers from Somenos area met deputy minister of highways H. T. Miard and received a commitment for the construction of an underpass at Sprott Lake Road and Trans-Canada Highway.

Mrs. Arthur Roberts and Mrs. Patrick Mullins, joint spokesman for the delegation, said today the deputy said the underpass will be in service in the next two months or "definitely for the coming September school term."

The mothers, whose children attend Somenos Elementary School, met with Robert Strachan, Cowichan-Malahat MLA, Gerry Smith, North Cowichan mayor, a member of Duncan Jaycees and the deputy minister in Victoria.

The women stressed the necessity for a safer crossing at Sprott Road which has a standard school crossing sign plus a sign warning drivers to decrease speed from 60 to 30 when children are on the highway.

The intersection is near North Cowichan municipal hall where a small hill makes visibility poor. RCMP and school patrol officials indicated earlier this year the crossing was too dangerous for even school patrols.

After presenting a brief to the department of highways earlier this year the Duncan Jaycees received a letter from the department indicating the warning signs as posted were sufficient protection.

Shawnigan Student Wins Speaking Prize

DUNCAN— Malcom MacLure of Victoria, a student at Shawnigan Lake School, won this year's Rotary-sponsored "Adventure in Citizenship" public speaking competition held at Cowichan Senior Secondary School.

Given a choice of topic about which era he would wish to live in, MacLure chose the present day and edged out three other area students.

The others were: Glen Dias and Russell Getz, both of Cowichan Senior, and Catherine Fraser of Gulf Islands Senior Secondary School at Ganges. Only two marks separated all the competitors.

Judges were Dr. J. B. McLean, Mrs. Phoebe Noble and Arthur Webb, all of University of Victoria faculty.

The winner goes to Ottawa May 11 to 14 with other winners from throughout the province and across Canada where they will be guests of Ottawa Rotary Club. MacLure, on his return home, will address Duncan Rotary Club on his "Adventure in Citizenship."

MacLure is the son of Dr. and Mrs. K. C. MacLure of 3290 Woodburn Ave., Victoria. He is 17.

New Role Ahead For Yacht Club

MAPLE BAY — Maple Bay Ratepayers' Association voted unanimously Tuesday night to use the former Maple Bay Yacht Club for recreation.

The yacht club is moving to new premises on a site now under construction on Genoa Bay. The waterfront building was purchased from the club by the municipality of North Cowichan and will be occupied until May by the club.

The ratepayers' resolution will be forwarded to North Cowichan Recreation Commission which will be directed in its operation of the premises by a committee composed of John Roome, Sed Howard, John Getgood, John Bromilow and Norm Bevan.

Ald. Margaret Robertson said the municipality will lease the premises for $1 a year which was standard practice in such cases.

Ald. Jim Roome ended the argument by commenting that "the building will rot and fall down before we ever get a committee formed to establish what is to be allowed there."

Sahtlam Seeking Fire Protection

DUNCAN—Residents of Sahtlam, an unorganized area about five miles west of Duncan, will meet April 5 to plan formation of a fire protection district.

Chairman of a group of interested residents is George Pastor, 26, who said there are 159 permanent homes in Sahtlam area with a population between 800 and 1,000.

Publicity chairman Mrs. Andrew Pastor, the chairman's mother, said Wednesday six canvassers had been calling on householders to obtain an opinion and "almost everyone fully supports the idea."

The move to initiate the fire protection district followed two recent fires in the unorganized area: a house fire which residents claim could have been checked if the community had fire-fighting equipment, and a fire in an unoccupied trailer.

North Cowichan fire department attended the trailer fire outside their boundaries because a worried neighbor called the RCMP, fearing a person may have been trapped inside.

A meeting of Sahtlam residents was held last week which was attended by 21 persons, they were addressed by Pat Clackson, captain of North Cowichan fire department, who outlined how a fire district could be formed.

Mrs. Pastor said the resultant savings in high fire insurance rates would eventually offset the cost of the fire protection service.

RESERVES START CLEAN-UP

DUNCAN — A spring cleanup is under way on the six main Cowichan Indian reserves with old cars being the first order of business.

The wrecks, marked for removal with orange paint, are being towed away by scrap metal demolisher Glen Harper whose crusher is the only one in the area.

Last year the Cowichan Indian Band newsletter stated there were more than 30 cars on Somenos reserve alone.

Treed 80 Hours

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Clarence Paulk, a 15-year-old high school student, returned to earth here this week after an 80-hour stint in a palm tree. Paulk's feat capped a sports marathon to raise money for local charities. The greatest hazard, Paulk said, was bikini-clad girls. "One of them walked by directly under me. And I almost fell out of my tree."

INSURANCE SCHEMES ALL DIFFER

Medical Chairs Is Gov't Game

By The Canadian Press

Every province plays the medical insurance game a different way.

Pity the Canadian who moves from one province to another. Just when he's figured out how much to pay in premiums and whether tooth fillings are covered under his plan, he is confronted with a new set of rules.

Although all Canadian provinces agreed in principle to medical care insurance schemes, three still have not joined the federal plan.

Prince Edward Island, New Brunswick and Quebec remain outside the socialized medicine fold. Prince Edward Island is scheduled to join the national plan Dec. 1 with New Brunswick and Quebec following in January. Quebec is considering a special tax of .8 per cent of an individual's pay beyond a minimum low-income level to finance the plan.

Newfoundland and Nova Scotia are the only two provinces which do not charge monthly premiums.

MANITOBA LOWEST

Ontario's premiums—$5.90 for a single person, $11.80 for a couple and $14.75 for a family—are the highest in the country. The provincial government, however, does help pay premiums for a family with an income of less than $1,300, a couple making under $1,000 or a single persons $500.

Of the provinces which charge premiums, Manitoba has the lowest—55 cents a month for a single person, $1.10 a family.

A single person in B.C. pays $5, a couple $10, a family $12.50, with assistance to those whose incomes are less than $1,000.

Alberta's fees are $5 for a single person, $10 a family. Saskatchewan charges $1 for a single person and $2 for a family.

When medical insurance first came to Saskatchewan, eight years ago, so many people took advantage of the plan by making frequent calls on doctors that the government began charging a utilization fee of $1.50 for each visit to a doctor and $2 for each doctor's house call.

If you live in Saskatchewan and become ill in another province, the Saskatchewan government will pay only what a Saskatchewan doctor would have charged. This is true of all provinces, as provincial medical associations set individual fee schedules.

In Alberta and Nova Scotia, the province pays 100 per cent of the fee schedule. In Newfoundland and B.C., doctors have agreed to accept 90 per cent—pleased to have a guaranteed system of payment. Doctors in Manitoba and Saskatchewan accept 85 per cent.

But in Ontario, doctors bill the patient for the 10 cents on each dollar that the Ontario Health Services Insurance Plan falls short of the fee schedule.

In Newfoundland, the scheme pays only a general practitioners' fee; the difference for a specialist comes out of the patient's pocket.

Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia pay optometrists' fees. Alberta and British Columbia also pay for chiropractors, osteopaths, and podiatrists.

Bruins Moving Better On Rough Eastern Path

Bill WALKER

Controversy, anyone? Football has less action than hockey or basketball. This is the subject of an article in Sports Magazine. If there ever was any doubt, it is now dispelled, which is something the late Lester Patrick would have been pleased to hear while he was making hockey history.

"Sixty minutes of action." This was the creed of hockey's Silver Fox. What other sport can make that claim? Basketball, perhaps, but only for 48 minutes. That is the difference.

In football, the ball is in play for less than 13½ minutes, or less than 9 per cent of the 2½ hours it takes to play the average game. The college kind is worse. the ball is in play only 8 per cent of the time. Baseball? That's your guess, and homework for Easter.

And more leisure reading ... or where is Charles Atlas ... or Johnny Weissmulller, or a host of other greats from the past? Well, Esquire mag has found them ... Weissmuller is a director of Fort Lauderdale's Swimming Hall of Fame, and, at 62, still swims each week. ... Atlas, who made men out of weaklings, lives in West Palm Beach and still conditions himself with his "dynamic tension" technique ... and then, the tragedy of it all ... Beau Jack, lightweight champion in 1943, and well heeled ... Jack is a shoeshine boy in Miami Beach, and has been for the past 15 years.

A Calgary man, Frank Martens, wants city council to make a bid for a Western Hockey League franchise for the city ... we could have Vancouver's spot, he suggests ... the idea of pro hockey always has merit, but will it draw? It wouldn't with a championship team under the Maple Leaf banner, but it would make a good farm area for Vanacouver of the NHL ... Then there are the Junior Cougars who have made their mark in the last two seasons ... What are their plans? They should be considered first. After all, they made the game go, when others couldn't, and deserve to be heard ... and I suppose you noticed, too, that the World Series is over, the World Series of Snowmobile racing, that is ... this is yet another of the new major sports, thrilling, dangerous and deadly. ...

Then there was that story, again, about the tribe of long-haired Mexican Indians who could bring about a host of new records at the 1972 Olympics. ...

It seems members of this primitive tribe, the Tarahumara, who live in an almost inaccesible stretch of wild country, have extraordinary stamina ... They chase deer on foot for days until the animal collapses from exhaustion. They also play a form of football in which a game lasts for two days, without a break. ... One of the tribe entered the '36 Olympics in the marathon, but was sent home sick before the day of the race ... He couldn't stomach the food, or adjust to sleeping in a bed ... Well, maybe one day, but that football match is something again ... the best runners from two villages meet at dawn to kick a wooden ball the size of an apple along a set course through forests and mountains ... After a pre-set number of circuits around the course which measures 32 miles or more, the team which crosses the finish line first with the ball is the winner ... want more? ... The womenfolk are so enthused they follow the game for hours, cheering on their heroes. ...

I suppose too, if you are a baseball manager, and temporarily unemployed, the idea is to sit and wait ... which is just what Bill Rigney did, and look what he got ... Fired by the Angles last May, Rigney fell into a honey pot in the fall ... He got the Minnesota Twins, and all they did last season was lead the west, top the AL in hitting, and have on the roster the home run and batting champions ... Meanwhile, "Bring Back Bill Martin" stickers are still around town ... ticket sales are down ... and one of the major broadcast sponsors has ducked out ... The point is, Rigney must win, or be unemployed again in May. Because when the Twins lost last year's playoff, Martin was soon gone. ...

Griffith is the Minnesota owner. This was last fall, of course, but an area visitor says it could be very interesting this spring if the Twins happen to stumble at the start of this season ... Martin, it seems, was more popular than Griffith . .. Then there is that little gem from columinst Shirley Povich regarding the Seattle fiasco ... the AL owners will meet to make up their collective mind, which is not an outstanding one, he penned ... and so true. ...

Japan's National Railways has come up with a sure-fire alarm clock for early-shift engineers .... A specially designed mattress inflates at a set hour and tosses its occupant out of bed. ...

And I guess mistakes do occur ... the Oak Bay Wanderers are sponsoring two Vancouver Island junior rugby tournaments at Uvic on April 12 ... The ages listed for the two events were "19 and under," and "17 and under" ... Jim Hume of the champion Saanich Velox was in his glee ... the entire Velox backfield qualified for the 19 and under category ... that is, it qualified until Tuesday ... the age classifications now are "under 19" and "under 17" ... the original announcement was in error ... will everyone please correct their brochures. ...

Rangers Continue Slump; Canadiens Clip Leafs 5-2

By The Canadian Press

Boston Bruins, leaders in the tight Eastern Division of the National Hockey League, have had little luck on the road this season against teams in their own division.

But with the regular schedule drawing to a close and the final playoff spots still not settled, the Bruins came through with a key 3-1 victory Wednesday night over the Rangers in New York.

The victory was the Bruins' first in 17 games on the home ice of an eastern opponent and it moved them three points ahead of second-place Chicago Black Hawks, idle Wednesday. The Hawks, however, have a game in hand.

The Bruins, who have picked up more than half of their 93 points against the weaker Western Division with 26 wins in 36 games—they lost two—have five games remaining in the schedule, all against eastern teams.

One of these games is against Montreal Canadiens, who moved into third place Wednesday night with a 5-2 win over last-place Toronto Maple Leafs. The victory gave the Canadiens 89 points, four out of first place but two more than fourth-place Detroit Red Wings who were idle Wednesday and meet the Hawks tonight in Detroit.

Seals Fourth After Nipping Flyers

In the West, although the race for playoff positions is not as torrid, there is still a battle going on for the fourth and last playoff spot.

Oakland Seals moved into that position Wednesday with a 3-2 win over Philadelphia Flyers that gave them one point more than Minnesota North Stars who lost 2-0 to Pittsburgh Penguins.

Pittsburgh's win moved the Penguins into second place with 59 points, one more than Philadelphia. St. Louis Blues already have won the western title.

The Rangers, first most of the season, now may end up without a playoff berth. They now have won only one game in the last 13 and are eight points off the pace.

Power-play goals by Phil Esposito and John Bucyk 74 seconds apart in the first period gave the Bruins an early lead and turned out to be enough to hold off the Rangers.

ESPOSITO SCORES 39th

Esposito's goal, his 39th of the season, came on a deflection while two Rangers were in the penalty box. Bucyk then scored his 31st with Boston still enjoying a one-man edge. Derek Sanderson scored the other Boston goal with New York enjoying a man advantage.

Claude Provost, Montreal's veteran right winger, reached a milestone when he celebrated his 1,000th NHL game. He is the 13th player now in active ranks to reach the 1,000-game mark.

Oakland won its game against Philadelphia on a power-play goal by Joe Hardy with 12 seconds remaining in the game. Earl Ingarfield and Don O'Donoghue also scored for Oakland.

The Seals have lost only one of their last eight games and—like the other teams in the West Division—have five games remaining in the schedule.

BRUCE STICKS WITH IT

It was struggle with sticks on this play during National Hockey League game Wednesday night in Montreal as Toronto goalie Bruce Gamble and clubmate Mike Pelyk manage to knock puck away from blade of Jean Beliveau (right). Gamble won this round, but he lost on other occasions and Beliveau scored final goal as Canadiens trimmed Maple Leafs 5-2. (CP Wirephoto)

CAN GO TO MILWAUKEE . . . . . . BUT IN SEATTLE DUDS

Pilots Must Retain Identity

SEATTLE (AP) — The American League was told by a federal bankruptcy referee Wednesday it could go ahead and accept Milwaukee as a member, but not to change the lettering on the uniform from Seattle Pilots to Milwaukee Braves for a few days.

Referee Sidney C. Volinn issued an injunction which:

● Stayed a King County Superior Court suit by Washington state, Seattle and lawyer Alfred J. Schweppe in which they sought a temporary injunction against sale or transfer of Seattle Pilots.

● Gave the American League the go ahead to act on Milwaukee's application for membership but said transfer of the franchise from Seattle would be "effective only if approved by this court."

The federal injunction will remain in force until Monday when Volinn will determine whether to approve the sale of the Pilots to Milwaukee for $10,800,000 under provisions of the Bankruptcy Act.

Swedes Still Blocking Russians' Title View

STOCKHOLM (CP) — Sweden is looking for a win over Finland tonight to carry it to a final-game showdown with the powerful Russians to decide the world hockey championships.

The Swedes had a day off Wednesday while the world champion Russians routed Poland 11-0 and Czechoslovakia coasted to a 7-3 win over East Germany.

The results gave the Russians, with two games remaining, a total of 14 points and a commanding 60-9 margin in goals for and against. Sweden and Czechoslovakia have 11 points each but the Swedes have a game in hand.

If they win that game tonight—and they are favored to win against faltering Finland—they will have only last-place Poland to meet before advancing to what is expected to be the deciding match of the 36th world hockey championships.

Tickets have been sold out well in advance for that last match, on Monday, March 30, when Sweden plays Russia.

The Russians are flying but the Swedes are the only players who have defeated them in the championships this year.

BEST REGULARS

For the Russians, Wednesday's game was a warmup for their clash Friday with Czechoslovakia. The Russians rested three of their regulars but were still in a different class from the hard-working but ineffective Poles, who have yet to win a match.

Alexander Maltsev, a 21-year-old star Soviet forward, consolidated his lead in the individual scoring statistics of the tournament by scoring four goals. He now has 12 goals and six assists for a two-point lead over Vaclav Nedomansky of Czechoslovakia, who has nine goals and seven assists.

Nedomansky, a tall, powerful sharpshooter, was one of the outstanding players in Czechoslovakia's win Wednesday. He scored three goals.

Devlin Depends On 'Leg Power'

MIAMI (AP) — Golfer Bruce Devlin is a leg man and, if his slender legs don't regain their strength soon, he may be a while in fattening a 1970 golf tour bankroll of $39,000.

"I use leg action more than most golfers," he said. "When we were forced to play 36 holes the last day at Orlando, it almost did me in."

Devlin said he shifts his 160 pounds so rapidly in a golf swing that he wears out his legs faster than almost any professional on the circuit.

"That's why I never play more than four weeks in a row," he said. "My legs can't take it. That Orlando thing worked me down to the point that I've not been able to regain my golf swing."

The $150,000 Citrus Invitational at Orlando three weeks ago was forced into a 36-hole windup by bad weather. Devlin played poorly the following week at Pensacola and skipped last weekend's Greater Jacksonville Open to rest.

"I'm still not hitting it well," he said, even after a three-under par 69 practice round at the Country Club of Miami. "I hope my legs are back in time for the Masters."

Devlin has been a serious Masters threat for the last two years. A four over par eight on the 11th hole at Augusta National killed him in 1968 and a weak nine-hole effort of four-over par 40 wiped out the one-time plumber in last year's third round.

"I usually play well at Augusta," Devlin said. "It's the tournament everybody's pointing for right now, too."

Unlisted Catcher Big Twin Bomber

By The Associated Press

John Sevcik, who is not even listed on Minnesota's official spring training roster, smashed a three-run homer Wednesday in the bottom of the ninth to lift the Twins to an 8-7 exhibition victory over Atlanta Braves.

The blast by Sevcik, a 27-year-old catcher who saw brief duty with the Twins in 1965, came off Atlanta southpaw Mike McQueen with one out. The Twins were trailing 7-4 at the start of the ninth. Rick Renick ignited the Minnesota rally by singling in one run.

Houston Astros scored their third shutout of the spring with a 2-0 decision over Kansas City. Jim Bouton, who has allowed only one earned run in 19 innings, pitched five scoreless frames for the Astros.

Baltimore Orioles tagged four Washington hurlers for 18 hits to defeat the Senators 12-9. Washington got 11 hits in the slugfest.

In other exhibitions, Chicago Cubs blanked Seattle Pilots 4-0, Cleveland Indians shaded Oakland Athletics 4-3 and San Diego Padres edged California Angels

BOWLER OF WEEK

Cutting sharp figures on lanes was skating enthusiast Barb Barthiaume, who captured women's tenpin award in 22nd week of annual Times Bowler-of-the-Week competition. Barb sandwiched neat 214 effort between games of 146 and 191 for division-topping series of 551 in Ladies' Classic League at Mayfair Lanes to earn weekly award that qualifies her for Bowler-of-the-Year rolloffs on Sunday, May 10.

Selection Surprises Supplied by Sir Alf

LONDON (Reuters) — Manchester United halfbacks David Sadler and Nobby Stiles are the surprise choices on the England soccer team of 28 named Wednesday to go to Mexico in May in defence of the World Cup.

All but three of the triumphant 1966 team are on this year's squad. The three are fullbacks George Cohen and Ray Wilson and forward Roger Hunt.

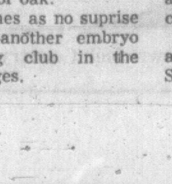
Casual Skirmish Paves Way



Hewett

A casual encounter between two sailing boats invariably produces a little skirmish in "one-upmanship", to see who can point the highest or foot the fastest. Because no matter how loudly he doth protest, every yachtsman has a competitive core to his stout "heart of oak."

Thus it comes as no suprise to find yet another embryo yacht racing club in the planning stages.

Sparked by the recent all-comers race, enthusiasm among the "unorganized" sailboat owners at the north end marinas has crystallized into the Canoe Bay Sailing Club.

Currently, the membership lists 10 paid-up souls under the guidance of veteran helmsmen Peter White and Gordon Inglis, who function at this stage as the race committee-cum-executive.

Like the Turkey Head Sailing Association, this will be a mainly active-participants club, with the main purpose to provide competition for anyone wanting to race in the Sidney area.

Initially, two three-race series will be held on Thursday evenings during April and May. A triangle course will be set off Sidney, going in the direction of Kerr Island, which is one mile north of the Sidney Dock.

Winter racing will probably be set up to alternate with Royal Victoria Yacht Club's Tsehum Haven schedule.

Initially, CCA ratings will be used, with arbitrary ratings assigned where necessary. Possibly, PHRF rating system will be used after the fleet is more established.

SHORT TACKS: Southern Straits of Georgia Race had already chalked up 150 entries last week, and could see close to 200 yachts on the starting line Friday, which is some sort of local record ... Among local yachtsmen, crew lists include Jerry Boone, Ted Trenholm and John Boorman on Denny Coverdale's Melee; Marv Mawson, Bob Robertson, Rob Thomson and John Malleson on Tom Loney's Hammerhead; and Dave Gair, Glen Higgins, Verne Stilborn, Peter Watts, Jim Burns, and Ralph and Connie Higgins on the Gabrielle II.

Also on Easter weekend, Royal Vic Frostbiters will race to Oak Bay Marina and back, and Turkey Head schedules a long distance race for Sunday

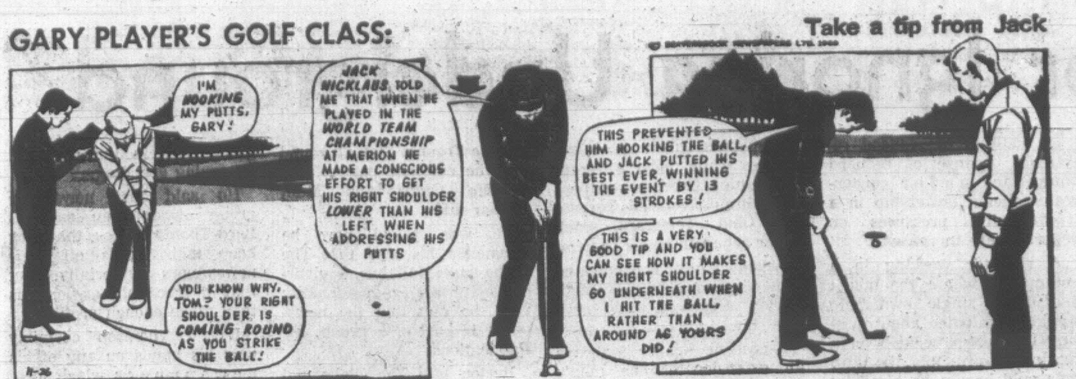
Take a tip from Jack



I'M HOOKING MY PUTTS, GARY!
YOU KNOW WHY, TOM? YOUR RIGHT SHOULDER IS COMING ROUND AS YOU STRIKE THE BALL!

Astronomical Salaries For Basketball Stars

(Times News Services)

What's the price of fame?

To Spencer Haywood, the sum is $1,900,000.

Bob Lanier found it to be $1,500,000.

Rookie super-star Haywood, leading scorer and rebounder in the American Basketball Association, has signed a new contract with the Denver Rockets for $1,900,000 spanning six years.

"I'm very happy, very happy," Haywood, who won't be 21 until April 22.

The contract is believed to exceed that tendered any professional athlete in the United States.

Lanier, the all-American from St. Bonaventure College, has signed a five-year contract with Detroit Pistons of the National Association for $1,500,000.

LEG IN CAST

The signing took place in a hospital room at Buffalo. His right leg will be in a cast for another four weeks, to aid surgery he underwent for repair of torn knee ligaments suffered March 15.

Lanier's no-cut contract will be paid over a 15-year period.

It is more than $100,000 higher, than the $1,400,000 reported to have lured Lew Alcindor to Milwaukee Bucks of the NBA.

The six-foot-11-inch centre is reported to have turned down a $2,000,000 package offered him by the ABA's New York Nets.

During his collegiate career, Lanier scored 2,067 points in 75 games for an average of 27.5 per game.

CROFT SIGNS

A Canadian's price was somewhat smaller. Bobby Croft, six-foot-10 centre from Hamilton, Ont., signed a three-year contract with Kentucky Colonels of the ABA for an estimated $100,000. Kentucky obtained Croft's playing rights from Dallas Chaparrals.

Croft, who captained University of Tennessee, had announced earlier that he would refuse to play in Dallas.

The NBA gained a "split" in Wednesday's major signings when San Diego Rockets landed Rudy Tomjanovich of Michigan for an estimated $600,000. He was Rockets' No. 1 draft choice.

JOLT TO CANADA

Croft's signing by Kentucky put a serious dent into Canada's hopes in the 1970 world amateur championships. Canadian Amateur Basketball Association officials had hoped to invite Croft to play for Canada in the tournament in Yugoslavia, starting May 10.

Invited to try out for the Canadian team were John Hadden of Toronto; Terry McKay, Bob Molinski and Ron Thorsen, all of the University of British Columbia; John Cassidy of Dalhousie University; Bruce Dempster, Toronto; Rod Fox, New Brunswick; Bill Robinson and Dave Murphy of Simon Fraser; Barry Howson of Sarnia, Ont., and John Barton of Sudbury, Ont.

Coach is Peter Mullins of UBC.

ARMED GUARD FOLLOWS GARY PLAYER

MIAMI (AP) — Pickets and armed guards faced each other at the entrance to the Country Club of Miami Wednesday, but there was no sign of trouble on the eve of the $200,000 National Airlines golf tournament.

National Airlines has been idle for more than a month by a striking union and cancelled national television coverage of the richest event so far this year to avoid giving pickets platform for demonstrations.

The tournament last year was disrupted on the final day when pickets marched onto the greens in front of television cameras. The Airlines was idled at that time by a wildcat walkout.

An armed guard followed South African Gary Player around the course during the pro-am event Wednesday. Player, one of the world's leading professionals, has been the subject of almost endless questioning of his country's apartheid policy.

CANUCKS ESTABLISH . . . . . . ATTENDANCE RECORD

Hockey Enthusiasm Zooms

VANCOUVER (CP)—Vancouver Canucks, attracting fans in record numbers as they wind up a 21-year stint in the Western Hockey League, are already assured of a solid cheering section when they move to the National League next season.

With one game remaining in regular season play, Canucks have drawn 314,893 fans to 35 home games, eclipsing the former all-time attendance mark for league games of 311,857 set by San Diego in 1967-68.

At the same time, Canuck ticket sellers are setting an impressive pace for next season with about 7,200 season tickets sold for the club's initial NHL season.

"The advance season-ticket sale is running at least up to expectations," a team official said. The club has said it hopes to sell at least 12,000 season tickets.

With ticket prices ranging from $3.50 to $6.50 a game, a fan must spend from $136.50 to $253.50 to take in all 39 home games next year in the 15,039-seat Pacific Coliseum.

Club officials refuse to divulge the total value of season tickets sold to date, but some hockey observers report it amounts to about $1,600,000 or about $150,000 short of the $1,750,000 down payment the club had to make to the NHL on the $6,000,000 franchise price.

SELL TO ALBERTANS

Canucks have spread their sales network throughout the province and into Alberta.

In Edmonton, lawyer Roger Bourbonnais reports he has purchased 188 season tickets to Canuck home games for ardent hockey fans who plan to fly to Vancouver for the contests.

Bourbonnais, former centre with Canada's national team, is president of Hockey Boosters Edmonton Ltd., which offers fans a package deal costing $64.50 a game covering admission, transportation and meals.

LIONS BENEFIT

Meanwhile the British Columbia Lions football club, which vies with Canucks for the sport fans' entertainment dollar, reports its advance ticket sale has passed the 15,000 mark and is "running well ahead of last year."

Lions, whose top price to a club supporter for 10 home games, including two exhibition fixtures, is $47.50, say Canucks' move into the NHL is proving an asset to the football club.

Duncan Powers Cougars

PULLMAN, Wash. — Slugging third baseman Pete Duncan got off to a hefty start for the champion Washington State University Cougars in the Banana Belt tournament with a .467 average and four extra-base hits in his 7-for-15 effort.

Duncan, the clouting Canuck from Victoria, had two triples and two doubles and drove in three runs as the Cougars swept five straight games and won their second Banana Belt title in a row.

Duncan was awarded NCAA District 8 all-star honors last year.

Buckaroos Block Bid for Clincher

By The Canadian Press

The Buckaroos foiled Vancouver's chance to clinch the Western Hockey League pennant in Portland Wednesday night, while the Roadrunners eased into a fourth-place tie with Seattle by trouncing Salt Lake City at Phoenix.

In defeating the Canucks 4-1, Portland, with 87 points, closed to within 10 points in WHL standings of the front-running Vancouver squad. And Phoenix, which bombed Salt Lake 9-3, now is tied with Seattle at 61 points.

In Portland, the Bucks got goals from Roger Bellerive, Mel Pearson, Art Jones and Dick Van Impe. Ted Taylor got the lone Vancouver goal.

Vancouver needs a single point in its final five games to mathematically eliminate Portland. The Canucks get another chance against the Bucks Friday night in Vancouver in the final regular-season meeting of the two clubs.

Jones' goal and an assist on Van Impe's tally gives him a league-leading total of 117 points. He needs six more points in five remaining games to break the league individual scoring record.

Straight Press Damned for Ignoring Underground

OTTAWA (CP) — Author and commentator Pierre Berton Wednesday accused the established press of insufficient protest against official censorship of the underground press.

He told the special Senate committee on mass media the underground newspapers had undergone "unbelievable harassment" at the hands of police and municipal authorities. Yet the established press had declined to become angry about it.

In his 30 years as a journalist, Berton said he had never seen so many attempts at press censorship in Canada as have occurred against the underground papers.

The underground papers, the first real alternative to the established press, had suffered court fines for their street vendors and had run against the problem of getting a business licence to operate.

It was a "dangerous" situation. In Montreal, although there was no law against selling newspapers on the street, 11 vendors of Logos, the underground paper, were fined for selling their product.

Berton asked the committee if it "could imagine the row" that would have occurred if John Bassett, publisher of the Toronto Telegram, had started a newspaper in Montreal and his sons were hauled into court for selling it on the street.

Freedom of the press meant the right of people to print things that the authorities might not like. Censorship was implanted in high schools where school officials told editors of student papers what to print and what not to.

Berton said he hopes schools will become enlightened enough to let students experiment on their own with newspapers.

YOUTH CREATES FEAR

Cause of the censorship against school papers and the underground press was "fear of the stranger." The stranger today was the youth with a different life style.

"What we don't understand we try to stamp out."

The underground press is refreshing because it is different, Berton said. When a licence to operate was denied because the authorities do not like a paper, then something was wrong.

The newspaper industry was threatened generally. Large numbers of people suspect, fear and even hate the press and newspapers are not fair enough, comprehensive enough or good enough, he said.

Whole sections of newspapers, such as the travel sections, were worthless because they are put out for the advertiser, not the reader.

Journalism schools ought to be pushing newspapers to raise standards and vice-versa. A professional course for journalists was needed, as in law and medicine.

Journalism schools could experiment with a newspaper without headlines in an attempt to find the way out of a situation in which brief headlines frequently mislead.

Newspapers ought to establish and finance a court of appeal where readers could air grievances. Now they had no real recourse except a telephone call to the editor and that did not help much.

NO ADS FOR CBC

CBC television should not be concerned with advertising, revenue or ratings, but rather with its job of preserving the Canadian identity. Mr. Berton was glad the Canadian Radio-Television Commission is made up of intelligent people well-versed in Canadian communications needs.

Senator Keith Davey (L — Ontario), committee chairman, said the committee had tried largely in vain to get specific examples to back up testimony that news is subjected to commercial pressures.

Berton said the reason the committee has not got specific examples of advertiser pressures is because "it doesn't work that way." The interest of the advertiser is not codifed orally or in print, it is simply understood by a newspaper's staff, he said.

Reporters are intelligent and ambitious. They compete to get what they write into print and to have it published prominently on the front page rather than buried in the back of the newspaper. They learn "by osmosis" what kind of stories get good play and what kind don't.

That is the way the commercial pressures are exerted and it is the way news becomes slanted, Berton said.

He referred to an example in his own experience when he wrote a column for the Toronto Star. He wrote a critical column about the T. Eaton Co. — a major advertiser — which was printed unchanged. However, he was asked by the editor to make absolutely sure his facts were correct and to check and doublecheck what he had written about Eaton's.

Berton said there was nothing wrong in the editor asking him to be accurate, except that the request was applied only to the Eaton's column, not those on other subjects.

"It is not pressure, but it is special attention," he said.

Asked about trends to group news media in concentrated ownership, Berton said the trend is "very dangerous." He said it is unnecessary and not good for the news industry or for the country.

Berton, who began his career working for Vancouver newspapers, said they once were good but both The Sun and The Province became "pallid" after they merged operations in a joint company.

Berton said he believes the two Vancouver dailies became pallid because they no longer spend as much money competing — "they don't have to."

In addition to reduced resources because of reduced competition under concentrated media ownership in a community, pressures on reporters are increased.

A reporter working in a community where the media are under single ownership would think twice about quitting his newspaper job on a matter of principle, because he would hardly be hired by another organization in the same company.

Berton said Southam Newspapers columnist Charles Lynch had told the committee group ownership of newspapers created an advantage because the papers can pool their resources and improve services.

The argument does not hold much water, Berton said. Newspapers can pool resources while under different ownerships. Other newspapers use columns from the Toronto Star and Telegram, each under separate single owners.

Asked how concentrated ownership could be prevented, Berton suggested using anti-trust laws.

A good newspaper is always an extension of one man's personality, whether he be publisher or editor, he said. Committee-produced newspapers under group ownership lacked that "electric feeling" of a newspaper with personality.

Berton said the Toronto Telegram is a good newspaper because it reflects one man's personality—publisher John Bassett.

His personal preferences are the Toronto Star all round and the editorial page of the Toronto Globe and Mail, Berton said.

He was asked how he reconciled his idea that The Globe and Mail has a vigorous editorial-page personality with the fact that the newspaper is part of a group, FP Publications.

Berton said The Globe and Mail's editorial development resulted from the fact that publisher James Cooper had taken over from Oakley Dalgleish, rather than from the newspaper's takeover by FP.

The Globe and Mail is the one FP newspaper that the FP owners keep their hands off, he said.

Asked whether that meant FP keeps its hand on its other newspapers, Berton said the group does in the sense of governing spending.

He said that newspaper group owners can say, as Lord Thomson does, that they keep their hands off their newspapers editorially, but that it true only as long as they make enough profit.

Lord Thomson certainly puts his hands on any of his newspapers which loses money and closes it down, he said.

Asked about The Canadian Press, the national news-gathering co-operative, Berton said it is too bad CP depends so much on The Associated Press and Reuters for foreign coverage.

CP covered Canadian news "rather pallidly," but perhaps it was good to leave color to individual newspapers.

CALIFORNIA VISIT . . . . . . FOR CITY CLUBS

Wests Heading South

It will be Southward Ho! for the Wests on Friday.

That's when Victoria West teams that play in the first and second divisions of the Victoria and District Soccer League will be winging their way to San Francisco for an Easter visit.

In exhibition matches Saturday at Balboa Stadium, the first division Wests will tackle the San Francisco Scots, recent 3-2 winners over Greek Americans in the final of the United States Challenge Cup, while the second division Wests clash with San Francisco Olympic Selects.

Listed with the Scots are several former British professionals, including Ollie Owens, ex-member of Victoria O'Keefes; Bill Woods, Alex O'Neil, Senan Dehohery, Matt Brown, Tom Dawkins, Dave McKenzie, George Cruickshanks and John Forsyth.

Wests, who expect to play return matches with both California clubs in Victoria later this season, are due to arrive home Monday night.

NEW CHAPTER WINS LINCOLNSHIRE HANDICAP

DONCASTER, England (AP) — New Chapter finished first in the Lincolnshire Handicap Wednesday, then withstood a foul claim and made some people, including six Canadians $130,000 richer.

The Lincolnshire was an Irish Sweepstakes race and those holding tickets on the winner won $130,000 each. The purse to New Chapter's owner, Constantin Coulandris of Greece, was about $16,000.

Sandy Barclay got New Chapter, 100-9, home by a half length over 9-4 favorite Prince de Galles, with 100-1 Brookway third and Royal Smoke, 18-1, fourth. Time for the mile was 1:42 2-5.

Baseball Bisons Looking for Home

LACKAWANNA, N.Y. (AP) — The homeless Buffalo Bisons of baseball's International League received a third and final "no" Wednesday from the city of Lackawanna on their request to play in the Buffalo suburb.

"I guess it's either back to War Memorial Stadium or out of town," the team's general manager Don LaBruzzo said.

The "out-of-town" possibility was reportedly Knoxville, Tenn.

Expense Irregularities Charged

He made the charges outside the legislature but failed inside the house to get public accounts committee hearings reopened to study vouchers for 1968 expenses of Welfare Minister Phil Gaglardi, Minister Without Portfolio Pat Jordan and Premier Bennett.

Speaker William Murray ruled McGeer's attempt out of order because the matter should have been dealt with in the public accounts committee.

McGeer said in an interview he boycotted the final meeting of the Socred-dominated committee Wednesday morning because he had "nothing to discuss in camera with what has become a private accounts committee."

McGeer said Gaglardi accumulated more than $1,500 in hotel bills and in airplane fares to Alberta, Washington and Oregon which were "paid for by the public but not involving public business" in an eight-month period.

He said there was also no reference to public business in connection with an expense account from Mrs. Jordan which showed $2,900 in expenditures in a three-month period, including a visit to Banff.

Premier Bennett's travels during the 1968 federal election should also be publicly questioned, McGeer said.

Bennett spoke on behalf of Social Credit candidates but the public paid his expenses and those of his driver. The Social Credit Party should have been billed, he said.

McGeer also wants to study Liquor Control Board accounts in view of suggestions of "collusion" and "favoritism" in handling of alcoholic beverages.

He said Premier Bennett keeps the liquor board accounts secret in spite of the Government Liquor Act which says they must be presented to the legislature.

The report of the public accounts committee was presented to the legislature at the close of Wednesday night's sitting by chairman George Mussallem (SC—Dewdney).

Both the New Democrats and Liberals opposed its acceptance, calling for a formal vote. The report was accepted with unanimous government support.

The report was in the standard form, saying that the committee had examined vouchers in accordance with its duties.

WHALE'S JAW-BONE GRANT 'PORK-BARREL POLITICS'

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell Wednesday was accused of "buttering up" his own constituency with "pork-barrel politics" in a $1,000 grant from his department to the Campbell River Historical Society.

Robert Strachan (NDP — Cowichan-Malahat) told the legislature the grant for a whale's jaw-bone monument is "a shocking condemnation" of the minister's "pork-barrel attitude" toward his responsibilities.

Campbell defended the grant, announced last week, as aid for a monument marking the first "instant municipality" in B.C. on northern Vancouver Island, at Port Alice.

Strachan asked whether other municipalities could get an equal grant, such as Ladysmith for its Pioneer Park project. Campbell said no.

"Is it just a special privilege that you as minister of municipal affairs are giving to your own constituency (Comox)?" Strachan asked.

"I didn't think you could be so cheap," Campbell said.

Asked what vote the money came from in the departmental estimates, Campbell said it was from "grants, general."

Strachan said if Campbell's purpose is to recognize people who helped open up northern Vancouver Island he should consider Nanaimo, Lake Cowichan and similar centres.

On another topic, Campbell denied he had counselled Cowichan Indians to form a separate municipality.

He said in reply to Strachan he had also proposed to the Indians the other alternative of joining Duncan. Strachan said it would be a move away from "municipal unity" being promoted by the government to encourage new municipalities.

Rent-to-Pay Formula Out Says Minister

LORIMER
. . . urges land banks

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell said Wednesday he is hopeful the "rent-to-income" formula for public housing projects can be junked before too long.

"There is no meaningful way you can apply it with any kind of social conscience," he told the legislature during debate on municipal affairs department estimates which were approved after five hours' discussion.

The "welter of bookkeeping" involved in administering a rent-tied-to-income system is unsatisfactory, Campbell said.

'BETTER WAY'

"We say there is a better way," he added, but did not elaborate on what alternate methods might be achieved through negotiation with the federal government. Proposals have been made, he said.

Campbell is responsible for housing, in particular the shared-cost urban-renewal projects carried out in co-operation with Ottawa.

James Lorimer (NDP—Burnaby-Willingdon) said the government had not been doing enough to provide low-rental housing problems. It was only constructing "low-rental barracks" and would not solve the problem of costs unless land banks were created and land speculation stopped.

SHIFT IN COSTS

Lorimer also said municipalities were having difficulty in getting the funds to provide services, and more and more of the cost burden was being shifted to them by the province.

Alex Macdonald (NDP—Vancouver East), called for the setting up of a provincial housing authority to assemble land for housing.

NDP leader Dave Barrett told Campbell the municipality of Fraser Mills near Coquitlam, is "tweaking the nose" of the government. The community is a wholly-owned townsite of Crown Zellerback used as a "tax dodge," he said.

'DIFFICULTY'

He pointed out Campbell had said he would require the community to amalgamate with Coquitlam, but this had not been done yet.

"He has difficulty merging his cream with his coffee . . . he has trouble mixing metaphors," said Barrett, referring to Campbell's attempts to encourage the amalgamation of communities.

Barrett said Campbell will be "the first Easter egg" of the season on the basis of his elaborately decorated but "hollow" pronouncements about amalgamation.

Campbell indicated action on the matter could be expected within a year.

BUILDING CODE

He also told Dave Brousson (L—North Vancouver-Capilano) that he is hopeful progress toward a standard provincial building code can be stepped up in the coming year.

Dr. Scott Wallace (SC—Oak Bay) said there should be an integrated system of tax assessment set up under the aegis of regional districts and called for more help to home-owners to understand their assessments.

Change to Help Small Operators

A recommendation of the legislative standing committee on forestry would make the share of annual allowable tree harvest that must be contracted out by holders of tree farm licences based on volume rather than on costs.

The change was accepted unanimously by the committee members, although committee chairman James Chabot (SC — Columbia River) said the recommendation goes contrary to objections raised by the large forestry companies.

Chabot said the companies said the recommendation to base contracting on volume was "unworkable," but added that they "never gave us the reasons why."

Complaints had been made by some small contractors that they haven't been given their full allowable cut under the method of basing their part of the harvest on costs.

The recommendation can be implemented by regulation and does not require passing through the legislature.

Better Facilities

Members of the legislature can expect better facilities for the next legislative session, the house was told last night by Public Works Minister W. N. Chant.

Chant said the facilities for MLAs were "certainly inadequate" and he expected to have them improved. It had been hoped facilities would be solved by this session, but other difficulties had arisen, the minister said.

The matter was raised by James Chabot (SC — Columbia River) who described the facilities for MLAs as "completely disgraceful" especially for the government backbenchers. It was difficult to conduct the business of the people of the province under these conditiins, he said.

The $27.7 million of estimates were approved after an hour of discussion.

Hospital Debt Highest In Ten Years

LADYSMITH — Ladysmith and District General Hospital had a deficit of $25,000 after last year's operation, the highest in 10 years.

John Ulinder, government representative on the hospital association and last year's finance committee chairman, told the annual general meeting the hospital had been scraping by for several years by drawing from other funds.

"We've taken almost all we can," indicating the deficit may have to be added to the tax rolls this year.

He said $15,000 had been taken from improvement district financing in 1964. Two years ago, $4,600 had come from an endowment fund and $13,000 last year was transferred from the construction fund which no longer exists.

Total operating expenses in 1969 were $443,930 of which $347,784 went to wages and employee benefits, $17,661 for drugs and medicines and $17,891 for food and supplies.

President Stan Heys said continued pressure would be put on BCHIS until badly needed floor space is made available.

He said the Cowichan Valley Regional Hospital Board "still leaves something to be desired" in its handling of hospital affairs.

Hospital auxiliary president Mrs. Valda Gourlay presented a financial statement which showed $5,325 was contributed directly to the hospital, most of which went for beds and a new thermopatch mending machine.

'Teachers Should Talk Pollution'

Teachers who bring up the subject of pollution in their classes came up for discussion again Wednesday in the legislature, with Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell criticizing "overstatement" of the problem.

The opposition took the opportunity during discussion of the estimates of the municipal affairs department to reply to Campbell's criticism.

Pollution is a "big problem" in North America, James Lorimer (NDP—Burnaby-Willingdon) said, and teachers should be telling children about it.

"They should be told there are remedies to correct the difficulties," he added, "and I think it is reasonable to say the government has not done their share."

Other NDP members suggested children had a better understanding of the problem of pollution than Campbell, and chided him for "a disgusting performance" that condemned school teachers in a "blanket way."

'NEGATIVE' LOOK

The minister replied he thought it was as educationally wrong to overstate a case as to understate it. Young people had been "inundated by the impact of a negative look at problems" in recent years.

There was no more complex problem than environmental control, Campbell added, and it takes 50 per cent of energy to define the problem and 50 per cent to find a solution.

Eileen Dailly (NDP—Burnaby North) suggested Campbell, a former school teacher, should go back to teaching so he would know what children are being taught in schools today.

Big Mouth Champ

BUFFALO, N.Y, (AP) — What makes a champion? "A big mouth and an empty stomach," says Duane Kupka, 12. Duane won the western New York regional doughnut eating contest Tuesday by devouring eight jelly-filled doughnuts in five minutes.

SOCREDS 'BACKING MOVE FOR U.S. COAL ROUTE'

Leo Nimsick (NDP — Kootenay) Wednesday called for an urgent debate in the legislature to discuss an application by the Kootenay and Elk Railway Company to connect rail lines with the Great Northern Railway of the United States.

The Canadian railway has made the application to the Canadian Transportation Commission, and Nimsick says, has the support of the provincial government.

The government's action, Nimsick added, threatens "the economic security of thousands of B.C. railway workers and further the economic stability and potential growth of the town of Revelstoke and the whole Kootenay Valley."

The connection would result in the shipment of Kaiser coal from the Kootenays through the United States to Robert's Bank, Nimsick said, and the province was insisting that the American route should be used to ship the coal.

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson replied there was no need for an emergency debate because Nimsick had freely and fully discussed the question previously.

Bunny Hops Into Day

By JACK SCOTT

It was awful early for a girl who doesn't really feel back in the human race before noon. But once again The Singing Leap Method of Getting Up in the Dawn's Early Light saved the day.

Getting up at frightful hours is the occupational hazard of little Nancy McNeil, of Los Angeles, perhaps better known in racier circles as Playboy Magazine's Playmate of last July. It was yet another triumph of the human spirit that Nancy faced a new day at precisely 6:30 this morning and somehow survived.

Tonight she'll grace the opening of the Quartermilers Club's Autorama 70 at the Esquimalt Sports Centre, living testimony to the theory that the only way to get out of bed when luckier people are snug in their's is to sort of explode into wakefulness.

"The Singing Leap Method is the only thing that works for people like me," explained the brown-haired, grey-blue eyed, 22-year-old gatefold girl who, in fact, looks more like every man's idea of the perfect kid sister than an itinerant sex symbol.

"On these tours you always have to be up when you just can't stand being up," Nancy sighed.

"There are planes to catch, newspapermen waiting to interview you, organizers with great, long schedules waiting to whip you away from your nice warm bed. So here I am, a girl who normally takes three hours to wake up, a girl whose heart really doesn't start to beat until late afternoon. Oh, I can be mean in the dawn.

"I finally learned that the only thing that works is to make it a plunge, to sort of hurl yourself into the day, hooting and singing, thinking happy, idiotic thoughts and never, never look back at the bed."

A Meanie in the Morning

It was a particularly grim test of the theory this morning. Nancy hadn't bedded down in the Empress until after midnight after a delayed flight from Los Angeles. Her luggage hadn't got any farther than Seattle. She was more than a little disoriented. Nobody had told her that Victoria was on an island. "Sometimes I don't know where I am," she confessed, "but this is ridiculous."

The Singing Leap Method worked again.

"I just careened out of bed at 6:30, tottered into the shower and sang selections from 'Oklahoma! Oh, What a Beautiful Morning' is my best song in the morning, especially when it's a morning I particularly hate. So then I lathered my face with Jergens and I turned the radio up loud — anything will do so long as it isn't country and western — and by that time the breakfast had come, a poached egg, honeyed crumpets, the first I ever had, and a huge pot of tea.

"I looked out the window and saw that it was going to be sunny and I put on my eyes and congratulated myself that I was really up again."

Nancy, who is five-foot-two and weighs 109 pounds, draws the line at exercising in the morning — keeps her splendid figure, she says, by doing push-ups before bedtime — but thinks she has stumbled on a theory that could benefit every woman.

"Once you're over the mornings everything takes care of itself," she explained. "But you know how it is first thing. You can lie there worrying, feeling anxious, sometimes homesick, wondering who you are and all that. I guess every woman has mornings when she thinks, 'Maybe I'll just stay here forever.' We're the kind of women who have to do it the Singing Leap Way. It's agony, yes, but before you know it you're ready to face the world again."

Gov't Cost Formula For Public Health 'Impossible'—Curtis

Local government leaders reacted sharply Wednesday to a disclosure that cost-sharing for regionalized public health services will be on the basis of the province paying two-thirds and the region one-third.

"It is to say the least impossible," Capital Regional District board chairman, Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis, told board directors.

The board received a copy of a letter from Health Minister Ralph Loffmark to Mrs. Rubymay Parrott, chairman of the Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health.

He said he has instructed his officials to proceed to set up necessary administrative machinery to transfer health board responsiblities to the Capital Regional District as soon as this can be accomplished.

"The costs of operating public health services within the Capital Regional District will for the time being be shared by the province and the regional district on the basis of two-thirds: one-third sharing."

ALTERNATIVES

Loffmark said two alternatives are open to the regional district to the problem of staff shortages, especially public health inspectors:

1. The district raise the necessary money by a tax levy and apply it to salaries to employ staff on a non-shareable basis;
2. The provincial government will confer power on regional district by amendment to letters patent to charge fees for services including tests and inspections.

This aspect was covered in a government health bill suddenly withdrawn in the legislature Tuesday night.

Regional district executive director William Long explained that Victoria, Oak Bay and Esquimalt are paying $2.60 per capita while all other areas are paying 30 cents per capita.

In 1968, almost 80 per cent of local public health costs were paid by the province and in 1969, because of unfilled staff positions, this was 76 per cent.

On this basis, the regional district had recommended that the cost sharing be split 80-20 with the province picking up the larger amount.

Loffmark, however, has put forward the figure of two thirds; one third but did say a meeting will be called at an early date to discuss this and other matters in greater detail.

Long said a two thirds: one third split is "not too much improvement" over the existing system. It was not known whether school boards would be charged their actual charge for health services or if the region would pay one-third of the gross costs "and this is very significant."

Saanich Ald. Edith Gunning called Loffmark's decision "dictatorial" and said there was no prior consultation. Even the letter was just a copy for the regional district.

Curtis said suburban areas would pay $1.80 per capita instead of 30 cents. While it was recognized these areas have enjoyed a bargain and there should be equality in costs "six times at the whim of government is not acceptable."

The board decided to write Loffmark asking for answers and expressing "consternation" that there was no prior consultation.

Harem for Haida? It's Just Possible

Haida, Sealand's star killer whale, may have hit the jackpot and received two future brides instead of one.

Sealand president Bob Wright said today they suspect that both the white whale and her normal-colored companion put in the pen Tuesday are female.

"We should know sometime next week when they start rolling over and relaxing more."

Today both the white whale and the other new one were taking food given by hand by trainer Graeme Ellis.

As if to make up for his concentration on the white whale Wednesday, Haida took on a feeding chore himself.

Low-Income Burn-In Fizzles at Legislature

The burning, organized by the Victoria Low Income Group, was a fizzle.

And the first to admit it was Elaine Olszewski, vice-president, and spokesman for the group.

"We are disappointed," she said. "We expected many people would turn up with their bills for us to burn. We have made public fools of ourselves because those who supported us didn't come."

NO COMPLAINTS

"Well," she added philosophically, "they had their chance. They shouldn't complain now."

The bills, numbering about 15, were placed in a cooking pan, a grid placed over it, and burned in front of a small crowd on the lawn of the legislature.

They were burned despite a warning from Fire Chief Eric Simmons that a city bylaw states no person shall light a fire in a public place unless authorized by the chief.

He refused to grant the group a permit.

'GO TO JAIL'

"I haven't got the money to pay a fine," she said. "So if they lay a charge, I'll go to jail. I have five children at home. Three of them sick. But this is the only way. . . ."

About 15 members of the Low Income Group and old age pensioners turned up with placards protesting the 15 per cent increase effective April 1.

SMALL CROWD

A small crowd of elderly people turned up to watch the burning but they appeared extremely timid — as if fearful to be associated with the group. They kept their distance.

Said Mrs. Olszewski: We went to a great deal of trouble to organize this protest because we received a lot of support. Then only a few people turned up. I guess Victorians don't like to protest this way.

"But they forget we don't like either to demonstrate this way," she added. "We felt this was the only way to do it because the government won't listen — won't pay attention to petitions."

She pointed out people on low of fixed incomes, and those on welfare simply could not afford to pay the 15 per cent increase.

"Yes — I'm disappointed they didn't turn up."

Mrs. Olszewski showed she was anti-pollution conscious.

Labor Heads Study Next Library Move

Two leading trade union men met with Mayor Courtney Haddock this morning to discuss the Greater Victoria library situation.

The library has been the centre of controversy for the past two weeks since a firm of consultants recommended staff cuts to save cash.

Jack Groves, president of the Victoria Labor Council, and secretary Larry Ryan asked for their meeting with the mayor after being rebuffed by the library board earlier this week when they attempted to discuss proposed changes in staffing.

Following their meeting with Haddock both men said they were satisfied that their views would now be made known to the proper authorities.

"We shall report back to our table officers and the executive and from that meeting will come a decision on our next step," Groves said.

Driver Careless In Death Crash

The teen-age driver of a car in which he and three others were killed when it collided head-on with a truck March 1 was driving in a careless manner and caused the deaths, a coroner's jury concluded Wednesday.

The jury also said Victoria should have its own facilities for analysis of specimens in traffic accident investigations instead of having to be sent to a Vancouver laboratory.

The coroner's jury absolved truck driver James Lott, 565 Heatherly, of any blame in the accident on a two-lane part of Douglas near Vanalman in Saanich.

Previous testimony indicated the driver of the car, Robert Stevenson, of 1038 Kings, had reached down with one hand just before the car swerved into the truck's lane.

The other victims were Gordon Hall, 16, of 2538 Graham, Joseph Child, 17, of 1322 Ivy Place, and Gordon Hungle, 15, of 3292 Bellevue.

PAT BAY WIDENING TO TUNE OF $1.7M

A $1.7 million contract has been awarded for widening the Patricia Bay Highway to four lanes from Rogers Avenue to Cherry Tree Bend, some 2.95 miles.

The highways department announced that Edco Construction Co. of Vancouver is expected to complete the job within a year.

Arthur Mayse . . .

A GROUP OF NEWLY-ascended souls clusters outside the pearly gates. On the inside, St. Peter seems to be having trouble with the lock.

Predictably, one of the waiters-for-entry shoves his way up front.

"No offence," says he, "But if you'll just take that key and rub it in your beard, then bend it a little to the left . . ."

A non-saint might be tempted to tell him where to go. But the Keeper of the Gates is well aware that of all human weaknesses, advice-giving is the hardest to shake.

The urge to advise is universal. I yield to it frequently, and so, I expect, do you. In fact, I've yet to meet anyone who is fully proof against it.

If you wish to test this claim, pick a tight parking space on a busy street. At the second pass—or probably the first if the driver is a woman—an advice-giver will take up station on the curb.

"Back a little," he will instruct. "A little more . . . not too much . . . cramp the wheels hard over . . . easy now, easy . . . go ahead a foot . . . watch it! . . . back . . . forward . . . back."

All this to an accompaniment of urgent hand-flappings

It's possible that the unsought helper knows what he's about. Or he may not. Lack of knowledge rarely stops an advice-giver from confounding issues and complicating situations.

In fact, complete ignorance of the matter under discussion can be an aid rather than an impediment when counsel is being dispensed.

A while ago, I was trying vainly to squeeze outboard motor gear lubricant from a fat tube. The beach where this tussle took place had been completely empty when I began what should have been a simple operation. But in seconds, an adviser materialized.

"Nothing to it," he volunteered. "What happens is that the grease gets a little sluggish. Just put your tube on that rock and tramp on it."

I tramped. The tube burst. I was wiping grease off my pants when the marina operator sauntered down. He picked up the split tube, inspected it, then spoke mildly.

Life has taught me that the way to win top rating as a fountain of wisdom is to wait until you're asked, then let the advice-seeker do practically all the talking. All you need supply is the occasional nod, grunt or shrug. If pressed for answers, make 'em completely ambiguous.

Your neighbor, let us suppose, is having the devil of a time starting his power mower. He asks your opinion. You may be itching to tell him his trouble is a gummed-up carburetor.

But much better to peer, frown, give the machine a sniff or two, then return the play to him with a question.

"What's it seem like?"

He may then reel off various possibilities. Should have bought a new sparkplug. Gas line clogged, maybe. Or it could be the air cleaner.

"Could be," you agree, thus covering each contingency he's listed. At this point, it's sound tactics to remove the gas tank cap—even a dunce can see if he's put fuel in—replace cap, then pull on the starting cord. If the motor catches, you're a wizard. If it doesn't, at least you were in there helping.

In the latter case, you're now free to supply the final touch. "Well," you say, "it could need a minor adjustment or you could have a real problem here."

You're off the hook, with a foolproof judgment rendered.

That's the ideal attitude, but it isn't easy to attain. It's so much more satisfying to open the mouth and let the advice come tumbling out.

Like most parents, I advised our children to a fare-ye-well,. Luckily for them, they paid about as much heed as their parents did when exposed to similiar preachments.

The times were bad, we were told. We were drastically unsuited to each other, we had no money, and newspaper men make notoriously poor marriage risks.

In the course of our many happy years together, we've worked out a policy on advice from which we rarely slip.

Give advice if you must . . . but think twice before taking it!

NOOTKA DANCERS TO PERFORM

Legends handed down over the centuries will be told through lilting melodies and dancing to rhythmic drum beats Saturday when Nootka Indians from the Hesquiaht Reserve perform at the Newcombe Auditorum at 8 p.m.

Coming from all over the Island, the colorfully-dressed Nootkans will perform native dances in a special program sponsored jointly by themselves and the Provincial Museum.

The dancers will be under the direction of Chief Ben Andrew and a commentator will translate the legends to the audience.

CHERRY NUT RING

Cherries, Pecans Top Coffee Cake

Cherry Nut Ring with its rich combination of brown sugar, cherries and pecans can make a plain fruit dessert into a real treat.

In spite of its elegant appearance, this ring is one of the easier of the yeast recipes to prepare because it is made from a batter rather than a dough. Batters, with their higher proportion of liquid to flour, are mixed more quickly. Kneading steps are eliminated.

CHERRY NUT RING

3 to 4 cups unsifted all-purpose flour
½ cup sugar
1 tsp. salt
1 pkg. (1 tbsp.) rapidmix active dry yeast
1 cup milk
½ cup water
½ cup margarine
1 egg (at room temperature)

TOPPING

½ cup unsifted all-purpose flour
½ cup chopped pecans
½ cup firmly packed light brown sugar
1 can (14 oz.) red pitted cherries, well drained.

In a large bowl, thoroughly mix 1 cup flour, sugar, salt and undissolved rapidmix active dry yeast.

Combine milk, water and margarine in a saucepan. Heat over low heat until liquids are hot to the touch. (Hot to the touch is as hot as the hand can withstand).

Gradually add to dry ingredients and beat two minutes at medium speed of electric mixer, or vigorously with a mixing spoon, scraping bowl occasionally. Add egg and ½ cup flour. Beat at medium speed two minutes, or vigorously with mixing spoon, scraping bowl occasionally.

With mixing spoon stir in enough additional flour to make a stiff batter. (Do not knead). Cover bowl tightly with aluminum foil. Refrigerate dough at least two hours. (Dough may be kept in refrigerator three days).

When ready to shape dough, combine ½ cup flour, pecans and brown sugar. Turn dough out onto lightly floured board and divide in half. Roll ½ of the dough into a 14 by 7 inch rectangle. Spread with ¾ cup cherries. Sprinkle with ½ the brown sugar mixture.

Roll up from long side as for jelly roll. Seal edges. Place sealed edge down in circle on greased baking sheet. Seal ends together firmly. Cut slits 2-3 through ring at one-inch intervals: turn each section on its side. Repeat with remaining dough, cherries and brown sugar mixture.

Bake in moderate oven (375 degrees F.) about 20 to 25 minutes, or until done. Remove from baking sheets and cool on wire racks. Frost while warm.

Makes two coffee cakes.

Penny in Search Of Luxurious Towels

By PENNY SAVER

"Dahling," I said to Jayne in my best television tones. "Wherevah did you find these wonderful towels?"

"Wedding present," she replied without even turning round. "All my towels are wedding presents. That one," she continued after giving it a glance, "came from a friend who was at that time studying in the U.S. of A. But I seem to remember . . . yes, I did see ones like them in a store in town here. Do you want to know where?"

What a silly question!

When I reached the shop I learned that the proprietor had decided to discontinue selling towels and has put her stock on sale. The sale will continue only as long as the stock lasts, so don't delay if this interests you!

The towel I noticed at Jayne's is very thick and nice and in plain color.

One side is the usual loopy terry cloth but the other has been cut and combed to make a very, very soft, velvet-like surface. The feeling as you run your hand over it is one of luxury.

The towels like this in the shop here have a band of unnapped fabric for the hem and come in strong solid colors such as loden green, tangerine, dark turquoise, deep blue and a rich gold.

The regular price for a bath towel like this is $6.95 but the sale price is $4.49. Hand towels are $2.95, down from $3.95 while face cloths are 98 cents, regular $1.49.

The same company makes a lower priced towel in a nice thick terry that has been sculptured into a floral pattern. These come in the same bright, strong colors and have a fringed border.

The bath size towel in this line is regularly $4.49 but is now selling for $3.49. Hand towels are down from $2.79 to $2.10 and wash cloths from $1.19 to 89 cents. There is also a finger-tip size towel in this line that is regularly $1.59 but is selling at $1.10 while the stock lasts.

"I never promised you a wind chime," pouted my husband, when I asked him for the fifty-fourth time when he would get me one.

"No, but you did agree it would be nice."

"So buy one, already."

"But you'll say it's ugly."

It probably will be," he said, in an exasperated tone. "Aren't they all?"

But the very next day he came home and presented me with a wind chime that isn't ugly.

It is made of bamboo and has a face that vaguely resembles an owl—or a pussycat depending on which you think of first.

This wind chime costs $1.89 and comes in a golden natural shade or a wine color.

The chiming part is a cluster of bamboo pieces which hang below the face. The face itself is a kind of mobile with the ears being chunks of bamboo cut on a slant and the eyes, yellow strips of bamboo shaped into a circle with a ball inside to make the pupil, are suspended within the circle of the head.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Battered Marriage

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I will try to make this short but I have so much to tell I could write a book.

I've been married 11 years. We have three wonderful but upset children. My husband has beaten me several times. Sometimes I had it coming, but most of the time I didn't.

The first few years he'd blacken my eyes and bust my jaw which kept me home from work a lot, but after I got out a warrant for his arrest he quit messing my face up. But he started in on my stomach and breasts, and he'd also just about twist my arms and legs off and pull me all over the house by my hair.

Finally I called it quits and filed for divorce. Then you never saw a sweeter guy. He begged and pleaded and laid his paycheck at my feet, so I took him back. I was beginning to love him all over again.

In two weeks he was accusing me of other men and he practically pulled my hair out by the roots trying to get me to confess. I had nothing to confess, but I yelled so loud the neighbors called the police, so now he is locked up again.

Should I let him rot there? His people are telling me that my children need a father and Jesus forgave seven times seven and all that jazz, but I don't think I can take any more of him. What do you advise?—Had It.

DEAR HAD IT: Your children need a father, but they also need a living mother. Your husband sounds sick. But sick or well, he's dangerous, and if you continue to live with a man of this description, you ought to have your head examined.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is currently in the hospital where he will be confined for about six more months. Although he is restricted to bed, there are still some things he is capable of.

We are practically newlyweds, and since he does have a private room, we feel that what we do behind closed doors is our business. But it seems that the nurses want to run our lives, and every time we are alone they find some excuse to come in and interrupt us. We used to be embarrassed, but now we are just plain mad! We spoke to the supervisor, and she says we have no right to that much pricacy. For $62.50 per day, we disagree. What do you think? — Frustrated.

DEAR FRUSTRATED: I think if prisoners in some states are permitted conjugal visits, hospital patients who are physically able should be allowed the same. Talk to your husband's doctor. He could issue doctor's orders. Lotsa luck.

DEAR ABBY: When I was 13 years old, two other girls and I were caught taking a few cheap items from the cosmetic counter of a department store. They took us to the manager's office and we had to give them our names and addresses. We were told that they were going to call our parents, but fortunately, they never did.

Of course we gave back everything we had taken, and we promised that we would never set foot in that store again, and I know, I never did. We also promised we'd never steal another thing. I kept that promise.

Now I am 22 years old and in filling out a job application, I understand the question "Have you ever been arrested" is asked. If I come across it, how should I answer? — Santa Ana.

DEAR SANTA ANA: Say 'NO. You were only caught and warned. That is not the same as being "arrested."

PARENTS JOIN IN THE SWIM-A-THON

Local swimming clubs have been taking part in a nation-wide Swim-a-Thon sponsored by the Canadian Amateur Swimming Association, in an attempt to raise money for travelling and other team expenses. Members of the Vic-O's finished their Swim-a-Thon a few weeks ago, and the Juan de Fuca Cohoes are swimming as many lengths as they can in this week's two-hour sessions. Helping out club members are a number of the parents, who plan to try for as many lengths as possible, too. In the picture at left are three of the mothers, coming in well behind their children, although Lynn Ward, nearest camera, isn't so slow herself — she is a former competitive swimmer. Next to her is Mrs. Pat Dobbyn with Mrs. Sievert Bultena, far left. Children waiting for the slow-pokes are from left: Theresa and Kelly Dobbyn, Betty Bultena, Liz Ward and Bob Bultena who appears to have gone to sleep while waiting. Above is coach Dr. Jim Portelance with his three children, Ronny, Doug and Margie. In this case, Dr. Portelance, a British Empire Games medallist, is still ahead of his children, all members of the Coho club. (Robin Clarke Photos).

Women

Militant Men's Group Sounds Call to Arms

By RUSSELL BAKER

WASHINGTON — Every liberation movement produces an equal and opposite liberation movement. Thus, the first organizational meetings of men's liberation are now being held across the country.

Here, for example, seven male militants who are fed up with female chauvinism and department-store credit cards met secretly in Georgetown the other night and adopted a radical program aimed at snapping the chains in which women have traditionally bound the American man.

Surprising unanimity was found on most major issues. As a slogan, the cry of "power to the man people!" was adopted by the Georgetown chapter without a dissenting vote until somebody pointed out that it would be disgraceful in this day and age not to have some dissent.

The liveliest debate of the evening centered upon a resolution condemning the female establishment for regarding men as sex symbols. Five of the members protested the resolution and, instead, forced adoption of a substitute condemning the female power structure for regarding men as dollar signs.

It was decided not to dynamite the Bethesda-Chevy Chase Bridge Club or the Armory Flower Show until non-violent tactics had been tried and proved unsuccessful. This normally requires six months, according to a recent study of American protest.

In the meantime, the group decided, it will adopt a program of harassment aimed at bringing the plight of the American man to a public which is presumed to be bored with plights because of the vast number of plights being brought to its attention every day.

As part of this program, members' voted to send poison-pen letters to Liberace, and to picket a number of celebrated TV situation comedies, such as the reruns of "I Love Lucy," on the ground that depicting the American man as an imbecile for purposes of mass entertainment is insulting to the stronger sex.

"I look at the TV screen and the ads, and there is this person who is half-witted or a cowboy, and that's what's called a man," said one of the Georgetown seven.

"To be a man in this white feminist society," said another, "is to be nothing. Even the woman at home doing the laundry while watching 'Dark Shadows' doesn't want to be a man sleeping off his lunch at the office at 4 p.m. because she realizes that except for a hangover he's got nothing after she gets through paying the bills."

All members of the Georgetown chapter agreed that they resented outmoded courting patterns which require them to pick up the dinner check or buy the movie tickets when they spend an evening with a female.

Alarmed by reports that feminine sexists are studying karate, javelin throwing and Greco-Roman wrestling, for reasons that are still somewhat mysterious, men's liberation of Georgetown called upon men everywhere to go to the gym three times a week, eat plenty of energy-building foods and learn to box, in the French style, using the feet.

Realistic radical men militants fearful of sexists feminine chauvinism's exploitation complain that most American men are too sexistically downtrodden to strike out against their exploiters. This is one of the reasons, they say, why women's liberation was able to make off with all the most unintelligible jargon, leaving the men with nothing but warmed-over cliches to stir the masculine blood.

"What do the men want?" many women ask in bewilderment. "What in the world do they want?"

"What do I want?" replies a typical member of men's lib. "I want a society in which I have as much leisure time as a woman. I want a society in which I get a chance to spend some time with the children.

"I want a world in which, if my wife hears a noise downstairs at 3 a.m. and thinks it might be a burglar, she does not wake me up to go down and see. I want a society in which, when I try to pay for a new pair of socks with a credit card, the sales clerk does not refuse to accept it because it bears only my wife's signature. I want a world . . ." and so on.

None of the members of Georgetown's men's lib expects much success against the feminine power structure. Some confess to being cowed by their oppressors' new militancy.

As one put it, "Hell hath no fury like a woman with no household drudgery to speak of and a world of leisure on her hands."

Red Streamers Litter Legislature

The Vancouver Women's Caucus collided with Health Minister Ralph Loffmark Wednesday and the result was a pile of debris on the floor of the Legislature.

The women, dissatisfied with Loffmark's response to their demands for more accessible therapeutic abortions, threw paper and red streamers from the public galleries.

One woman was detained and taken to the Speaker's office where she was sternly dressed down.

The Vancouver women are demanding that Loffmark take responsibility for providing more facilities and information on therapeutic abortion, birth control information and sterilization.

The 17 women spent the morning marching in front of the Legislative Buildings and distributing leaflets to Victoria area hospitals and shopping centres.

The caucus contends that the British North America Act gives the provincial government control of health.

CHANGE APPROACH

"I don't work in a world of demands," he said. "I work in a world of persuasion."

He suggested the women would have better success with their demands if they changed their approach to the problem.

Loffmark also suggested the women tackle the federal government and the Criminal Code of Canada which defines the conditions and facilities under which abortions are permitted.

Facilities include accredited hospitals and hospitals designated by the provincial health minister.

When Loffmark said he had designated all the hospitals he could, caucus members asked that abortion clinics be set up.

Loffmark shot back, "You change the Criminal Code and I'll change the administration of the Code."

Caucus members asked the health minister to take the initiative in appealing to Ottawa.

"We're asking you to be our leader," they said.

"I decline—with thanks," replied Loffmark.

"Will you follow us?" they countered.

"No," stated Loffmark, "but I'll be a sympathetic observer."

Loffmark said he agreed with the caucus that the Criminal Code was not adequate, that "it should be more humane and far broader than it is now."

But, he pointed out, this was his personal opinion and he was not going to challenge the authority of the federal code.

Unifarm Formed, Joins With UFA

EDMONTON (CP) Alberta's new farm organization, Unifarm, today supported national association by moving to join the Canadian Federation of Agriculture.

The AFA belonged to the Canadian Federation, a national affiliation of eight provincial organizations, prior to amalgamation with the union.

About 500 delegates to the Unifarm founding convention considered four alternatives:

Some Get Bail

CALGARY (CP) — Bail of $5,000 cash or property was granted Wednesday for two of 13 motorcyclists jointly charged with non-capital murder. Two other applications were refused by Alberta Supreme Court Justice W. J. C. Kirby.

Bail was granted Andrew Decore, 20, of Red Deer, and David James Kuntz, 19, of Calgary, bringing to seven the number of motorcyclists granted bail.

Applications by Richard Lionel Roy, 19, and George Stewart Lowe, 27, both of Calgary, were refused, as were earlier applications by Ronald Lambert Emkeit, 24, and Lou Irwin Emkeit, 20, also of Calgary.

Longer Pool Hours

EDMONTON (CP) — The Alberta legislature Wednesday gave first reading to legislation that will allow municipalities to pass bylaws allowing pool halls to remain open on Sundays after 1:30 p.m.

Similar Act

EDMONTON (CP) — Alberta's Social Credit government Wednesday introduced a new Labor Act, similar to British Columbia's controversial legislation, in that it allows the government to order compulsory arbitration in contract disputes affecting "life, property or the vital needs of the public." Alberta labor leaders say the new legislation would end collective bargaining for 60 per cent of organized labor.

'Arrogance' Charges Levelled

WINNIPEG (CP) — Charges of arrogance towards the opposition were levelled at the New Democratic Party government today in the Manitoba legislature as it attempted to gain second reading of its $130,000,000 capital supply estimates.

The criticism arose when Jake Froese (SC—Rhineland) attempted to adjourn debate on the estimates so he could give them further study.

His motion was defeated with the Conservatives and Liberals supporting the lone Social Credit member against the government.

Opposition leader Walter Weir charged that the government was making "unnecessary use of closure" in the debate.

"He asked for time, and the government said say anything you want to say but say it today," Weir said, referring to Froese's motion.

The Conservative leader said he understood the government's desire to have the capital supply estimates approved by the end of the month but added that it would have been possible to have done this and still have adjourned debate until Monday.

"This is an example of open government, open when they want to talk but not so open when someone on this side wants to talk," Weir said.

Liberal house leader Gordon Johnston said the opposition parties want to co-operate with the government "but we do not want to be bullied about."

Warner Jorgenson (PC—Morris) said the government action was "arbitrary, arrogant and showed no consideration for the feelings of others."

Finance Minister Saul Cherniack, who moved second reading, said if he could get approval in principle today the supply estimates could be discussed in committee of the whole Monday, thus meeting the request of Froese for additional time to study them.

Tub Race Set

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Manitoba Centennial Corp. has scheduled a six-mile bathtub race on the Red River on Aug. 15. A spokesman said the race is modelled on the annual Nanaimo-to-Vancouver event.

'Teach Indian Tongue'

OTTAWA (CP) — Indian languages and culture should be part of the curriculum at any school attended by a significant number of Indians, Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien said Wednesday.

Replying to questions from delegates at a national Indian cultural conference here, Chretien also said he has written to provincial education ministers to see about rewriting history texts to recognize adequately the contributions to history by some native figures. Metis leader Louis Riel was one such figure mentioned.

Some delegates suggested May 24 should be declared National Indian Day.

"There would be some in the Commons who would not like that very much," the minister replied.

"As for me, I don't mind."

War Hurts Egypt's Oil Flow

By JOHN CHADWICK

EL ALAMEIN, U.A.R. (Reuters) — With oilfields crippled or threatened by the Middle East conflict, Egypt is searching for fresh sources of oil and new routes to world markets.

At Suez, once the centre of Egypt's oil industry, a $110,000,000 refinery lies in twisted ruins and is abandoned.

Farther south, in the shimmering early summer heat of the Gulf of Suez, the precious Murgan offshore oilfields lie close to the daily battles between Egyptian and Israeli forces and are vulnerable.

But near the war memorials commemorating the famous battle here in 1942 between Britain's Gen. Bernard Montgomery and Field-Marshal Erwin Rommel of Germany, a narrow strip of asphalt seesaws 20 miles into the desert to a new group of oil wells.

Three miles out to sea, a $2,000,000 floating dock provides the way out to European markets. Here the closing of the Suez canal does not matter.

The big tankers have started coming—six or seven a month. The floating dock, especially designed to offset the Mediterranean coast's lack of deep natural harbors, can take vessels up to 100,000 tons deadweight.

LIBYA OIL-RICH

Neighboring Libya, whose young new revolutionary leaders have close ties with Egyptian President Nasser, has immense oil earnings.

Amid the minefields left by the British and German armies more than a quarter of a century ago, seismologists are at work here in the hope of transforming Egypt's first promising strikes in the region into a similar oil bonanza.

The Arab-Israeli war of June, 1967, cost Egypt 5,000,000 tons a year from the oil wells in Israeli-occupied Sinai. But the Egyptians have since managed to boost their annual production to about 15,000,000 tons.

This is a small figure by the standards of the oil-rich Middle East. But exports to the Soviet Union, China, Japan, Spain, Italy, Yugoslavia and Switzerland have doubled in the first three months of the present financial year. The investment is mainly American.

DISCOVERED IN 1966

The first Alamein find was in December, 1966. Today 40,000 barrels a day pour from 12 wells at the northern rim of the Qattara Depression to the Mediterranean terminal.

After weeks of intensive Israeli air raids on the Egyptian hinterland, no one is taking any chances, even far behind the battlelines here. Soldiers stand beside anti-aircraft guns on the roof of the pumping station, staring into the blue Mediterranean sky.

"But in view of the American element in the oil exploration partnership, we hope the Israelis will lay off," an official said.

There have been other finds in the area. A natural gasfield off Alexandria will be able to supply most of the needs of Egypt's second largest city. A strike at Umbarka, farther west towards the Libyan border, is producing at the rate of 3,000 barrels a day.

Launch Site Fire Erupts, Burns 3 Cars

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Three space agency security cars burned on the Saturn V Apollo moon launching complex Wednesday when liquid oxygen fuel fumes ignited as they came in contact with the auto engines.

All three drivers escaped unhurt and damage was confined to the cars.

A National Aeronautics and Space Administration spokesman said the three cars were circling the area, making sure it was clear of personnel. The launch control centre had just picked up the final nine hours of a practice countdown for the Apollo 13 moon landing mission, and fuelling operations were under way on the Saturn V rocket.

The cars were about 1,500 feet from the rocket.

Officials said the fire would not affect the launch schedule, set for April 11.

Rare Shell Found

PORT LOUIS, Mauritius (Reuters) — A specimen of the rare seashell "Carus Maris Chemnitz," worth more than $1,200, has been found on a beach after a cyclone. The shell, about four inches long, is sometimes called the Glory of the Seas.

9 IN MEMORIAM

GADSBY—In loving memory of our son, Ted Gadsby, who passed away March 26, 1965.

We often sit and think of him
when we are all alone.
For memory is the only friend
that grief can call its own.
Like ivy on the withered oak,
when all other things decay,
Our love for him will still keep
green and never fade away.

—Always remembered by Mon and Dad, and the family.

HIGGS—In loving memory of our dear husband, father and grandfather, Horace, who departed this life March 26, 1966.

We often sit and think of him
when we are all alone.
For memory is the only friend
that grief can call its own.
Like ivy on the withered oak,
when all other things decay,
Our love for him will still keep
green and never fade away.

HOLIDAY TV HIGHLIGHTS, MOVIES

Tonight's Movies

9:00, Channel 7: The Power (1968 science fiction), George Hamilton, Suzanne Pleshette, Michael Rennie. Members of a space research team are killed by a mysterious force.

11:30, Channel 7: Sally and Saint Anne (1952 comedy), Anne Blyth, Edmund Gwenn. A corny but heartwarming story of a zany family.

11:40, Channel 2: Bitter Harvest (1963 English drama), Janet Munroe, John Stride. Moth-eaten plot about the village girl who goes to the big city and is soon caught in a web of vice and corruption.

12:00, Channels 6 and 8: Anastasia (1956 drama), Ingrid Bergman, Yul Brynner. Absorbing drama of an amnesiac girl in Germany who may or may not be the daughter of Czar Nicholas II of Russia. Miss Bergman won her second Oscar for this role.

Friday's Movies

8:00: Channel 8: My Six Loves (1963 comedy). Debbie Reynolds, Cliff Robertson, David Jansen. Comedy drama on the nauseating side, overloaded with sugary sentiment.

9:00: Channels 7 and 12: Where the Boys Are (1960 comedy). Dolores Hart, George Hamilton. The results of what college boys and girls do when on vacation in Fort Lauderdale are enough to throw fear into every parent—probably appreciated by the teenage set.

11:00: Channel 11: The Gunfighter (1950 western). Gregory Peck. One of Peck's best performances as the would-be-retired gunslinger Johnny Ringo. Very off-beat western for its time.

11:00: Channel 12: Ocean's 11 (1960 comedy). Frank Sinatra, Dean Martin. Ill-assorted group decides to pull a daring Las Vegas robbery.

11:00: Channel 13: Double Feature: The Fighter (1952 adventure). Richard Conte, Lee J. Cobb. A young patriot offers his services as a boxer to raise money for the cause in revolution-torn Mexico of 1910. Good fight melodrama, well done. Second movie to be announced.

11:30: Channel 7: Night Key (1937 melodrama). Boris Karloff, Warren Hull. A mild-mannered inventor is robbed of his burglar-alarm system by an unscrupulous partner.

11:40: Channel 2: Seven Cities of Gold (1955 adventure). Richard Egan, Anthony Quinn, Michael Rennie. Routine costume adventure tale about the Spanish Conquistaders 18th Century expedition to California.

12:00; Channel 6: My Six Loves (see above).

12:00: Channel 8: Zotz! (1962 comedy). Tom Poston. Professor finds an old coin with magic power to make people move in slow motion—moderate comedy, lacking necessary sparkle.

1:00: Channel 4: They Drive By Night (1940 drama). Ida Lupino, George Raft, Ann Sheridan. Story of competition in the trucking business. Plenty of action and excitement.

Tonight's Highlights

HOLLYWOOD PALACE. 7:30 p.m., Channel 8. Don Knotts is host, presenting singers Bobby Vinton, Gail Martin and the Checkmates, singer-dancer Cyd Charisse, musical comedy star Maureen Arthur and comedian Georgie Kaye. Don sings Mr. Excitement and Moonlight Bay, Cyd does Don't Rain on My Parade, and People.

BILL COSBY. 8 p.m., Channels 2 and 6. Blue language is the topic. Coach Chet Kincaid's top basketball player can't keep his language clean and it causes problems.

BONANAZA. 9 p.m., Channel 2. Caution: Easter Bunny Crossing. This is one of the season's funnier offerings. It features a quartet of bumbling Brooklyn would-be bad guys, and Hoss dressed up in a bunny outfit for a children's Easter party.

THURSDAY NIGHT. 10, Channels 2 and 6. Tonight it's A Summer Place, a light-hearted look at the places Canadians while away their summer weekends. Films seek out their favorite haunts ... cottages, summer resorts, crowded beaches and trout streams. Actor Bruno Gerussi, commentator Gordon Sinclair and Globe and Mail columnist Bruce West discuss their own summer places.

PAT PAULSEN'S HALF A COMEDY HOUR. 7:30 p.m., Channel 4. Pat tries a little of everything including a course on speedreading that generates some laughs. Paulsen lectures on Hollywood stuntmen only to take a pounding, and kids a one-man TV station on Channel 94 with some success. Carl Betz, in his second guest spot on two consecutive nights, appears as an attorney cross-examining poor Paulsen in front of a drunken judge.

THIS IS TOM JONES. 9 p.m., Channel 4. Our Welsh singing host has charming Jane Powell join him for a duet to "Hello Young Lovers" and a solo of "Child of Clay." Ray Charles comes on for a medley with Tom to "That Thing Called Love," "Understanding," "Crying Time" and "Bright Lights." Jones sings a rash of tunes including "The Snake," "Wandering Star" and "More," and comedian Bob Klein changes the pace with his routine.

DEAN MARTIN SHOW. 8:30 p.m., Channel 8; 10 p.m., Channel 5. Peggy Lee returns to work, and sings two medleys with Dean, in addition to solos of "Watch What Happens," and "It's Almost Like Being in Love." Dom DeLuise has another skit on the world's foremost detective, and he turns on the faucet as a talent agent Tommy Tune, from Martin's summer series, steps up for a version of "Sam, You Made the Pants Too Long," and summer recruit, Albert Brooks, tries a stockbroker monologue.

Friday's Highlights

ADVENTURE. 7:30, Channel 7. Special. "The Incredible Auto Race." Two courageous young Americans buy a second-hand Rambler, personally recondition the car to meet what they believe to be rally condition, and doggedly join a competitive 10,000-mile marathon, 11 days long, from London, England, to Sidney, Australia, involving 98 teams of professional auto racers from 14 countries, driving "precision instruments" rather than automobiles. Whether or not you're a racing enthusiast, tune in and watch our "underdogs" on their endurance contest. It's an experience in itself. As narrator Charles Kuralt reports, the main thing the two of them have going for them is "an almost blissful ignorance of what lies ahead."

HOGAN'S HEROES. 8:30, Channel 7: Good humored cat-and-mouse story with Colonel Klink biting at phoney POW escape plans. Klink thinks he's on to a key escape ring and cheerfully lets Hogan's men have necessary camp equipment. The Colonel even plays hostage and allows himself to be driven blindfolded about the countryside to get to the vital underground station. The story may reach a bit, but the cast has fine time, with Werner Klemperer leading the way.

HIGH CHAPARRAL. 7:30, Channel 5: "Too Many Chiefs." Good show for regular viewers. Big John collapses from exhaustion and is ordered by the doctor to take a complete rest. Under duress, he takes Victoria to San Francisco and puts a committee of regulars — Buck, Mano and Joe — in charge. Naturally, there's friction on the ranch and trouble is a-brewing in no time. It all works out in the end, but fans will be kept interested until it does.

NAME OF THE GAME. 8:30, Channel 5: "Jenny Wilde is Drowning." If you're a fan of "Bracken's World," you'll enjoy this drama about Hollywood and a young actress who'll stop at nothing to make it in the movies. Jeff Dillon (Tony Franciosa) meets starlet Jenny Wilde, played by Pamela Franklin, who tries to cajole him into doing a profile of her in his magazine. When her tactics don't work, Jenny pulls a big melodramatic stunt to gain attention. The dialogue may get pretty corny, and the supporting characters cliched Hollywood types, but Tony Franciosa's energy helps to put the tale across.

FRIDAY NIGHT MOVIE. 9, Channels 7, 12: "Where the Boys Are." Although by today's standards this college kids' frolic may seem frivolous, it still is a fairly enjoyable excursion, with Yvette Mimieux taking both acting and scenic honors. The time is Easter vacation in Fort Lauderdale, and the college girls and boys invade the town, play their romantic games, and go back to their studies after it all ends. Also prominent in the cast are Paula Prentiss, Jim Hutton, George Hamilton and Dolores Hart.

French Roles Studied

OTTAWA (CP) — A study of federal cabinets since Confederation has shown that—by today's standards—the portfolios traditionally assigned to French-speaking Canadians were relatively minor, but Professor F. W. Gibson says this did not reflect deliberate discrimination.

Professor Gibson, vice-principal of Queen's University, Kingston, Ont., says that what does emerge from his study is that there were "settled practices with regard to the allocation of certain portfolios, and it seems equally clear that such practices went largely unchallenged until quite recently."

The study, carried out for the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism, was released Wednesday.

It contains a study, by various Canadian scholars, of seven different ministries since Confederation, along with detailed conclusions by Professor Gibson.

While the study shows that, based on present standards, the portfolios assigned to French-speaking Canadians were relatively less important than those assigned to English-speaking Canadians, Professor Gibson says this must be viewed against the fact that the political importance of various portfolios has changed over the years.

REVIEW 1867-1966 PERIOD

From 1867 to 1966 there were 19 different ministries and French-speaking Canadians have been postmasters-general in 15 of them. They were secretaries of state in 12, ministers of public works in 11, solicitors-general in eight, presidents of the Privy Council in eight, ministers of fisheries in seven, and ministers of justice in six.

On the other hand, in that same period, the portfolios of finance, trade and commerce and labor, had never been filled by a French-speaking Canadian. And until the Pearson cabinet, there had not been a French-speaking minister of defence since 1896.

Professor Gibson says that while these statistics indicate that French-speaking ministers have appeared most consistently in a few departments—including public works and the post office where there was opportunity to dispense patronage—it would be "quite wrong" to draw any immediate conclusions from this.

Patronage, says the author, was a natural currency of political life "and power to dispense it was what, for the most part, gave a cabinet minister the authority and prestige that he desired."

While the trade and financial portfolios traditionally have gone to English-speaking ministers from business areas, the author says this was not surprising since they represented areas "which were the principal distributing points of corporate patronage."

"The essential point . . . is that a concern for government patronage . . . has never been a monopoly of any group or section of the Canadian population."

Six Gain Asylum

GORIZIA, Italy (Reuters) — Six Poles, including a woman and her three-day-old baby girl, sped across the border from Yugoslavia Wednesday by car and asked for political asylum, border police said. The mother and baby, who was born during the Poles' stay in Zagreb, were taken to hospital. The others were sent to a refugee centre.

HOME GARDEN

Basic Requirements Important

By HILDA BEASTALL

The longer we grow plants the more apparent become a few basic truths. We gradually realize that environment and association with other plants have a bearing on the results we obtain. One thing we should always remember is that our cultivated plants at one time grew as a wild plant species in some part of the world.

Hilda

Many local wild plants, such as the native dogwood, the flowering red current, salal and the Oregon-grape, are rated highly as garden plants in coastal areas of the U.S., England and other maritime countries.

That some gardeners report difficulty in growing these plants seems impossible to British Columbians, but when we read of the kind of soli in which they have been planted, and the location chosen for placing them, it is immediately apparent that the environment was unsuited to the plants.

If it were possible for a gardener to know the exact conditions under which plants grew in the wild, success would be easier. Although such information is not readily available, our general knowledge of conditions in wild areas can be used.

The first thing we realize is that plants grow wild in mixed communities, each contributing something that is needed by the others. One main contribution is shade over the soil area in which roots are growing.

In the home garden we set plants where they will be most readily seen, or have a striking effect. This often means as an isolated specimen surrounded by bare, carefully and frequently cultivated soil, a condition the plants never experienced in nature.

We then are worried at their slowness in becoming established, do more cultivating, add fertilizers, and in general do a lot of fussing that may result in more harm than good.

The same plants set among other plants, or provided with shade of other plants over their root area and the protection of other plants during the time it takes to become established in their new home, will usually make amazing progress without any fussing at all.

Plants will adapt to a wide range of environments if the basic requirements are provided.

We could spend some of our leisure time in the garden thinking how we may put this fact to work for us when we plant our purchased shrubs and trees.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED L. KARPIN

In today's deal, which occurred in a recent top-level bridge game in Sweden, our South declarer was the victim of a bad break in the trump suit. But, as he himself admitted later, his defeat was his own fault, for he had it in his power to fulfill the contract.

Both sides vulnerable. South deals.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	Pass	3 ♡	Pass
4 ♡	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Queen of ◇.

After West's queen of diamonds opening lead had been captured by dummy's king, a low trump was led. When East followed suit with the three-spot, South inserted his jack, which won the trick when West played the nine.

The ace of trumps was then laid down, the bad trump break being revealed when West discarded the deuce of clubs. The trump king was cashed next, leaving East with the high queen.

Hoping to discard a spade on the board's fourth club, South now played the queen of clubs, the jack of clubs, and a third club, putting up dummy's king on the latter lead. But, as is evident, East ruffed the king. He then shifted to the spade 10, and the defenders gathered in three spade tricks. Thus South incurred a one-trick set.

Fron the outset, it was quite apparent to South that his play had to be geared towards keeping East out of the lead, to prevent the latter from leading a spade through South's king. His finesse of the trump jack was a step in the right direction; and had the five outstanding trumps been divided normally (3-2), he would have made his contract. But a better play was available to him.

When East played the trump three on the initial lead of the deuce, South should have followed with the six-spot! West would have won this trick with the nine. He would then have continued diamonds, dummy's ace winning.

A trump lead to South's ace would now have revealed that East still had the doubleton Q-10 (West failing to follow suit). Dummy would then have been re-entered via the club 10, and a trump lead would have ambushed East's queen. After trumps would be picked up, South would be able to discard a spade on dummy's fourth club.

Youngsters Enjoy Panel Discussions

EDMONTON (CP) — Middle-age apathy and hippies who turn from reality are no help to youngsters who want to change society, say a group of high school youths who want to "stay in and fight the system."

In a move to get the message of teen-agers across, a series of teen teach-ins are being held in the Edmoton public library on Saturday mornings.

At these, a panel of "adult experts" faces a teen-age audience to examine issues that the youngsters feel are important.

The idea came from high school students, said three of the organizers in an interview following a session.

"We wanted to set up a program at school to do this," said Judy Miki, 16. "But it wasn't possible to have the kind of program we wanted at school."

DISCUSSION CURBED

The students wanted to have the sessions open to students from any school and they wanted to discuss politics, drugs, abortions or anything they considered relevant.

However, Alberta schools do not permit political views to be expressed, and only students attending the school where a meeting was held would be allowed to attend.

"Besides, then a school expects to appoint a faculty adviser of its choice," said 17-year-old Carol Hamill. "And maybe he wouldn't have been our choice."

Additionally, the students wanted three- or four-hour sessions, so they had to be held on Saturdays.

After being approached by students, the library agreed to the meetings and helped sponsor the idea. The only stiuplation was that the students had to have an adult advisory board.

"So we orgnaized ourselves, approached five teachers to back us and here we are," said Carol.

The topics of programs held so far include: education and its relevance today; does the Canadian political structure permit a voice for the people; the medical aspects of drugs; the social aspects of drugs.

Audiences of between 100 and 200 persons, mostly high school students, have turned out to sit on the floor to hear panels debate the issues briefly and then face a free-for-all discussion and questions from the audience.

'No Evidence GIs on Pot'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. defence department said Wednesday there was no evidence that GIs involved in the alleged My Lai massacre had been smoking marijuana.

The Pentagon statement was in response to testimony of former Sgt. Charles West, 23, of Chicago, who appeared Tuesday before the senate juvenile delinquency subcommittee.

FLASHBACK ON CANADA

Horse Scored Win Over Early Plane

By BOB BOWMAN

Majestic Prince and Northern Dancer are great Canadian racehorses but they would not be able to break a record established by Prince Brutus in Vancouver in March, 1910. It was a handicap race of one mile: Prince Brutus against an aircraft flown by Charles K. Hamilton. The horse was allowed to start three-eighths of a mile up the course and crossed the finish line in 1 minute 7 seconds. The aircraft took 1 minute 17 seconds.

The race was one of a number of attractions staged by Charles K. Hamilton during the Easter weekend at Minoru race track on Lulu Island. It was only a year after J. A. D. McCurdy had flown the first aircraft in Canada at Baddeck, N.S., and Hamilton's exhibition was the first time an aircraft had been flown in western Canada.

He was an American pilot who owned a Curtiss-type pusher biplane which he hauled from Seattle to Vancouver. On March 26, 1910, he took off three times and amazed the huge crowd in the grandstand by flying past at 55 miles per hour. Then he suddenly disappeared and people feared for his safety until he returned and revealed that he had flown up the Fraser River to New Westminster and back, a distance of 40 miles. It was the first cross-country flight in Canada, and all the more remarkable because Hamilton had taught himself to fly only four months previously.

He died two years later, but not in a crash. He was a very frail man and became ill from effects of the cold, buffeting winds as he perched on the open seat in front of his biplane.

In fairness to Majestic Prince and Northern Dancer it should be added that they could have beaten Hamilton's aircraft under similar conditions.

Emergency Mission Tries to Save Fawns

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — The tiny twin fawns didn't move from the muddy mound as the airboat approached. Then, at the last moment, one feebly tried to flee.

The other fawn didn't move. It was dead.

Wildlife officer Rick Albury jumped off the airboat and grabbed the male fawn as it staggered away. He cradled it in his arms and looked down at the dead twin.

"That's a pitiful sight," he said, staring down at the small, spotted body. "It couldn't have been dead long."

The twins were less than a week old. Their mother had left seconds earlier, scared by the airboat's noisy engine.

"She probably didn't have enough nourishment to keep them both alive," said game biologist Carleton Chappell, the driver of the boat.

Chappell and Albury took part in an experimental mercy mission staged Wednesday by the Florida game and fresh water fish commission, which is trying to save the fawn crop of a starving Everglades deer herd.

A team of officers from the game commission went into a flooded and remote sawgrass area west of Fort Lauderdale looking for the weakest of the fawns, those on the verge of starvation.

They picked up four fawns and a young buck. They were treated by a veterinarian. If the animals pull through, other forays will be made into the area.

In 1960, the deer in one Conservation area, a vast 914-square-mile tract west of Fort Lauderdale, numbered more than 5,000. The figure had been reduced to 1,500 by last summer, and now wildlife officers estimate that fewer than 400 deer are left.

The problem is water—too much water. The area is used for water storage by the central and South Florida flood control district, a controversial state agency created to alleviate flooding.

Conservationists claim the district's water pumps soon will drown or starve the last of the herd. But district officers say they are doing everything possible to keep the water down. They blame unusually heavey rainfall.

Arab Spy Sentenced

HAIFA (AP) — A member of one of Israel's most prominent Arab faimilies has been sentenced to 12 years imprisonment on charges of spying for Egypt. An accomplice got eight years. Abdul Rahim Karaman, 37, was sentenced in a Haifa court Wednesday. The prosecution charged Karaman had been in contact with Egyptian intelligence agents by radio and coded mail for about 18 months.

Handicapped Adults Need Centre

The need for a versatile centre for the adult handicapped which would fit into a housing project proposed near the Saanich municipal hall was outlined Thursday night by Ald. Edith Gunning.

Speaking at the annual meeting of the G. R. Pearkes Clinic for Handicapped Children, Mrs. Gunning said a major gap in community resources for the handicapped is lack of facilities for young people when they are ready to leave the clinic.

She quoted a letter from a handicapped girl in her 20s who wrote: "When the clinic doors close behind us, what doors open for those of us who are mentally alert, but physically handicapped?

"None, save the doors of our homes where we must go to vegetate.

"Young intelligent men and women in our twenties and thirties, wasted, condemned to live the life of the aged.

"Not only are we wasted, but the potential benefits of the thousands of dollars and years of education and therapy which were provided us cannot be fully realized."

The girl wrote that many like her want to contribute to society rather than sit home collecting disability pensions but they need a place to train themselves to usefullness.

A centre which could combine recreation, workshops, education and health services would pay dividends; said Mrs. Gunning.

It would fit the handicapped to earn their living and in many cases they could enrich society by their own special contribution.

Estimated cost of such a centre is $525,000 and if legacy funds are not available the community would need to provide a good part of the money.

The proposal has many of the attributes which made the Pearkes Clinic a success, she said.

"If the concept has the support of this group, I feel we are assured of ultimate success."

The handicapped centre would be part of a proposal unveiled in December and suggested for a 6½-acre property assembled by Saanich between Vernon and Darwin and overlooking Swan Lake.

It calls for two high rise and one medium density apartment as well as town housing, providing room all told for 142 families in bachelor and one to three-bedroom units.

The ground floors would be earmarked for the handicapped and the rest for families and the elderly with rents pegged at a level to cover loan repayment and maintenance costs.

Financing for the first phase, one of the high rise apartments and the town housing, has been made possible by a $100,000 gift from an Oak Bay woman, Mrs. Batten Fielding. The balance would come from a mortgage with Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation.

CLANCYS HERE WEDNESDAY

Wearing their white Irish fishermen's sweaters the four Clancy Brothers — Tom, Llam, Paddy and Bobby — will perform at the McPherson Playhouse Wednesday, April 1.

Bobby, a new addition to the group, replaces Tommy Makem who has gone on to make a career for himself as a soloist.

The Clancy's will be backed up by a pair of instrumentalists called the Furey brothers who between them play some 12 instruments.

The group mixes songs with poetry. They sing Irish folksongs and recite Yeats and James Clarence Mangan.

The performances are usually interspersed with jokes about England and Englishmen.

Many Expected For Convention

Delegates from all over British Columbia and parts of the United States are attending the Salvation Army Easter Holiness convention at the Empress Hotel.

Theme of the convention is "I Was There," the personal involvement of the Christian with the Cross and the Resurrection.

Discussions will feature a team of six cadets from the Salvation Army's Toronto Training College and there will be three special speakder — Lt. Col. Thomas Ellwood, Major Margaret Green and Capt Bramwell Tillsley of Toronto.

Toronto Skyscraper Is Big Time Stage

TORONTO (CP) — Gregory Jonathan Doyle hasn't all the world for a stage, but he has a 3½-acre set worth about $100,000,000.

The five-foot-five Newfoundlander is safety director for steelworkers putting up the 57-storey Commerce Court building. But it's the way he hams it up to passers-by that draws the crowds.

Downtown workers and shoppers jostle for position at the construction site as Doyle struts along the steel beams, breaks into song or barks witticisms in an Irish brogue.

Gregory, 40, from Avondale, Nfld., is one of a family of 16. He's a born vaudevillian, and has been ever since he planed the lead in the Goof from Gopher Gulph at old North Avondale public school about 30 years ago.

"But this is the big time at last," he says.

"If there's a good crowd I walk a little faster, shout a little louder and cut up a little fancier. It's hard to suppress an Irishman."

ACADEMIC THRONES are tried out by Bernard Wallace and Kathy Savoy who are among 300 advocates of "People Power" occupying the University of Toronto senate chamber in a protest by mothers, teachers and students demanding university administration provide $2,000 renovation of day-care centre. (CP Wirephoto)

U of T Impasse Over Day-Care Centre

TORONTO (CP) — About 300 students continued to occupy the University of Toronto's senate chamber today, saying they will not leave until President Dr. Claude Bissell agrees to their demands.

The students want the university to provide $2,000 worth of renovations for the school's day-care centre for children.

Students barred the front door of the university's administration building where the senate chamber is located, forcing security police and administrators to use a rear door.

The senate chamber was littered with empty orange juice containers and a large coffee urn had been set up for the benefit of students.

Dr. Bissell issued a statement today saying the university is not prepared to accept long-term responsibility for a day-care centre.

He said, however, he will recommend to the board of directors of the Varsity Fund, which collects private resources from alumni, to make the $2,000 available.

"I am not prepared, however, to pursue this proposal under force," he said.

Dr. Bissell said occupation of the senate chamber must stop before he will formally submit a proposal asking the Varsity Fund for money.

The demonstration began Wednesday afternoon when about 250 students, some carrying babies, forced their way into the administration building.

From the windows of the building's second-storey chamber windows flew the black flag of anarchy and two red flags flanking a poster inviting support of the demonstration.

Signs on inside walls proclaimed Power to the People and Universities Belong to the People. A socialism information desk was set up outside the senate chamber door. Inside the chamber the coat of arms was covered with a sheet of paper bearing the symbol of a feminist movement.

Wednesday night the only parents with children were either those who were outsiders or who didn't require the service of the University of Toronto day-care centre.

Sheila Maxwell, one of the day-care centre's two full-time paid co-ordinators, said the demonstration would last until it had achieved its goal—a guarantee in writing from the university that it would provide the funds for renovating the centre.

The centre, which has been operating since last September in a building owned by the university, has applied for provincial licensing and requires $2,000 of renovations to meet fire regulations, Miss Maxwell said.

'GUIDE NOT DOSE'

People Pill-Polluted

HONOLULU (AP) — Dr. L. M. Cathcart of the University of British Columbia feels the United States should worry more about "all the drug pollution running into people's minds and bodies."

He told a meeting of physicians Wednesday that doctors are creating a pollution of sorts with the vast amount of pills they prescribe for patients.

Cathcart said if most doctors understand a patient's economic woes, "you could understand why he gets sick at the end of the month."

"What they need is guidance and understanding," the doctor said, "not a bottle of pills."

RCMP 'HARASS' MOTHER, CHILD

OTTAWA (CP) — Solicitor-General George McIlraith Wednesday defended the RCMP against charges that it had harassed an Ottawa reporter and his family.

McIlraith told the Commons that the federal police had "acted properly" in talks with W. A. Wilson, parliamentary bureau chief for the Montreal Star, and his family.

He conceded that some improper language might have been used and that this had been remedied.

Wilson, in a story in The Star, said the RCMP had begun "an official interest" in the activities of his wife, who had been helping a few deserters from the United States armed forces.

He said they had questioned his 13-year-old daughter. When his wife sought an explanation about this, the RCMP had denied doing so.

Later they agreed they had done so, Wilson wrote.

Robert McCleave (PC—Halifax-East Hants) raised the matter in the Commons, asking McIlraith to have the RCMP stop harassing the Wilson family and stop the practice of questioning children about the conduct of their parents.

HOUSING DOWN

OTTAWA (CP) — Housing starts for the first few months this year will be lower than the same period in 1969, the annual report of Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. says.

The report, made public Wednesday, says there was some decline in the amount of mortgage money available towards the end of last year, "signalling the likelihood of a lower rate of housing start in the first few months of 1970."

The report said house-building in 1969 was given a shot in the arm by a "massive injection of mortgage funds from both private and public sources" in late 1968.

AUTO REFUND

OTTAWA (CP) — New Democrat Leader T. C. Douglas asked the government Wednesday to make public the criteria under which the cabinet has returned $180,000,000 in custom duties to automobile companies.

The remissions were reported Tuesday in the annual report of Auditor-General Maxwell Henderson. He said they were made under a cabinet order to companies that did not meet all the requirements of the motor vehicles tariff order.

Finance Minister Edgar Benson said he would take the question as notice.

Douglas said the government should add the cabinet order to the tariff order made under the 1965 Canada-U.S. auto agreement.

COMMAND POST?

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence Minister Leo Cadieux said Wednesday he hopes to be in a position to name a location for an Arctic command centre after he returns from a tour of the north next month.

Cadieux told the Commons that preliminary studies already have been made on an Arctic site. His April 7-11 trip would help make the final decision.

The minister, accompanied by his chief of staff, Gen. F. R. Sharpe, will visit the joint weather station at Alert, the DEW Lines at Cambridge Bay and a communications centre at Inuvik, all in the Northwest Territories.

He also will visit Frobisher Bay on Baffin Island, Churchill, Man., and Resolute Bay on Cornwallis Island all mentioned as possible sites for a new defence base.

30-YEAR MEN IN COMMONS

OTTAWA (CP) — His 74-year-old eyes still burning with enthusiasm, John Diefenbaker celebrated his 30 years in Parliament Wednesday with a declaration that could send chills down the spines of opponents.

"I," he said, "intend to carry on just as before."

A few feet away stood Solicitor-General George McIlraith, another 30-year man, wearing one of the two carnations which Prime Minister Trudeau had presented to the two men earlier in the Commons.

"I had to put up with you for 30 years," said the 61-year-old solicitor-general, as the two veterans shared a piece of anniversary cake in Diefenbaker's relatively small fourth-floor Commons office.

"But," added McIlraith, "I still think I got more information out of you than you ever got out of me."

"That's because I knew more about the subject," said the former Conservative leader.

"Robert," said Diefenbaker, as Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield entered. "Getting any color in the white paper?"

"I am trying to get some color in Finance Minister Edgar Benson's face," replied Stanfield.

T. C. Douglas, the New Democrat leader, said he was in the Commons when Mr. McIlraith arrived as a "flaxen-haired, dedicated new member."

He said the hair may have receded but the dedication hadn't.

As for Diefenbaker, he had followed Murphy's Law:

"Whenever there's trouble, we'll find it; wherever there's none, we'll make it."

Bill Allows Agency Rule Appeals

By KEVIN DOYLE

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons gave second reading and sent to a committee Wednesday a bill providing an avenue for appeal against decisions of federal agencies. Then it adjourned for a 12-day Easter recess.

Also Wednesday, Chief Justice Gerald Fauteux, acting as deputy to Governor-General Michener, gave royal assent in the Senate chamber to 12 bills, including legislation increasing pensions for the public service, senators and MPs.

Given second reading was a measure setting up a new federal court to hear appeals against rulings of federal boards, agencies and tribunals.

Andrew Brewin (NDP—Toronto Greenwood) voiced doubts about the value of such a court during second-reading.

The court, he said, could hear appeals against decisions on oil and gas movements, telephone rates, transport and what is seen on television or heard on radio.

Many of these activities now are regulated by such agencies as the Canadian Transport Commission and the Canadian Radio-Television Commission.

COULD BACKFIRE

Mr. Brewin said judicial appeals could be a lengthy, expensive means of holding off decisions until they were useless.

Justice Minister John Turner said the court won't be imposing its policy on the tasks given to tribunals by Parliament. It would act only in cases where a party felt natural justice had been denied.

Mr. Turner quoted U.S. legal authorities as saying regulatory bodies tend to reflect the interests of the industry they are supposed to regulate.

Mr. Brewin said the grounds for appeals to the proposed court should be narrow and clearly defined to prevent abuses.

Robert McCleave (PC—Halifax-East Hants) said the bill deserves generous support. The provisions for appeal against quasi-judicial decisions were "very, very generous."

Mr. Brewin said this kind of generosity worried him greatly. The bill was important but highly-technical legislation, he said.

COULD TOUCH MANY

"It could have a very great impact on the property and lives of Canadians—perhaps an unexpected impact," Mr. Brewin said.

Mr. Brewin said the judges on the court would be extremely important. He congratulated Mr. Turner for making non-political appointments to the bench.

"I hope he is setting a tradition that will last," Mr. Brewin said.

"No more Liberals," said Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre).

"I think we could use a few. Small-l liberals are especially needed," said Mr. Brewin.

The Commons meets again April 6 and the Senate on April 7.

Vancouver Man Named To New CYC Council

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government has announced the appointment of nine members to the new council of the Company of Young Canadians.

The new appointed council replaces the short-lived 15-man "permanent council"—a controversial experiment in participatory democracy that was dismissed in a government crackdown on the CYC last fall following complaints of subversive company activities from the city of Montreal.

That council was composed of 10 volunteer-elected members—some of whom espoused a more radical role for the company in the field of social change—and five government appointees.

Its members include three of the former appointed members: Lloyd Axworthy, 29, of Winnipeg, Shawn Sullivan, 25, of Vancouver and Dr. Michael Kirby, 27, of Halifax.

CALGARY LAWYER BACK

Only one volunteer-elected member returns—Jack Johnson, 32, of Calgary, a lawyer who was voted chairman of the permanent council but who resigned his post at its last meeting in frustration over the council's militant confusion.

Other new members include: Dal Brodhead of Toronto, the CYC's first volunteer in the field in 1966 and a member of the company's first governing body, the interim council; Pierre Brien, a professor of sociology and criminology at the Uinversity of Ottawa;

Max Mendelsohn, 28, a Montreal lawyer who has been comptroller of the CYC; Laurent Laliberte, 33, a YMCA officer from Montreal; and Lise Belleau-Nantel, 26, of Montreal, a member of the national secretariat of the Jeunesse Ouvriere Catholique.

Johnson, Brodhead, Brien and Kirby were nominated for two-year terms. The other members will serve for one year.

Dr. Kirby is a professor of mathematics and business at Dalhousie University. Mr. Sullivan works with an investment company in Vancouver.

Russia Asked To Join Arms Embargo

Times News Services

The United States has proposed to Russia that the two countries negotiate a joint embargo on arms shipments to the Middle East, but there are no immediate indications when, or if, the Russians will respond to the U.S. proposal.

The embargo appeal was made by State Secretary William Rogers during a one-hour meeting at the state department Wednesday with Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin, U.S. officials said.

The new move by Washington followed closely President Nixon's decision to refuse for the time being Israel's request to buy about 125 more warplanes from the United States.

CROSS CANAL

On the war front today, Israeli jets attacked Egyptian artillery positions, anti-aircraft batteries and other military targets in the Suez canal and Gulf of Suez area for more than four hours, a military spokesman announced.

In Cairo, the Egyptian military command said Egyptian troops crossed the canal today and destroyed three Israeli armored cars, killing about 15 Israelis.

Meanwhile in Lebanon, Arab guerillas and Falangists, a Lebanese right-wing political group, fought a battle with rockets and machine-guns in Beirut today, third day of the internal crisis.

The latest clash was one of a series in the last two days which have left 17 dead and more than 30 wounded.

WANTS REVENGE

Heavy machine-gune fire and explosions were heard from the maze of twisting, narrow alleys leading from the camp to the party office. An uneasy ceasefire followed.

Earlier today, thousands of Palestine mourners marched through Beirut screaming to avenge 10 Arab guerrillas slain in a gun fight with Lebanese villagers.

The men were killed in gun battles Wednesday at the mountain village of Kahhala, about 10 miles east of Beirut, where armed right-wing groups twice ambushed a commando funeral cortege.

After the ambush, the commando organizations issued a joint statement saying the seven dead were victims of "treachery and treason."

LAS VEGAS TREMBLES

H-Bomb Test Jolts Nevada

Times News Services

PAHUTE MESA, Nev. — A hydrogen bomb jolted the western United States with the force of a million tons of TNT today as scientists successfully triggered one of the largest underground tests in history.

The thermonuclear device was believed to be a warhead for a semiorbital antimissile missile system. Its exact nature was classified.

The earth bulged skyward 15 feet and a dust cloud rose into the clear desert sky at ground zero. The explosion unleashed more than 50 times the force of the atomic bombs dropped on Japan during the Second World War.

Some 4,000 feet below the top of this remote mesa on the Nevada test site the hydrogen blast vaporized tons of volcanic rock. A 700-foot diameter cavern, large enough to hold Hoover Dam, was carved beneath the 7,000-foot elevation plateau within a split second.

In the Skyroom Lounge on the 24th floor of the downtown Las Vegas Mint Hotel, Ann Valder reported:

BUILDINGS SHAKE

"There it goes. Chandeliers are rattling . . . clincking. The entire building is shaking more and more. It seems to be coming in definite waves. The second one was tremendous. This is like being aboard ship in a storm."

Unfavorable winds blowing from the test site towards Las Vegas, earlier in the morning, put the test on a temporary hold. Scientists had started the countdown but then cautiously shuttled 2,500 workers from the site when winds shifted.

TAKE NO CHANCES

Although no radiation was expected to leak from the shaft, constructed at a cost of $5 million, the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission was taking no chances that residents in the gambling centre would be endangered.

The test was originally scheduled for Wednesday but was delayed because of the high winds.

Residents in Las Vegas, 120 miles from the test site, were warned that earth tremors would be felt. Workers were ordered off high scaffolds and all high-rise buildings were tested for sway allowance.

PROROGATION AFTER EASTER

The legislature is expected to break the Easter barrier for the first time in the 18-year history of the Social Credit government.

Under an agreement believed to have been reached Wednesday night among party leaders, the assembly will adjourn at 6 p.m. today and reconvene at 2 p.m. next Wednesday to clean up two or three days' worth of business before prorogation.

It would be the first time since 1951 that the legislature has sat after Easter, which comes earlier than usual this year.

Today's sitting was the 69th so far this session, suggesting the MLAs will equal or pass the 74 sittings held last year when the legislature prorogued on the Wednesday before Easter.

Dominican Detainees Freed

Times News Services

SANTO DOMINGO — The Dominican government handed over 20 detainees to the Mexican embassy in return for the liberty of kidnapped United States air attache Donald J. Crowley.

Crowley was not immediately freed but the handover of the political prisoners was the first stage in a complicated exchange agreement.

Earlier the chancellor of the University of Santo Domingo said Crowley would be released at 3 p.m.

Dr. Rafael Kasse Acta told reporters the political prisoners would leave for Mexico aboard an unspecified airline plane at the same time.

In Buenos Aires an Argentinian judge said today that one of two terrorists demanded as ransom for kidnapped Paraguayan consul Joaquin Waldemar Sanchez does not want to be released.

A statement by federal Judge Jorge Luque quoted Carlos Dellanave, 20, who is being tried for possession of explosives, unlawful association and conspiracy for rebellion, as saying he wants to stand trial here.

The statement came hours after the deadline set by the self-styled Argentine Liberation Front for authorities to release Dellanave and fly him to Mexico.

The Front, which claimed responsibility for the seizure of the consul in downtown Buenos Aires Tuesday, has also set a deadline tonight for the release of Alejandro Baldu, claiming both he and Dellanave were submitted to the "most barbarous torture" by police.

41 Patients Face Eviction

Forty-one patients in a Saanich private hospital have 35 days to find somewhere else to live.

This was disclosed today with an announcement that Oak Lodge Private Hospital, 4036 Quadra, is closing down at the end of April for financial reasons.

"I don't know where they are going to go," said administrator Mrs. Margaret Reynolds. "I am worried sick."

She said letters have been sent to Health Minister Ralph Loffmark and other officials.

"There are just no places available," she said.

Mrs. Reynolds is also administrator of Sandringham Private Hospital, 1650 Fort, but said this one is not closing.

She said Oak Lodge doesn't have enough money coming in to keep going.

Twenty of the 41 patients are on welfare, but Saanich welfare administrator Mrs. Bunte Marshall said her department has no direct responsibility.

It acted as a clearing house for people with financial problems. Asked who is responsible, she said the relatives. Asked what happens, she said "We don't know. There are people waiting for private beds."

A spokesman for the Vancouver company which manages Oak Lodge, National Hospital Management, said

FEDERAL STUDY WARNS

Heat's On for Great Lakes

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP) — Heat pollution of the Great Lakes will soar in the next 30 years, sharply spurred by new nuclear and other electric generating plants, says a study made public today by the federal government.

The study estimates that man-made heat discharge will be 11 times greater than at present.

Besides electric generating stations, mainly nuclear powered, the study identifies other major sources as iron and steel plants and municipal sewage discharge systems.

It notes that if current trends continue to the year 2000, electric energy will account for between 36 and 48 per cent of total energy consumed in the lakes region. It now is between 15 and 20 per cent.

The report by special consultants has prompted the federal government to commission special studies of the environmental implications of the heat pollution rise.

FACED WITH CHALLENGE

Energy Minister J. J. Greene simultaneously released a statement saying the findings challenge Canada to develop techniques for using waste heat from power and industrial plants and municipal waste treatment facilities.

The study was done for the government by H. G. Acres Ltd., a Canadian consulting group commissioned to assess the magnitude of projected heat pollution and determine whether further research is needed into its possible effects.

The study says there are potential problems that require research to ensure that serious temperature and ecological effects are avoided.

The temperature rise for all of Lake Ontario might be no more than one degree fahrenheit if completly diffused.

But localized temperature increases in surface layers would result in a rise of several degrees.

The study says more research is needed to forecast and control significant local temperature increases.

It says the man-made heat added per unit of lake surface will be greater for Lake Ontario than for the other lakes.

By 2000, hourly discharge of waste heat may reach 1.26 British Thermal Units per square foot of Ontario's water surface.

Hourly heat pollution per square foot of the other lakes is 1.2 BTU for Lake Erie, 0.52 Lake Michigan, 0.29 Lake Huron and 0.022 Lake Superior.

British Thermal Unit is the standard measurement of heat and represents the quantity of heat needed to raise the temperature of one pound of water though one degree fahrenheit.

MORE BANKS CUT RATES

Times News Services

The roster of American banks joining the prime rate cut parade increased today. Several major banks which had held out against a widespread move to lower rates announced they are going along with the reduction to 8 per cent.

American stock markets, which reacted widly Wednesday resulting in major gains, today lost steam in moderately active trading. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off a tiny .14 half an hour before closing after having been up more than four points in early trading.

Snowstorms, Job Boycott Help Disrupt Air Service

Times News Services

VANCOUVER — Canadian Pacific Airlines today announced that it expects no trouble for people planning flights to the United States for the Easter holiday despite an absence of air controllers at many U.S. airports.

An earlier report out of Toronto said Canadians planning to fly to the U.S. for the holiday may have to change their plans. Absenteeism by the controllers combined with snowstorms caused a number of flight cancellations there today.

Six early flights to and from Toronto International Airport were cancelled and several flights scheduled later were doubtful because of the storm.

Toronto airport, deluged with calls, could not say which holiday flights would take place as scheduled.

WEATHER HURT

American, Eastern and United airlinees said their early flights to the U.S. went on schedule today, except American's flight to Chicago which was cancelled because of weather conditions.

Despite a court order forbidding any strike, about one-fifth of all United States air traffic controllers stayed off the job today. The result was delays and cancellations of flights just as the Easter weekend crunch was beginning.

A foot of snow on the airports accomplished what the strike that started Wednesday couldn't — it halted all flights at the world's busiest air centre. That in turn affected traffic elsewhere along the airways.

The Federal Aviation Agency said 79 per cent of the normal 1,577 day-shift controllers went to work in the centres that regulate movement of aircraft once they are out of airport reach.

The FAA and industry spokesmen said delays were not as severe as Wednesday when some flights were up to seven hours late. Most points reported delays of less than one hour.

Police Guard Montreal Post Office

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal's main post office was under heavy police guard late Wednesday and early today as a 200-truck blockade was removed from around the huge downtown building.

Meanwhile, the federal cabinet was expected today to study a report by Montreal lawyer H. Carl Goldenberg into the postal dispute that has been marked by vandalism and work stoppages since Feb. 3.

Mr. Goldenberg handed in his report just hours after police and firemen were called in. Postal-truck drivers had ringed the downtown building with their trucks, blocking exits and disrupting traffic.

Tires on about 50 of the trucks had been slashed and firemen were summoned to hose down streets in the area after gas tanks of some trucks were punctured.

The blockade was removed overnight and alternate trucks managed to deliver mail to all but 11 of the city's 33 postal substations.

Diplomatic Break Seen in Cambodia

PHNOM PENH (CP) — North Vietnam and the Viet Cong will pull their diplomatic missions out of Cambodia Friday, informed sources said today. The informants said Hanoi and the Viet Cong are not breaking relations with Cambodia, just suspending them.

'Red Tape' Dangles Near Loffmark's Head

Red streamers symbolizing red tape hindering abortions dangled near the head of Health Minister Ralph Loffmark Wednesday afternoon in a demonstration that briefly interrupted proceedings in the legislature.

About 10 young women, members of the Vancouver Women's Caucus, dumped the streamers and some waste paper from the public galleries above the legislators while silently displaying large banners.

"Stranger in the House," cried Loffmark in traditional parliamentary form as the streamers suddenly floated down around his head at 3:15 p.m. during debate on municipal affairs department estimates.

But the demonstrators weren't quite strangers to the minister who had completed a 1½-hour meeing with them on the subject of abortion about half an hour earlier. (See story Page 23.)

HUDKINS . . . He is for real

HANG UP MANPOWER'S PHON E.

Women's Liberation Front, Centre!

WASHINGTON (AP) — A U.S. government analyst is compiling an unofficial report concluding what many men already believe—whatever ails them can be blamed on women.

"I have tracked down reports, for instance, that schizophrenia, paranoia, suicide, alcoholism, cancer, arthritis, sterility all result from female dominance of the family," says Dr. Phon E. Hudkins, a labor department lawyer and economist in the manpower administration.

The name is real.

"It can't be," said a labor department official, also unofficially.

Hudkins, whose report is compiled mainly of writings by well-known psychiatrists, lawyers, anthropologists, sociologists and other experts, is serious about his conclusions.

But the labor department isn't about to touch the report with a 10-foot pole.

"He ought to be fired," shuddered another official—also unofficially—anticipating a flood of protests from feminists.

"That's one war you can't win," he said.

You can blame mental depression, dwarfism, crime, delinquency, homosexuality, diabetes, colds, headaches and cancer on too much female dominance, says Hudkins, 36 and a bachelor.

"It doesn't mean that I don't like women," Hudkins said.

He added:

"What disturbs me most is that some of the things we think of normally as diseases result from female dominance."

It goes all the way back to the Bible, he said, citing God's advice to women about their husbands in Genesis: "And he shall be your master."

"What it's proving is that the Bible is true; these are biological laws," Hudkins said.

What to do about it? Put women in their place, of course.

"I'm definitely in favor of repealing the sex provision of the Civil Rights Act," which aims at equal job opportunities and pay for women, he said. "We find that manpower policies are causing these physical and mental illnesses in the long run," Hudkins said. "Many men are trapped in low-income jobs. If we are going to make males the head of the family, they have to have jobs.

"When it's all brought out we'll find the same things that are causing rising crime rates and riots are also causing diabetes and cancer," he added.

VANCOUVER SALES
WEDNESDAY

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP) — Trade was extremely light in all commodities at the close of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today.

Little interest was shown in oats and barley and offers were thin in both oilseeds.

Confirmation was received overnight of the sale of 45,000 bushels of rapeseed to Japan and 60,000 to an undisclosed European port.

Total futures trading volume Wednesday involved 480,000 bushels of flax, 573,000 of rapeseed and 78,000 of rye

Lakehead prices for Class Two and IGA wheat were unchanged.

CHICAGO (AP) —Soybean futures advanced 1 on the Board of Trade today and grain futures prices were gnerally higher, all on buying influenced by the mostly localized, but heavy snowfall in the U.S. midwest.

Soybean oil and soybean meal, which exhibited some early strength, weakedned under profit taking.

Hedge selling in corn was light and easily absorbed by a preponderance of buyers. Most buyers reasoned that the heavy snow and the possibility of more to come might prevent movement of corn from farms. Oats buying was influenced by this strength in corn.

Small Gain In Wholesale Price Index

WASHINGTON (WP) — Claims that U.S. anit-inflationary moves are taking hold were bolstered Wednesday by a government report showing that wholesale prices for March scored their smallest gain in seven months.

The bureau of labor statistics said the preliminary wholesale price index inched up from 116.4 to 116.5 per cent of the 1957-59 average this month. It has registered similar 0.1 per cent gains last July and August. Since then it had averaged increases of nearly 0.5 per cent a month.

Processed foods and feeds dropped a substantial 0.7 per cent to 124.3 — the first decline since last September and a possible portent of moderation of inflation on grocery shelves. Wholesale prices often tend to foreshadow subsequent moves in retail prices; but there is no guarantee of this and the correlation is at best erratic.

Of even more moment to economists was a 0.2 rise in industrial commodity prices, which many consider a better bellwether of inflationary and deflationary trends than the more popular consumer price index.

This was the smallest rise for industrials, which now stand at 115.7, since last July,

MARKET SUMMARIES

N.Y. Rally Loses Steam

Rally which sparked Wall Street's biggest gain in two years Wednesday after leading U.S. banks cut the prime interest rate to 8 per cent from 8½ lost steam in moderately active trading today.

Analysts said profit-taking was in evidence.

The Toronto market advanced fractionally in moderate trading following its best daily gain of the year Wednesday. The market opened with a small gain today, then rose sharply in the first two hours, before falling back in later trading.

Prices were up in moderate trading during the morning at Vancouver.

Canadian and U.S. markets will be closed Friday for the holiday.

AT TORONTO, volume by 2 p.m. was 1,823,000 shares compared with 2,548,000 at the same time Wednesday.

Gains outnumbered losses 308 to 121 with 206 issues unchanged.

Seaway gained ⅜ to 13⅛ on 57,265 shares after touching 15. The stock rose 5 on 701,291 shares in the last two sessions.

M. A. Levy said Wednesday that "the Levy family interests had acquired a controlling position" in Seaway but Thursday Seaway said "control . . . lies with the present board of directors until the next annual meeting which is expected in June. At that time management is confident of re-election."

AT NEW YORK, Ford Motor, which announced it would close temporarily four assembly plants beginning next week, declined ⅞ to 46¼.

Many of the glamor issues suffered declines.

AT MONTREAL, banks dipped sharply while all other sectors of the stock market advanced in heavy trading today.

Toronto Dominion Bank was off ¾ to 20⅞, Royal ¼ to 22 and Bank of Nova Scotia ⅛ to 20⅛.

Among advancing industrial issues, Great West Life gained 2½ to 112½ on a 300-share trade, Simpsons-Sears ⅞ to 18⅞, Algoma Steel ⅞ to 14¼ and Alcan ⅜ to 29.

Levy Industries dipped 1½ to 18½. The Levy family of Toronto said it has acquired a controlling interest in Seaway Multi Corp. which advanced ⅝ to 13 on the Canadian Stock Ex

In senior mines and oils, Shell Canada advanced 1 to 29, Imperial Oil ¾ to 21¾ and Central Del Rio ¾ to 12½.

AT LONDON government bonds moved ahead strongly, following the prime rate cuts by some major U.S. banks.

Dome led Canadians higher, with a 5-point rise to 195. Canadian Pacific, Inco, Pacific Pet, Hiram Walker, Noranda, and West Coast Transmission were other gainers. Banks were mixed.

Leading mine on a trade of 90,500 shares was Alice Lake, up .13 at .96. Casino Silver climbed .25 to $3.45 and Kopan Development rose .02 to .23.

Mockery of Terms Clyne Tells Parley

MONTREAL — Attempts at tax evasion would run rampant under proposals outlined in the white paper of Finance Minster Benson, the Canadian Tax Foundation was told Wednesday.

A paper by MacMillan Bloedel chairman J. V. Clyne, which was delivered to the foundation's closing session by Vancouver accountant Derek H. Parkinson, said the white paper's "talk of equity and neutrality makes to some extent a mockery of those terms."

It imposes so many new and higher taxes that it would jeopardize the whole tax system with attempts at evasion running rampant, the meeting was told.

Existing income tax rates would be lowered from a top rate of about 83 per cent to 50 per cent, there would be reduced lower-income rates and increased exemptions, and middle income tax rates would rise to compensate.

Clyne said the white paper is not so much a tax reform document, but one designed to create revenue for a broad range of undefined schemes for social change.

It would create a whole new set of loopholes that will be harder to stop, encouraging far greater non-compliance and thus be a retrograde step, Clyne said.

Bunny Hops Into Day

By JACK SCOTT

It was awful early for a girl who doesn't really feel back in the human race before noon. But once again The Singing Leap Method of Getting Up in the Dawn's Early Light saved the day.

Getting up at frightful hours is the occupational hazard of little Nancy McNeil, of Los Angeles, perhaps better known in racier circles as Playboy Magazine's Playmate of last July. It was yet another triumph of the human spirit that Nancy faced a new day at precisely 6:30 a.m. this morning and somehow survived.

Tonight she'll grace the opening of the Quartermilers Club's Autorama 70 at the Esquimalt Sports Centre, living testimony to the theory that the oly way to get out of bed when luckier people are snug in their's is to sort of explode into wakefulness.

"The Singing Leap Method is the only thing that works for people like me," explained the brown-haired, grey-blue eyed, 22-year-old gatefold girl who, in fact, looks more like every man's idea of the perfect kid sister than an itinerant sex symbol.

"On these tours you always have to be up when you just can't stand being up," Nancy sighed.

"There are planes to catch, newspapermen waiting to interview you, organizers with great, long schedules waiting to whip you away from your nice warm bed. So here I am, a girl who normally takes three hours to wake up, a girl whose heart really doesn't start to beat until late afternoon. Oh, I can be mean in the dawn.

"I finally learned that the only thing that works is to make it a plunge, to sort of hurl yourself into the day, hooting and singing, thinking happy, idiotic thoughts and never, never look back at the bed."

It was a particularly grim test of the theory this morning. Nancy hadn't bedded down in the Empress until after midnight after a delayed flight from Los Angeles. Her luggage hadn't got any farther than Seattle. She was more than a little disoriented. Nobody had told her that Victoria was on an island. "Sometimes I don't know where I am," she confessed, "but this is ridiculous."

The Singing Leap Method worked again.

"I just careened out of bed at 6:30, tottered into the shower and sang selections from 'Oklahoma! Oh, What a Beautiful Morning is my best song in the morning, especially when it's a morning I particularly hate. So then I lathered my face with Jergens and I turned the radio up loud — anything will do so long as it isn't country and western — and by that time the breakfast had come, a poached egg, honeyed crumpets, the first I ever had, and a huge pot of tea.

"I looked out the window and saw that it was going to be sunny and I put on my eyes and congratualated myself that I was really up again."

Nancy, who is five-foot-two and weighs 109 pounds, draws the line at exercising in the morning — keeps her splendid figure, she says, by doing push-ups before bedtime — but thinks she has stumbled on a theory that could benefit every woman.

"Once you're over the mornings everything takes care of itself," she explained. "But you know how it is first thing. You can lie there worrying, feeling anxious, sometimes homesick, wondering who you are and all that. I guess every woman has mornings when she thinks, 'Maybe I'll just stay here forever.' We're the kind of women who have to do it the Singing Leap Way. It's agony, yes, but before you know it you're ready to face the world again."

Gov't Cost Formula For Public Health 'Impossible'—Curtis

Local government leaders reacted sharply Wednesday to a disclosure that cost-sharing for regionalized public health services will be on the basis of the province paying two-thirds and the region one-third.

"It is to say the elast impossible," Capital Regional District board chairman, Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis, told board directors.

The board received a copy of a letter from Health Minister Ralph Loffmark to Mrs. Rubymay Parrott, chairman of the Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health.

He said he has instructed his officials to proceed to set up necessary administrative machinery to transfer health board responsiblities to the Capital Regional District as soon as this can be accomplished.

"The costs of operating public health services within the Capital Regional District will for the time being be shared by the province and the regional district on the basis of two-thirds: one-third sharing.

ALTERNATIVES

Loffmark said two alternatives are open to the regional district to the problem of staff shortages, especially public health inspectors:

1. The district raise the necessary money by a tax levy and applied to salaries to employ staff on a non-shareable basis;

2. The provincial government will confer power on regional district by amendment to letters patent to charge fees for services including tests and inspections.

This aspect was covered in a government health bill suddenly withdrawn in the legislature Tuesday night.

Regional district executive director William Long explained that Victoria, Oak Bay and Esquimalt are paying $2.60 per capita while all other areas are paying 30 cents per capita.

In 1968, almost 80 per cent of local public health costs were paid by the province and in 1969, because of unfilled staff positions, this was 76 per cent.

On this basis, the regional district had recommended that the cost sharing be split 80-20 with the province picking up the larger amount.

Loffmark, however, has put forward the figure of two thirds; one third but did say a meeting will be called at an early date to discuss this and other matters in greater detail.

Long said a two thirds: one third split is "not too much improvement" over the existing system. It was not known whether school boards would be charged their actual charge for health services or if the region would pay one-third of the gross costs "and this is very significant."

Saanich Ald. Edith Gunning called Loffmark's decision "dictatorial" and said there was no prior consultation. Even the letter was just a copy for the regional district.

Curtis said suburban areas would pay $1.80 per capita instead of 30 cents. While it was recognized these areas have enjoyed a bargain and there should be equality in costs "six times at the whim of government is not acceptable."

The board decided to write Loffmark asking for answers and expressing "consternation" that there was no prior consultation.

Harem for Haida? It's Just Possible

Haida, Sealand's star killer whale, may have hit the jackpot and received two future brides instead of one.

Sealand president Bob Wright said today they suspect that both the white whale and her normal-colored companion put in the pen Tuesday are female.

"We should know sometime next week when they start rolling over and relaxing more."

Today both the white whale and the other new one were taking food given by hand by trainer Graeme Ellis.

As if to make up for his concentration on the white whale Wednesday, Haida took on a feeding chore himself.

Low-Income Burn-In Fizzles at Legislature

The burning, organized by the Victoria Low Income Group, was a fizzle.

And the first to admit it was Elaine Olszewski, vice-president, and spokesman for the group.

"We are disappointed," she said. "We expected many people would turn up with their bills for us to burn. We have made public fools of ourselves because those who supported us didn't come."

NO COMPLAINTS

The bills, numbering about 15, were placed in a cooking pan, a grid placed over it, and burned in front of a small crowd on the lawn of the legislature.

They were burned despite a warning from Fire Chief Eric Simmons that a city bylaw states no person shall light a fire in a public place unless authorized by the chief.

He refused to grant the group a permit.

'GO TO JAIL'

"I haven't got the money to pay a fine," she said. "So if they lay a charge, I'll go to jail. I have five children at home. Three of them sick. But this is the only way. . . ."

About 15 members of the Low Income Group and old age pensioners turned up with placards protesting the 15 per cent increase effective April 1.

SMALL CROWD

A small crowd of elderly people turned up to watch the burning but they appeared extremely timid — as if fearful to be associated with the group. They kept their distance.

Said Mrs. Olszewski: We went to a great deal of trouble to organize this protest because we received a lot of support. Then only a few people turned up. I guess Victorians don't like to protest this way.

"But they forget we don't like either to demonstrate this way," she added. "We felt this was the only way to do it because the government won't listen — won't pay attention to petitions.",

She pointed out people on low of fixed incomes, and those on welfare simply could not afford to pay the 15 per cent increase.

"Yes — I'm disappointed they didn't turn up."

Mrs. Olszewski showed she was anti-pollution conscious.

Labor Heads Study Next Library Move

Two leading trade union men met with Mayor Courtney Haddock this morning to discuss the Greater Victoria library situation.

The library has been the centre of controversy for the past two weeks since a firm of consultants recommended staff cuts to save cash.

Jack Groves, president of the Victoria Labor Council, and secretary Larry Ryan asked for their meeting with the mayor after being rebuffed by the library board earlier this week when they attempted to discuss proposed changes in staffing.

Following their meeting with Haddock both men said they were satisfied that their views would now be made known to the proper authorities.

"We shall report back to our table officers and the executive and from that meeting will come a decision on our next step," Groves said.

Driver Careless In Death Crash

The teen-age driver of a car in which he and three others were killed when it collided head-on with a truck March 1 was driving in a careless manner and caused the deaths, a coroner's jury concluded Wednesday.

The jury also said Victoria should have its own facilities for analysis of specimens in traffic accident investigations instead of having to be sent to a Vancouver laboratory.

The coroner's jury absolved truck driver James Lott, 565 Heatherly, of any blame in the accident on a two-lane part of Douglas near Vanalman in Saanich.

Previous testimony indicated the driver of the car, Robert Stevenson, of 1038 Kings, had reached down with one hand just before the car swerved into the truck's lane.

The other victims were Gordon Hall, 16, of 2538 Graham, Joseph Child, 17, of 1322 Ivy Place, and Gordon Hungle, 15, of 3292 Bellevue.

PAT BAY WIDENING TO TUNE OF $1.7M

A $1.7 million contract has been awarded for widening the Patricia Bay Highway to four lanes from Rogers Avenue to Cherry Tree Bend, some 2.95 miles.

The highways department announced that Edco Construction Co. of Vancouver is expected to complete the job within a year.

Arthur Mayse . . .

A GROUP OF NEWLY-ascended souls clusters outside the pearly gates. On the inside, St. Peter seems to be having trouble with the lock.

Predictably, one of the waiters-for-entry shoves his way up front.

"No offence," says he, "But if you'll just take that key and rub it in your beard, then bend it a little to the left . . ."

A non-saint might be tempted to tell him where to go. But the Keeper of the Gates is well aware that of all human weaknesses, advice-giving is the hardest to shake.

The urge to advise is universal. I yield to it frequently, and so, I expect, do you. In fact, I've yet to meet anyone who is fully proof against it.

If you wish to test this claim, pick a tight parking space on a busy street. At the second pass—or probably the first if the driver is a woman—an advice-giver will take up station on the curb.

"Back a little," he will instruct. "A little more . . . not too much . . . cramp the wheels hard over . . . easy now, easy . . . go ahead a foot . . . watch it! . . . back . . . forward. . . back."

All this to an accompaniment of urgent hand-flappings

It's possible that the unsought helper knows what he's about. Or he may not. Lack of knowledge rarely stops an advice-giver from confounding issues and complicating situations.

In fact, complete ignorance of the matter under discussion can be an aid rather than an impediment when counsel is being dispensed.

A while ago, I was trying vainly to squeeze outboard motor gear lubricant from a fat tube. The beach where this tussle took place had been completely empty when I began what should have been a simple operation. But in seconds, an adviser materialized.

"Nothing to it," he volunteered. "What happens is that the grease gets a little sluggish. Just put your tube on that rock and tramp on it."

I tramped. The tube burst. I was wiping grease off my pants when the marina operator sauntered down. He picked up the split tube, inspected it, then spoke mildly.

Life has taught me that the way to win top rating as a fountain of wisdom is to wait until you're asked, then let the advice-seeker do practically all the talking. All you need supply is the occasional nod, grunt or shrug. If pressed for answers, make 'em completely ambiguous.

Your neighbor, let us suppose; is having the devil of a time starting his power mower. He asks your opinion. You may be itching to tell him his trouble is a gummed-up carburetor.

But much better to peer, frown, give the machine a sniff or two, then return the play to him with a question.

"What's it seem like?"

He may then reel off various possibilities. Should have bought a new sparkplug. Gas line clogged, maybe. Or it could be the air cleaner.

"Could be," you agree, thus covering each contingency he's listed. At this point, it's sound tactics to remove the gas tank cap—even a dunce can see if he's put fuel in—replace cap, then pull on the starting cord. If the motor catches, you're a wizard. If it doesn't, at least you were in there helping.

In the latter case, you're now free to supply the final touch. "Well," you say, "it could need a minor adjustment or you could have a real problem here."

You're off the hook, with a foolproof judgment rendered.

That's the ideal attitude, but it isn't easy to attain. It's so much more satisfying to open the mouth and let the advice come tumbling out.

Like most parents, I advised our children to a fare-ye-well,. Luckily for them, they paid about as much heed as their parents did when exposed to similiar preachments.

The times were bad, we were told. We were drastically unsuited to each other, we had no money, and newspaper men make notoriously poor marriage risks.

In the course of our many happy years together, we've worked out a policy on advice from which we rarely slip.

Give advice if you must . . . but think twice before taking it!

NOOTKA DANCERS TO PERFORM

Legends handed down over the centuries will be told through lilting melodies and dancing to rhythmic drum beats Saturday when Nootka Indians from the Hesquiaht Reserve perform at the Newcombe Auditorum at 8 p.m.

Coming from all over the Island, the colorfully-dressed Nootkans will perform native dances in a special program sponsored jointly by themselves and the Provincial Museum.

The dancers will be under the direction of Chief Ben Andrew and a commentator will translate the legends to the audience.

Russia Asked To Join Arms Embargo

Times News Services

The United States has proposed to Russia that the two countries negotiate a joint embargo on arms shipments to the Middle East, but there are no immediate indications when, or if, the Russians will respond to the U.S. proposal.

The embargo appeal was made by State Secretary William Rogers during a one-hour meeting at the state department Wednesday with Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin, U.S. officials said.

The new move by Washington followed closely President Nixon's decision to refuse for the time being Israel's request to buy about 125 more warplanes from the United States.

CROSS CANAL

On the war front today, Israeli jets attacked Egyptian artillery positions, anti-aircraft batteries and other military targets in the Suez canal and Gulf of Suez area for more than four hours, a military spokesman announced.

In Cairo, the Egyptian military command said Egyptian troops crossed the canal today and destroyed three Israeli armored cars, killing about 15 Israelis.

Meanwhile in Lebanon, Arab guerillas and Falangists, a Lebanese right-wing political group, fought a battle with rockets and machine-guns in Beirut today, third day of the internal crisis.

The latest clash was one of a series in the last two days which have left 17 dead and more than 30 wounded.

WANTS REVENGE

Heavy machine-gune fire and explosions were heard from the maze of twisting, narrow alleys leading from the camp to the party office. An uneasy ceasefire followed.

Earlier today, thousands of Palestine mourners marched through Beirut screaming to avenge 10 Arab guerrillas slain in a gun fight with Lebanese villagers.

The men were killed in gun battles Wednesday at the mountain village of Kahhala, about 10 miles east of Beirut, where armed right-wing groups twice ambushed a commando funeral cortege.

After the ambush, the commando organizations issued a joint statement saying the seven dead were victims of "treachery and treason."

H-Bomb Test Jolts Nevada

Times News Services

PAHUTE MESA, Nev. — A hydrogen bomb jolted the western United States with the force of a million tons of TNT today as scientists successfully triggered one of the largest underground tests in history.

The thermonuclear device was believed to be a warhead for a semiorbital antimissile missile system. Its exact nature was classified.

The earth bulged skyward 15 feet and a dust cloud rose into the clear desert sky at ground zero. The explosion unleashed more than 50 times the force of the atomic bombs dropped on Japan during the Second World War.

Some 4,000 feet below the top of this remote mesa on the Nevada test site the hydrogen blast vaporized tons of volcanic rock. A 700-foot diameter cavern, large enough to hold Hoover Dam, was carved beneath the 7,000-foot elevation plateau within a split second.

In the Skyroom Lounge on the 24th floor of the downtown Las Vegas Mint Hotel, Ann Valder reported:

BUILDINGS SHAKE

"There it goes. Chandeliers are rattling . . . clincking. The entire building is shaking more and more. It seems to be coming in definite waves. The second one was tremendous. This is like being aboard ship in a storm."

Unfavorable winds blowing from the test site towards Las Vegas, earlier in the morning, put the test on a temporary hold. Scientists had started the countdown but then cautiously shuttled 2,500 workers from the site when winds shifted.

TAKE NO CHANCES

Although no radiation was expected to leak from the shaft, constructed at a cost of $5 million, the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission was taking no chances that residents in the gambling centre would be endangered.

The test was originally scheduled for Wednesday but was delayed because of the high winds.

Residents in Las Vegas, 120 miles from the test site, were warned that earth tremors would be felt. Workers were ordered off high scaffolds and all high-rise buildings were tested for sway allowance.

PROROGATION AFTER EASTER

The legislature is expected to break the Easter barrier for the first time in the 18-year history of the Social Credit government.

Under an agreement believed to have been reached Wednesday night among party leaders, the assembly will adjourn at 6 p.m. today and reconvene at 2 p.m. next Wednesday to clean up two or three days' worth of business before prorogation.

It would be the first time since 1951 that the legislature has sat after Easter, which comes earlier than usual this year.

Today's sitting was the 69th so far this session, suggesting the MLAs will equal or pass the 74 sittings held last year when the legislature prorogued on the Wednesday before Easter.

Dominican Detainees Freed

Times News Services

SANTO DOMINGO — The Dominican government handed over 20 detainees to the Mexican embassy in return for the liberty of kidnapped United States air attache Donald J. Crowley.

Crowley was not immediately freed but the handover of the political prisoners was the first stage in a complicated exchange agreement.

Earlier the chancellor of the University of Santo Domingo said Crowley would be released at 3 p.m.

Dr. Rafael Kasse Acta told reporters the political prisoners would leave for Mexico aboard an unspecified airline plane at the same time.

In Buenos Aires an Argentinian judge said today that one of two terrorists demanded as ransom for kidnapped Paraguayan consul Joaquin Waldemar Sanchez does not want to be released.

A statement by federal Judge Jorge Luque quoted Carlos Dellanave, 20, who is being tried for possession of explosives, unlawful association and conspiracy for rebellion, as saying he wants to stand trial here.

The statement came hours after the deadline set by the self-styled Argentine Liberation Front for authorities to release Dellanave and fly him to Mexico.

The Front, which claimed responsibility for the seizure of the consul in downtown Buenos Aires Tuesday, has also set a deadline tonight for the release of Alejandro Baldu, claiming both he and Dellanave were submitted to the "most barbarous torture" by police.

41 Patients Face Eviction

Forty-one patients in a Saanich private hospital have 35 days to find somewhere else to live.

This was disclosed today with an announcement that Oak Lodge Private Hospital, 4036 Quadra, is closing down at the end of April for financial reasons.

"I don't know where they are going to go," said administrator Mrs. Margaret Reynolds. "I am worried sick."

She said letters have been sent to Health Minister Ralph Loffmark and other officials.

"There are just no places available," she said.

Mrs. Reynolds is also administrator of Sandringham Private Hospital, 1650 Fort, but said this one is not closing.

She said Oak Lodge doesn't have enough money coming in to keep going.

Twenty of the 41 patients are on welfare, but Saanich welfare administrator Mrs. Bunte Marshall said her department has no direct responsibility.

It acted as a clearing house for people with financial problems. Asked who is responsible, she said the relatives. Asked what happens, she said "We don't know. There are people waiting for private beds."

A spokesman for the Vancouver company which manages Oak Lodge, National Hospital Management, said

FEDERAL STUDY WARNS

Heat's On for Great Lakes

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP) — Heat pollution of the Great Lakes will soar in the next 30 years, sharply spurred by new nuclear and other electric generating plants, says a study made public today by the federal government.

The study estimates that man-made heat discharge will be 11 times greater than at present.

Besides electric generating stations, mainly nuclear powered, the study identifies other major sources as iron and steel plants and municipal sewage discharge systems.

It notes that if current trends continue to the year 2000, electric energy will account for between 36 and 48 per cent of total energy consumed in the lakes region. It now is between 15 and 20 per cent.

The report by special consultants has prompted the federal government to commission special studies of the environmental implications of the heat pollution rise.

FACED WITH CHALLENGE

Energy Minister J. J. Greene simultaneously released a statement saying the findings challenge Canada to develop techniques for using waste heat from power and industrial plants and municipal waste treatment facilities.

The study was done for the government by H. G. Acres Ltd., a Canadian consulting group commissioned to assess the magnitude of projected heat pollution and determine whether further research is needed into its possible effects.

The study says there are potential problems that require research to ensure that serious temperature and ecological effects are avoided.

The temperature rise for all of Lake Ontario might be no more than one degree fahrenheit if completly diffused.

But localized temperature increases in surface layers would result in a rise of several degrees.

The study says more research is needed to forecast and control significant local temperature increases.

It says the man-made heat added per unit of lake surface will be greater for Lake Ontario than for the other lakes.

By 2000, hourly discharge of waste heat may reach 1.26 British Thermal Units per square foot of Ontario's water surface.

Hourly heat pollution per square foot of the other lakes is 1.2 BTU for Lake Erie, 0.52 Lake Michigan, 0.29 Lake Huron and 0.022 Lake Superior.

British Thermal Unit is the standard measurement of heat and represents the quantity of heat needed to raise the temperature of one pound of water by one degree fahrenheit.

MORE BANKS CUT RATES

Times News Services

The roster of American banks joining the prime rate cut parade increased today. Several major banks which had held out against a widespread move to lower rates announced they are going along with the reduction to 8 per cent.

American stock markets, which reacted wildly Wednesday, resulting in major gains, today settled back to a moderate level of trading. The Dow Jones' average of 30 industrials closed with a slim rise of 0.92 after having been up more than four points in the first half-hour.

The Toronto stock market was slightly higher.

Snowstorms, Job Boycott Help Disrupt Air Service

Times News Services

VANCOUVER — Canadian Pacific Airlines today announced that it expects no trouble for people planning flights to the United States for the Easter holiday despite an absence of air controllers at many U.S. airports.

An earlier report out of Toronto said Canadians planning to fly to the U.S. for the holiday may have to change their plans. Absenteeism by the controllers combined with snowstorms caused a number of flight cancellations there today.

Six early flights to and from Toronto International Airport were cancelled and several flights scheduled later were doubtful because of the storm.

Toronto airport, deluged with calls, could not say which holiday flights would take place as scheduled.

WEATHER HURT

American, Eastern and United airlinees said their early flights to the U.S. went on schedule today, except American's flight to Chicago which was cancelled because of weather conditions.

Despite a court order forbidding any strike, about one-fifth of all United States air traffic controllers stayed off the job today. The result was delays and cancellations of flights just as the Easter weekend crunch was beginning.

A foot of snow on the airports accomplished what the strike that started Wednesday couldn't—it halted all flights at Chicago, the world's busiest air centre. That in turn affected traffic elsewhere along the airways.

The Federal Aviation Agency said 79 per cent of the normal 1,577 day-shift controllers went to work in the centres that regulate movement of aircraft once they are out of airport reach.

The FAA and industry spokesmen said delays were not as severe as Wednesday when some flights were up to seven hours late. Most points reported delays of less than one hour.

Diplomatic Hold Seen in Cambodia

PHNOM PENH (CP) — North Vietnam and the Viet Cong will pull their diplomatic missions out of Cambodia Friday, informed sources said today. The informants said Hanoi and the Viet Cong are not breaking relations with Cambodia, just suspending them.

Police Guard Montreal Post Office

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal's main post office was under heavy police guard late Wednesday and early today as a 200-truck blockade was removed from around the huge downtown building.

Meanwhile, the federal cabinet was expected today to study a report by Montreal lawyer H. Carl Goldenberg into the postal dispute that has been marked by vandalism and work stoppages since Feb. 3.

Mr. Goldenberg handed in his report just hours after police and firemen were called in. Postal-truck drivers had ringed the downtown building with their trucks, blocking exits and disrupting traffic.

Tires on about 50 of the trucks had been slashed and firemen were summoned to hose down streets in the area after gas tanks of some trucks were punctured.

The blockade was removed overnight and alternate trucks managed to deliver mail to all but 11 of the city's 33 postal substations.

'Red Tape' Dangles Near Loffmark's Head

Red streamers symbolizing red tape hindering abortions dangled near the head of Health Minister Ralph Loffmark Wednesday afternoon in a demonstration that briefly interrupted proceedings in the legislature.

About 10 young women, members of the Vancouver Women's Caucus, dumped the streamers and some waste paper from the public galleries above the legislators while silently displaying large banners.

"Stranger in the House," cried Loffmark in traditional parliamentary form as the streamers suddenly floated down around his head at 3:15 p.m. during debate on municipal affairs department estimates.

But the demonstrators weren't quite strangers to the minister who had completed a 1½-hour meeting with them on the subject of abortion about half an hour earlier. (See story Page 23.)

The demonstrators remained silent as they moved from the gallery — some firmly assisted by attendants — and Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell resumed

HUDKINS . . . He is for real

HANG UP MANPOWER'S PHON E.

Women's Liberation Front, Centre!

WASHINGTON (AP) — A U.S. government analyst is compiling an unofficial report concluding what many men already believe—whatever ails them can be blamed on women.

"I have tracked down reports, for instance, that schizophrenia, paranoia, suicide, alcoholism, cancer, arthritis, sterility all result from female dominance of the family," says Dr. Phon E. Hudkins, a labor department lawyer and economist in the manpower administration.

The name is real.

"It can't be," said a labor department official, also unofficially.

Hudkins, whose report is compiled mainly of writings by well-known psychiatrists, lawyers, anthropologists, sociologists and other experts, is serious about his conclusions.

But the labor department isn't about to touch the report with a 10-foot pole.

"He ought to be fired," shuddered another official—also unofficially—anticipating a flood of protests from feminists.

"That's one war you can't win," he said.

You can blame mental depression, dwarfism, crime, delinquency, homosexuality, diabetes, colds, headaches and cancer on too much female dominance, says Hudkins, 36 and a bachelor.

"It doesn't mean that I don't like women," Hudkins said.

He added:

"What disturbs me most is that some of the things we think of normally as diseases result from female dominance."

It goes all the way back to the Bible, he said, citing God's advice to women about their husbands in Genesis: "And he shall be your master."

"What it's proving is that the Bible is true; these are biological laws," Hudkins said.

"I'm definitely in favor of repealing the sex provision of the Civil Rights Act," which aims at equal job opportunities and pay for women, he said. "We find that manpower policies are causing these physical and mental illnesses in the long run," Hudkins said. "Many men are trapped in low-income jobs. If we are going to make males the head of the family, they have to have jobs.

"When it's all brought out we'll find the same things that are causing rising crime rates and riots are also causing diabetes and cancer, he added.

MARKET SUMMARIES

N.Y. Rally Loses Steam

Rally which sparked Wall Street's biggest gain in two years Wednesday after leading U.S. banks cut the prime interest rate to 8 per cent from 8½ lost steam in moderately active trading today.

Analysts said profit-taking was in evidence.

The Toronto market advanced fractionally in moderate trading following its best daily gain of the year Wednesday. The market opened with a small gain today, then rose sharply in the first two hours, before falling back in later trading.

Prices were up in moderate trading during the morning at Vancouver.

Canadian and U.S. markets will be closed Friday for the holiday.

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

Little interest was shown in oats and barley and offers were thin in both oilseeds.

Confirmation was received overnight of the sale of 45,000 bushels of rapeseed to Japan and 60,000 to an undisclosed European port.

Total futures trading volume Wednesday involved 480,000 bushels of flax, 573,000 of rapeseed and 78,000 of rye.

Lakehead prices for Class Two and IGA wheat were unchanged.

CHICAGO (AP) — Soybean futures advanced 1 on the Board of Trade today and grain futures prices were generally higher, all on buying influenced by the mostly localized, but heavy snowfall in the U.S. midwest.

Soybean oil and soybean meal, which exhibited some early strength, weakened under profit taking.

Hedge selling in corn was light and easily absorbed by a preponderance of buyers. Most buyers reasoned that the heavy snow and the possibility of more to come might prevent movement of corn from farms. Oats buying was influenced by this strength in corn.

Tobruk Turned Over

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Britain's military base at Tobruk was formally handed over to Libya Wednesday, Tripoli radio reported. Britain has agreed to withdraw from Libya by March 31 under an agreement with Libya's military rulers who overthrew the monarchy last September.

Six Gain Asylum

GORIZIA, Italy (Reuters) — Six Poles, including a woman and her three-day-old baby girl, sped across the border from Yugoslavia Wednesday by car and asked for political asylum, border police said. The mother and baby, who was born during the Poles' stay in Zagreb, were taken to hospital. The others were sent to a refugee centre.

ONE-MEGATON TEST

H-Bomb Shakes Up Nevada

Russia Asked To Join Arms Embargo

Times News Services

The United States has proposed to Russia that the two countries negotiate a joint embargo on arms shipments to the Middle East, but there are no immediate indications when, or if, the Russians will respond to the U.S. proposal.

The embargo appeal was made by State Secretary William Rogers during a one-hour meeting at the state department Wednesday with Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin, U.S. officials said.

The new move by Washington followed closely President Nixon's decision to refuse for the time being Israel's request to buy about 125 more warplanes from the United States.

CROSS CANAL

On the war front today, Israeli jets attacked Egyptian artillery positions, anti-aircraft batteries and other military targets in the Suez canal and Gulf of Suez area for more than four hours, a military spokesman announced.

In Cairo, the Egyptian military command said Egyptian troops crossed the canal today and destroyed three Israeli armored cars, killing about 15 Israelis.

Meanwhile in Lebanon, Arab guerillas and Falangists, a Lebanese right-wing political group, fought a battle with rockets and machine-guns in Beirut today, third day of the internal crisis.

The latest clash was one of a series in the last two days which have left 17 dead and more than 30 wounded.

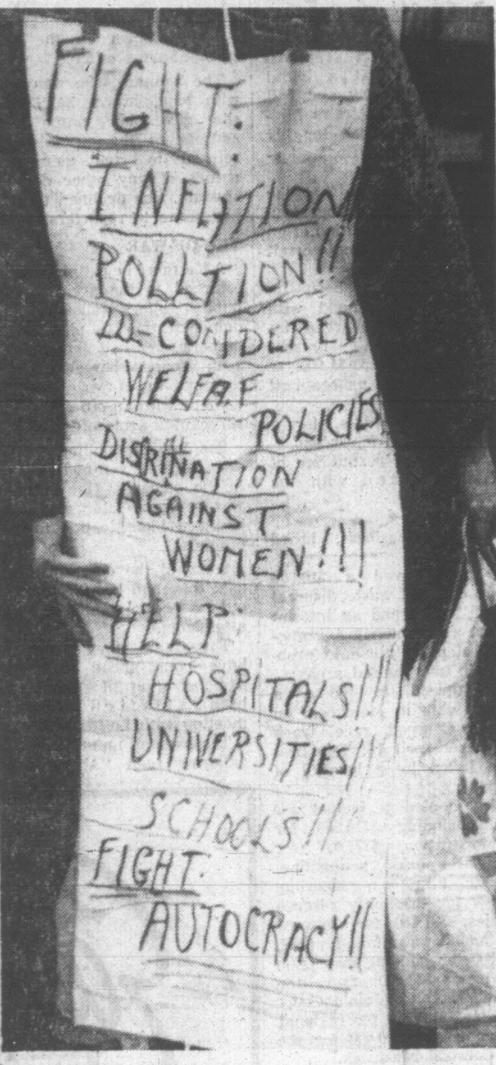
WANTS REVENGE

Heavy machine-gune fire and explosions were heard from the maze of twisting, narrow alleys leading from the camp to the party office. An uneasy ceasefire followed.

Earlier today, thousands of Palestine mourners marched through Beirut screaming to avenge 10 Arab guerrillas slain in a gun fight with Lebanese villagers.

The men were killed in gun battles Wednesday at the mountain village of Kahhala, about 10 miles east of Beirut, where armed right-wing groups twice ambushed a commando funeral cortege.

After the ambush, the commando organizations issued a joint statement saying the seven dead were victims of "treachery and treason."



JUST CAUSES for protest? At least one person thinks so. Wednesday was a busy day at the Legislature for protesters and this was one of many signs displayed . . . an all-emcompassing objection to the way things are being done. (William E. John Photo)

PAHUTE MESA, Nev. — A hydrogen bomb jolted the western United States with the force of a million tons of TNT today as scientists successfully triggered one of the largest underground tests in history.

The thermonuclear device was believed to be a warhead for a semiorbital antimissile missile system. Its exact nature was classified.

The earth bulged skyward 15 feet and a dust cloud rose into the clear desert sky at ground zero. The explosion unleashed more than 50 times the force of the atomic bombs dropped on Japan during the Second World War.

Some 4,000 feet below the top of this remote mesa on the Nevada test site the hydrogen blast vaporized tons of volcanic rock. A 700-foot diameter cavern, large enough to hold Hoover Dam, was carved beneath the 7,000-foot elevation plateau within a split second.

In the Skyroom Lounge on the 24th floor of the downtown Las Vegas Mint Hotel, Ann Valder reported:

BUILDINGS SHAKE

"There it goes. Chandeliers are rattling . . . clincking. The entire building is shaking more and more. It seems to be coming in definite waves. The second one was tremendous. This is like being aboard ship in a storm."

Unfavorable winds blowing from the test site towards Las Vegas, earlier in the morning, put the test on a temporary hold. Scientists had started the countdown but then cautiously shuttled 2,500 workers from the site when winds shifted.

TAKE NO CHANCES

Although no radiation was expected to leak from the shaft, constructed at a cost of $5 million, the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission was taking no chances that residents in the gambling centre would be endangered.

The test was originally scheduled for Wednesday but was delayed because of the high winds.

Residents in Las Vegas, 120 miles from the test site, were warned that earth tremors would be felt. Workers were ordered off high scaffolds and all high-rise buildings were tested for sway allowance.

PROROGATION AFTER EASTER

The legislature is expected to break the Easter barrier for the first time in the 18-year history of the Social Credit government.

Under an agreement believed to have been reached Wednesday night among party leaders, the assembly will adjourn at 6 p.m. today and reconvene at 2 p.m. next Wednesday to clean up two or three days' worth of business before prorogation.

It would be the first time since 1951 that the legislature has sat after Easter, which comes earlier than usual this year.

Today's sitting was the 69th so far this session, suggesting the MLAs will equal or pass the 74 sittings held last year when the legislature prorogued on the Wednesday before Easter.

Dominican Detainees Freed

Times News Services

SANTO DOMINGO — The Dominican government handed over 20 detainees to the Mexican embassy in return for the liberty of kidnapped United States air attache Donald J. Crowley.

Crowley was not immediately freed but the handover of the political prisoners was the first stage in a complicated exchange agreement.

Earlier the chancellor of the University of Santo Domingo said Crowley would be released at 3 p.m.

Dr. Rafael Kasse Acta told reporters the political prisoners would leave for Mexico aboard an unspecified airline plane at the same time.

In Buenos Aires an Argentinian judge said today that one of two terrorists demanded as ransom for kidnapped Paraguayan consul Joaquin Waldemar Sanchez does not want to be released.

STATEMENT

A statement by federal Judge Jorge Luque quoted Carlos Dellanave, 20, who is being tried for possession of explosives, unlawful association and conspiracy for rebellion, as saying he wants to stand trial here.

The statement came hours after the deadline set by the self-styled Argentine Liberation Front for authorities to release Dellanave and fly him to Mexico.

The Front, which claimed responsibility for the seizure of the consul in downtown Buenos Aires Tuesday, has also set a deadline tonight for the release of Alejandro Baldu, claiming both he and Dellanave were submitted to the "most barbarous torture" by police.

41 Patients Face Eviction

Forty-one patients in a Saanich private hospital have 35 days to find somewhere else to live.

This was disclosed today with an announcement that Oak Lodge Private Hospital, 4036 Quadra, is closing down at the end of April for financial reasons.

"I don't know where they are going to go," said administrator Mrs. Margaret Reynolds. "I am worried sick."

She said letters have been sent to Health Minister Ralph Loffmark and other officials.

"There are just no places available," she said.

Mrs. Reynolds is also administrator of Sandringham Private Hospital, 1650 Fort, but said this one is not closing.

She said Oak Lodge doesn't have enough money coming in to keep going.

Twenty of the 41 patients are on welfare, but Saanich welfare administrator Mrs. Bunte Marshall said her department has no direct responsibility.

It acted as a clearing house for people with financial problems. Asked who is responsible, she said the relatives. Asked what happens, she said "We don't know. There are people waiting for private beds."

A spokesman for the Vancouver company which manages Oak Lodge, National Hospital Management, said

Diplomatic Hold Seen in Cambodia

PHNOM PENH (CP) — North Vietnam and the Viet Cong will pull their diplomatic missions out of Cambodia Friday, informed sources said today. The informants said Hanoi and the Viet Cong are not breaking relations with Cambodia, just suspending them.

Police Guard Montreal Post Office

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal's main post office was under heavy police guard late Wednesday and early today as a 200-truck blockade was removed from around the huge downtown building.

Meanwhile, the federal cabinet was expected today to study a report by Montreal lawyer H. Carl Goldenberg into the postal dispute that has been marked by vandalism and work stoppages since Feb. 3.

Mr. Goldenberg handed in his report just hours after police and firemen were called in. Postal-truck drivers had ringed the downtown building with their trucks, blocking exits and disrupting traffic.

Tires on about 50 of the trucks had been slashed and firemen were summoned to hose down streets in the area after gas tanks of some trucks were punctured.

The blockade was removed overnight and alternate trucks managed to deliver mail to all but 11 of the city's 33 postal substations.

Manhattan Sails April 4

OTTAWA (CP) — Humble Oil Ltd. has agreed to all regulations imposed on its supertanker Manhattan for a second scientific voyage through Arctic waters, transport department officials said Thursday.

Thus with Canada's blessings and accompanied by this country's newest icebreaker, the giant U.S. ship is to leave Newport News, Va., about April 4, bound for Baffin Bay and the waters of the eastern part of the Canadian Arctic archipelago.

'Red Tape' Dangles Near Loffmark's Head

Red streamers symbolizing red tape hindering abortions dangled near the head of Health Minister Ralph Loffmark Wednesday afternoon in a demonstration that briefly interrupted proceedings in the legislature.

About 10 young women, members of the Vancouver Women's Caucus, dumped the streamers and some waste paper from the public galleries above the legislators while silently displaying large banners.

"Stranger in the House," cried Loffmark in traditional parliamentary form as the streamers suddenly floated down around his head at 3:15 p.m. during debate on municipal affairs department estimates.

But the demonstrators weren't quite strangers to the minister who had completed a 1½-hour meeting with them on the subject of abortion about half an hour earlier. (See story Page 23.)

The demonstrators remained silent as they moved from the gallery — some firmly assisted by attendants — and Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell resumed

FEDERAL STUDY WARNS

Heat's On for Great Lakes

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP) — Heat pollution of the Great Lakes will soar in the next 30 years, sharply spurred by new nuclear and other electric generating plants, says a study made public today by the federal government.

The study estimates that man-made heat discharge will be 11 times greater than at present.

Besides electric generating stations, mainly nuclear powered, the study identifies other major sources as iron and steel plants and municipal sewage discharge systems.

It notes that if current trends continue to the year 2000, electric energy will account for between 36 and 48 per cent of total energy consumed in the lakes region. It now is between 15 and 20 per cent.

The report by special consultants has prompted the federal government to commission special studies of the environmental implications of the heat pollution rise.

Energy Minister J. J. Greene simultaneously released a statement saying the findings challenge Canada to develop techniques for using waste heat from power and industrial plants and municipal waste treatment facilities.

The study was done for the government by H. G. Acres Ltd., a Canadian consulting group commissioned to assess the magnitude of projected heat pollution and determine whether further research is needed into its possible effects.

The study says there are potential problems that require research to ensure that serious temperature and ecologicical effects are avoided.

The temperature rise for all of Lake Ontario might be no more than one degree fahrenheit if completly diffused.

But localized temperature increases in surface layers would result in a rise of several degrees.

The study says more research is needed to forecast and control significant local temperature increases.

Flights OK For Easter Says Airline

Times News Services

VANCOUVER — Canadian Pacific Airlines today announced that it expects no trouble for people planning flights to the United States for the Easter holiday despite an absence of air controllers at many U.S. airports.

An earlier report out of Toronto said Canadians planning to fly to the U.S. for the holiday may have to change their plans. Absenteeism by the controllers combined with snowstorms caused a number of flight cancellations there today.

Six early flights to and from Toronto International Airport were cancelled and several flights scheduled later were doubtful because of the storm.

Toronto airport, deluged with calls, could not say which holiday flights would take place as scheduled.

WEATHER HURT

American, Eastern and United airlinees said their early flights to the U.S. went on schedule today, except American's flight to Chicago which was cancelled because of weather conditions.

Despite a court order forbidding any strike, about one-fifth of all United States air traffic controllers stayed off

PEI Snap Election Called To Break House Deadlock

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Premier Alex Campbell today announced in the Prince Edward Island legislature that he has asked the lieutenant-governor to dissolve the house and issue writs for a provincial general election Monday, May 11.

The last election, May 30, 1966, was a dead-heat affair, with both the Liberals and Conservatives winning 15 of the 30 seats at stake. In a deferred election in one two-member riding the following July, the Liberals won two more seats to put Campbell's party in office.

Standings at dissolution: Liberals 16, Conservatives 15, Independent Liberal one.

The Independent Liberal is former Liberal health minister Keir Clark, who crossed the floor earlier in this session, saying he was unable to support the party.

HUDKINS . . . He is for real

HANG UP MANPOWER'S PHON E.

Women's Liberation Front, Centre!

WASHINGTON (AP) — A U.S. government analyst is compiling an unofficial report concluding what many men already believe—whatever ails them can be blamed on women.

"I have tracked down reports, for instance, that schizophrenia, paranoia, suicide, alcoholism, cancer, arthritis, sterility all result from female dominance of the family," says Dr. Phon E. Hudkins, a labor department lawyer and economist in the manpower administration.

The name is real.

"It can't be," said a labor department official, also unofficially.

Hudkins, whose report is compiled mainly of writings by well-known psychiatrists, lawyers, anthropologists, sociologists and other experts, is serious about his conclusions.

But the labor department isn't about to touch the report with a 10-foot pole.

"He ought to be fired," shuddered another official—also unofficially—anticipating a flood of protests from feminists.

"That's one war you can't win," he said.

You can blame mental depression, dwarfism, crime, delinquency, homosexuality, diabetes, colds, headaches and cancer on too much female dominance, says Hudkins, 36 and a bachelor.

"It doesn't mean that I don't like women," Hudkins said.

He added:

"What disturbs me most is that some of the things we think of normally as diseases result from female dominance."

It goes all the way back to the Bible, he said, citing God's advice to women about their husbands in Genesis: "And he shall be your master."

"What it's proving is that the Bible is true; these are biological laws," Hudkins said.

"I'm definitely in favor of repealing the sex provision of the Civil Rights Act," which aims at equal job opportunities and pay for women, he said. "We find that manpower policies are causing these physical and mental illnesses in the long run," Hudkins said. "Many men are trapped in low-income jobs. If we are going to make males the head of the family, they have to have jobs.

"When it's all brought out we'll find the same things that are causing rising crime rates and riots are also causing diabetes and cancer, he added.
